P R E F A C E.

THIS Work is designed to give a short, but comprehensive view of the world.

Some attempts have already been made, it is true, to settle the situation of the chief towns in the several quarters of the world; but the situation of the respective countries and provinces in which they lie, has generally been omitted; nor has the constitution of the government, the forces, the produce, or the religion of the several countries been mentioned in any abstract of this kind; which defects are supplied in the present undertaking; and the first meridian, which was formerly placed at Ferro, one of the Canary Islands, is here fixed at London, the metropolis of these kingdoms, agreeable to the best maps: the longitude also is reckoned both east and west from the first meridian, whereby the trouble of running many thousand miles round the globe, to the eastward, to find places that lie but a little to the westward of us, is saved. And in the beginning of the work is an introduction to the study of geography, with directions for the use of the Terrestrial Globe.

P R E F A C E.

The genealogies of the several Kings and Princesses now reigning, with an account of their present families, are added also; and where any kingdom or people have changed their masters of late years, and become subject to another dominion, such alterations are taken notice of. And, lastly, the situation of more than a thousand remarkable places are added, not to be found in any work of this nature; and the whole ranged in alphabetical order, so that any place may be turned to in an instant; and will, it is presumed, be a very useful and entertaining companion, to such Gentlemen as have a taste for history and geography, and desire to have a general view of the world, without diverting too much of their time from such pursuits, as they apprehend of more importance. And the reader may rest assured, that scarce any thing is taken upon trust here, but the situation and distances of places have been carefully calculated and settled, agreeably to the corrected maps, without following implicitly any writer whatever. In this edition, particular attention has been paid to the present political state of Europe, and the accounts of kingdoms, and places of importance, are very considerably enlarged and improved, according to the latest and best authorities.

At London, the metropolis of Great Britain, is printed by J. Knapton, at the Golden-Rule in St. Pauls Church-yard, 1725.

GEOGRAPHY.

THE Terrestrial Globe, consisting of earth and water, rests upon nothing, but appears equally surrounded by The Globe. the heavens on every part; and is represented by the artificial Globe, which shews what proportion of the surface is known or supposed to be water, and what is land, and the situation of the several nations which inhabit it.

On the artificial Globe, are described the following circles: 1. The Equator, and the circles parallel to it. 2. The first Meridian, and the rest of the Meridional The Circles upon it. Lines. 3. The Zodiac, including the Ecliptic. 4. The Horizon. 5. The two Tropics. 6. The Polar circles. And a line is supposed to pass thro' the center of the Globe, called its Axis, round which it moves every 24 hours; the ends or extremities of which Axis are called the Poles of the earth.

For though the Terrestrial Globe is usually treated of, according to appearances, as if the sun, moon, and stars, rose every day in the east, and set in the west, it is generally known that the earth turns round upon its own axis, from west to east, every 24 hours, which occasions those appearances.

INTRODUCTION.

The Equator divides the Globe into two equal parts, or Hemispheres, the one north and the other south; on which circle are marked the degrees of longitude from the first Meridian, either east or west.

Equator.
The Parallel Lines are so called from their running parallel to the Equator, of which there are nine in number (inclusive) between the Equator and either Pole; at 10 degrees distance from each other, every degree of latitude being 60 geographical miles, and every 10 degrees 600 of the same miles; consequently, there are 5400 such miles (or 6000 English miles) between the Equator and either Pole, which is one quarter of the circumference of the Globe.

Parallel Lines.
The First Meridian is represented by the brazen Circle, in which the Globe moves, crossing the Horizon at right angles, and dividing the Globe into the eastern and western Hemispheres. Upon this Circle are marked the degrees of latitude, which begin at the Equator, and are counted northward to the North or Arctic Pole, which is 90 degrees from the Equator. And, in like manner, the degrees of southern latitude are counted from the Equator to the Antarctic or South Pole.

First Meridian.
The Meridional Lines are lines described on the Globe at different distances from the first Meridian, but at equal distance from each other. From the first Meridional Lines.

Longitude. Meridian to the right-hand we reckon Eastern Longitude, and from the first Meridian to the left-hand we reckon Western Longitude, and from the Equator to either Pole, Latitude. we count the Latitude; if towards the North, or upper end of a map, we call it North Latitude; and if towards the South, or lower end of the map, we call it South Latitude. From whence it appears, that Longitude is nothing more than the distance one place is from another, east or west; and Latitude the distance of one place from another, north or south of the Equator.

The

INTRODUCTION.

The Zodiac is that circle which cuts the Equator obliquely, and is divided into 12 Signs, through which the sun is supposed to pass within the space of 12 months, or 365 days, 6 hours (but in reality it is the earth that moves round the sun;) and in the Zodiac are the constellations which give name to the Signs. The Ecliptic is a line passing through the middle of the Zodiac, and shews the sun's, or rather the earth's orbit, or circle, in which it moves round the sun.

Zodiac.

Annual Motion of the Sun.

Ecliptic.

The Horizon is of two sorts, and divides the concave sphere of the heavens into the upper and lower Hemispheres, terminating our views every way, and forming the upper and lower Hemisphere, the one visible, and the other hidden from us; and the plane of this or any other circle described on the Terrestrial Globe, may be continued or extended till it marks a circle on the concave sphere of the heavens; the first sort is called the plane of the Sensible Horizon, which seems to touch the surface of the earth; the other is called the Rational Horizon, supposed parallel to the former, and to be extended to the heavens round the middle of the earth.

Horizon.

The place where any one stands, is the Center of his Horizon and Hemisphere, and the Poles of his Horizon are the same as two imaginary points in the heavens, called the Zenith and Nadir; the Zenith being the vertical point directly over his head; and the Nadir that point of the heavens under his feet, diametrically opposite to the Zenith.

Zenith and Nadir.

The Tropics describe the utmost limits of the Sun's course; the Tropic of Cancer encompassing the Globe, $23\frac{1}{2}$ degrees North of the Equator; and the Tropic of Capricorn $23\frac{1}{2}$ degrees South of the Equator.

Tropics.

The Polar Circles are drawn $23\frac{1}{2}$ degrees distance from each Pole. That which is next the North Pole is called the Arctic Circle, and that which is next the South Pole is called the Antarctic Circle.

Polar Circles.

INTRODUCTION.

Zones.

The Globe also is divided into five Zones, viz. one Torrid Zone, two Frigid Zones, and two Temperate Zones.

Torrid Zone.

The Torrid Zone is that space which lies between the two Tropics, so denominated from the excessive heat of the climate.

Frigid Zones.

The two Frigid Zones lie beyond the Arctic and Antarctic circles.

Temperate Zones.

The northern Temperate Zone lies between the Tropic of Cancer, and the Arctic Circle; and the southern Temperate Zone between the Tropic of Capricorn and the Antarctic circle.

The Elevation of the Pole is the height of the Pole above the rational Horizon, and is always equal to the latitude of the place.

Elevation of the Pole.

For example: If the south of England lies in 50 degrees of north latitude, the North Pole is of course elevated 50 degrees above the Horizon there; for which reason, the latitude of a place, and the elevation of the pole, are used promiscuously to express the same thing.

Geographical Terms.

The terms used in Geography to express the different situation of any people in respect to the place where we are, are these three, viz. 1. The Periœci.

2. The Antœci. 3. The Antipodes.

1. The Periœci are situate under the same parallel, but opposite Meridians. It is midnight with them when it is noon with us; but the length of days and their seasons are the same. These are found by turning the horary index 12 hours, or turning the Globe half round.

2. The Antœci are situate under the same Meridian, but opposite Parallels. These have the seasons opposite to ours; it is the middle of winter with them, when it is midsummer with us; but they have the same noon-day. These are found by numbering as many degrees on the opposite side of the Equator as we are on this. Their longest day is our shortest, and so vice versa.

3. The Antipodes lie under opposite Meridians, and opposite Parallels. These have different seasons, and different days and nights. When it is summer with us, it is winter

winter with them ; and when it is noon with us, it is midnight with them ; and their longest days are our shortest. These are found by turning the hororary index 12 hours from the given place, or turning the Globe half round, and then counting as many degrees on the opposite side of the Equator, as the given place is on this.

The inhabitants of the earth also have different denominations, from their shadows falling different ways at noon-day, and are called Amphiscii, Ascii, Heteroscii, or Periscii.

1. The Amphiscii inhabit the Torrid Zone, between the two Tropics. These have their shadows both north and south at noon-day. When the sun is south of them, their shadows are north ; and when the sun is north of them at noon-day, their shadows are south. These are also called Ascii, because twice every year the sun is vertical at noon, and then they have no shadow.

2. The Heteroscii are those who inhabit either of the Temperate Zones, and have their shadow always one way at noon-day. Those in the northern Temperate Zone have their shadows always north, and those in the southern Temperate Zone have their shadows always south, at noon-day.

3. The Periscii are those who inhabit that part of the Globe within the Polar Circles. These have their shadows every way while the sun is above their Horizon all the 24 hours, as it is several months every year, when the sun is on that side of the Equator next them.

The Circumference of the Globe is 360 degrees, or 21,600 geographical miles round, and the diameter 7200 ; but if we compute by English miles, it is about 24,000 miles round, and the diameter about 8000. And when there are 24 Meridional Lines upon the Globe, these Lines are 15 degrees, or 1 hour, asunder. Those who reside 15 degrees east of us, have the sun one hour before us ; those who live 15 degrees west of us, have the sun an hour after us. The Meridional

Lines, as they approach either Pole, incline nearer to each other, insomuch that a degree of longitude that makes 60 geographical miles when measured on the Equator, makes but 37 miles when measured in 52 degrees of latitude. However, every degree of longitude is always 4 minutes of time, and 15 degrees of longitude are consequently 60 minutes of time, or one hour, whether the distance of miles between the Meridional Lines are more or less; and there are tables which shew how many miles a degree of longitude makes in every latitude, which may be found also by measuring the distances between the Meridional Lines. There are tables also which shew the different climates, and the length of days in each; but these may be shewn also upon the Globe, as will appear in the following Geographical Problems:

INTRODUCTION.

To find the Sun's place in the Ecliptic.

Observe the day of the month in the calendar on the Horizon, and opposite to it you will find the sign and degree in which the Sun is.

The hour being given in any place, to find what hour it is in any other part of the world.

Rectify the Globe for the given place, and bring it to the Meridian; then fix the index at the given hour, and turn the Globe, and bring the places successively to the Meridian, and the index will shew the hour at the place required.

Thus, when it is 4 o'clock at London, it will be 5 at Naples, 6 at Constantinople and Petersburg, 10 at Bengal, 11 at Batavia, and near 12 at night at Pekin; 12 at noon at Barbadoes, and 11 in the morning at Port-Royal in Jamaica.

The day of the month being given, to find the places on the Globe where the Sun is in the Zenith that day.

Observe the Sun's place in the Ecliptic, and bring it to the Meridian; then mark the degree over it, and turning the Globe round, all the places which pass under that degree will have the Sun in the Zenith that day.

The hour being given at one place, to find at what place the Sun is in the Zenith at that hour.

The Sun's place in the Ecliptic being brought to the Meridian, and the degree over it marked, bring the given place

INTRODUCTION.

place to the Meridian, and setting the index to the given hour, turn the Globe till the index comes to the upper 12, and the place of the earth which stands under the observed degree in the Meridian, has the Sun at that moment in the Zenith.

The day and hour being given to find the places where the Sun is then rising, setting, or in the Meridian.

Find the place where the Sun is vertical at the given hour, rectify the Globe for the latitude of that place, and bring it to the Meridian; then all those places that are in the west Semi-circle of the Horizon have the Sun rising, and those in the east Semi-circle have the Sun setting; and at all the places under the Meridian it is noon-day.

To find the length of the day in any place.

Elevate the Pole according to the latitude of the given place, find the Sun's place in the Ecliptic, which being brought to the east side of the Horizon, set the index at noon, and turning the Globe about, till the said place in the Ecliptic touch the west side of the Horizon, and wherever the index points reckon the number of hours between the same and the upper figure of 12, and that is the length of the day.

The Earth is usually divided into the Eastern and Western Hemispheres; the eastern, which we inhabit, comprehends Europe, Asia, and Africa; the western continent contains only America.

The Waters are also thrown into three grand divisions:

1. The Atlantic Ocean, which divides Europe and Africa from America; this is generally about 3000 miles wide.
 2. The Pacific Ocean, or South Sea, which divides America from Asia; this is generally about 10,000 miles over.
 3. The Indian Ocean, which separates the East-Indies from Africa, and this is generally 3000 miles over.
- In all these seas, at a distance from land, the winds always sit easterly between the Tropics, and something beyond, except under the Equator, or near it, where where they are variable, as they are also in above 30 degrees of north or south latitude.

Europe, the least division of the Eastern Continent, is situate between 36 and 72 degrees of north latitude, and between 10 degrees west, and 65 degrees of eastern longitude, being about 3000 miles long from north to south, and 2500 miles broad from east to west; bounded by the Frozen Ocean (part of the Atlantic) on the north, and by Asia on the east; by the Mediterranean Sea, which separates it from Asia and Africa, on the south, and by another part of the Atlantic Ocean on the west.

Grand divisions. Europe is thrown into three grand divisions, viz. I. The north, or upper division, consisting of, 1. Russia, or Moscovy. 2. Sweden. 3. Denmark, and Norway. And, 4. The islands of Britain, Iceland, Greenland, and those of the Baltic.

Middle. II. The middle division, which consists of, 1. Poland. 2. Germany, and the hereditary dominions of the house of Austria, contiguous to it. 3. The Low Countries, or Netherlands. 4. France, with its late conquests and acquisitions on the Rhine.

South. III. The southern division, which comprehends, 1. Turkey in Europe (the ancient Greece chiefly) the tributary provinces of Moldavia, Walachia, the Crimea and Lesser Tartary. 2. Switzerland, with the Grisons, and the rest of their allies and subjects. 3. Italy, Spain, and Portugal. And, 4. The islands of the Mediterranean, consisting of those in the Archipelago, Sicily, Sardinia, Corsica, Majorca, Minorca, and Ivica.

Asia's situation. Asia is situate between 25 and 148 degrees of eastern longitude, and between the Equator, and 72 degrees of north latitude, bounded by the Frozen Ocean on the north, by the Pacific Ocean on the east, by the Indian Ocean on the south, and separated from Africa by the Red Sea on the south-west, and by the Archipelago, the Euxine Sea, &c. which communicate with the Mediterranean, and separate them from Europe, on the north-west.

Africa is a peninsula joined by the narrow isthmus of Suez to Asia, and situate between 37 north, and 35 degrees south latitude, and between 18 west, and 51 east longitude, being 4320 miles in length from north to south, and 4200 miles in breadth from east to west. Africa. Situation.

Africa is bounded by the Mediterranean Sea, which separates it from Europe on the north, by the isthmus of Suez, the Red Sea, and the Eastern Ocean, which divides it from Asia on the east; by the Southern Ocean on the south; and by the Atlantic or Western Ocean, which separates it from America, on the west.

Africa is thrown into 10 grand divisions. I. Egypt. II. Abyssinia, or the Upper Ethiopia, and Nubia. III. The coast of Anian and Zanguebar. IV. We shall conclude this Introduction with a general description of Old England, our native country, the state whereof it concerns us to be acquainted with more than that of any other nation.

ENGLAND.

The southern division of the island of Great Britain, is situate in the Atlantic Ocean, between 2 degrees east, and 6 degrees odd minutes western longitude, and between 49 degrees, 55 minutes, and 55 degrees, 55 minutes north latitude, being of a triangular figure, bounded by Scotland on the north; the German Sea, which separates it from Germany, and the Netherlands on the east; by the English channel, which divides it from France, on the south; and by St. George's channel, which separates it from Ireland, on the west; being exactly 360 geographical miles in length, from north to south; and 300 in breadth from east to west, in the south; but scarcely 100 broad, in the north.

The air is much warmer here than in the countries on the continent under the same parallel, viz. in the Netherlands and Germany; and generally healthful, unless in the fens and marshy grounds.

There are very few mountains; the highest hills are in Wales, and in the west and north of England. The rest of the Country consists of moderate hills and valleys, woodlands, woodlands, inclosed pasture grounds and meadows, extensive corn fields and plains, which feed innumerable flocks of sheep, horses, and neat cattle.

INTRODUCTION.

Holderness in Yorkshire, and the fenny part of Lincolnshire, produce the largest oxen ; and Yorkshire, in general, furnishes us with the finest breed of horses for the saddle ; and there are a great many royal forests, chaces, and parks, which afford variety of deer, and other game, in every part of the kingdom.

The Soil is either clay, gravel, or sand ; the clays produce excellent wheat and beans ; the gravel and sand, rye, barley, pease, and oats ; and the light lands of late years have been improved and made as valuable as the clays, by sowing them with turnips, clover, cinquefoil, &c. especially in wet years ; but a wet season does not agree with the clays : there is usually a great scarcity of wheat in such years ; but then there is plenty of other grain and pasture.

The Timber growing in England, is oak, ash, elm, beach, and hornbeam. The walnut-tree is used in cabinets and other fine works ; besides which, there are poplar, arbeles, sycamore, maple, hazel, willow, horse-chestnut, and other trees, which do not come under the denomination of timber, but serve, however, for shade, ornament, and inferior uses.

There are large plantations of hops, especially in Kent and Essex : and, in other counties, there are plantations of flax and hemp ; but, in these, England, does not abound. In Kent, are extensive orchards of apples and cherries ; In Devonshire and Herefordshire also, are vast quantities of apples, of which excellent cyder is made, such as no other counties will produce ; and, if the trees are transplanted, they degenerate.

Most of the fruits of Europe have been introduced here ; but we have scarce any that are natural to the soil ; and those that have been brought from warmer climates have not that delicious flavour they had in their native soil. And as we have introduced foreign fruits, so we have all manner of plants, roots, and herbs, that are found in the kitchen-gardens of our neighbour nations.

INTRODUCTION.

In Essex and Cambridgeshire, are large plantations of saffron ; and, in Bedfordshire, fields of woad or wad, for dying. It has been computed that the arable lands sown with wheat annually produce thirty-four millions of bushels ; and the lands sown with barley, produce as much ; and the lands sown with horse grain, such as peas, beans, oats and vetches, produce as much as both the former.

Those who have made an estimate of the nation's income, compute, that there are forty millions of acres of land in the kingdom, whereof ten millions are arable, which, at 5s. per acre, yield annually 2,500,000 l. fourteen millions of pasture, meadow, fens, and wood ground, which, at 10s. per acre, yields 7,000,000 l. sixteen millions in forests, chaces, and heaths, highways, common and waste grounds, which, at 2s. per acre, yield 1,600,000 l. and one million of houses, exclusive of lands, which yield 4,000,000 l. that our exports and coasting trade produce annually 6,000,000 l. and our manufactures produce 8,000,000 l. which made the whole national income at that time 29,100,000 l. but as this computation was made by Dr. Davenant 50 years ago, we may, considering the improvements that have been made in lands, the increase of buildings, and the multiplication of the people, add 4,000,000 l. more to the national income, and then it amounts to 33,100,000 l. The same gentleman computes, that there were then six millions of people in England, which, at 5 l. a head, expend 30,000,000 l. 3,000,000 l. raised for the support of the government, and 2,000,000 l. more to discharge the interest of the debt of 75,000,000 l. contracted in the late wars ; which makes our expences to exceed the national income near 2,000,000 l. but as our people are much increased since that estimate, so the interest of the public debts is very much diminished, by reducing the interest of the public debt to 3, and $3\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. therefore our expences, possibly, do not much exceed the national income. Nor did Dr. Davenant, in his calculations, consider the Fisheries, which are certainly a very valuable branch of business, and add considerably to the wealth of the nation, tho' they are not so considerable as those of the Dutch.

There are scarce any lakes in England: those in Cumberland, and some in Lincolnshire and the Isle of Ely, which have only the appearance of lakes in Winter, are the chief. The most considerable navigable rivers are, 1. The Thames, which runs generally from west to east, on which the cities of London and Oxford stand. This river is navigable for ships as high as London, which is one of the greatest ports in the world.

2. The Medway, which unites with the Thames near its mouth, and receives the largest men of war as high as Chatham, where are the finest docks, yards, and magazines of naval stores in Europe.

3. The Trent, which runs from the S. W. to the N. E. cross England, dividing it into North and South; and being united with several other streams near its mouth, is called the Humber, discharging itself into the German Ocean.

4. The Severn, rising in North Wales, and running for the most part South, falls into the Irish sea; on which stand the cities of Worcester and Gloucester.

The heads of those great rivers, or of others which fall into them, lie so near together, that it would be very easy to unite them by canals, and have a communication by water from sea to sea quite through the kingdom, which would be of infinite advantage to trade, land-carriage going deep into the profits of every kind of manufacture, especially the woollen, the manufacturers being forced to fetch their wool in waggons frequently from the most distant parts of the kingdom.

There are in England and Wales fifty-two counties, two archbishoprics, twenty-four bishoprics, two universities, twenty-nine cities, if the four bishoprics of Wales are to be accounted such, but these are little better than villages at present, and therefore are stiled upwards of 800 towns, and near 10,000 parishes, in which are about 7,000,000 of people. There are scarce any manufactures in Europe, which are not brought to great perfection in England. And as to the woollen manufacture, it exceeds any thing of that kind in other nations,

tions, both in goodness and quantity, notwithstanding every other state has of late years endeavoured to excel in it. The silk manufacture also is equal to that of France, or any other country : our dyers are very numerous, and not exceeded by any other nation, either in the beauty or durableness of their colours : and the printers and stainers of cottons have brought that art to great perfection : our printers of books print them as beautifully as the Dutch, or any people whatever ; but still, books cannot be afforded so cheap here as in other countries, the workmen there taking less wages than they do in England. . Our most eminent engravers and statuaries have been foreigners, but we can now boast of some very good ones among the natives : and many of our mechanics excel other nations in their watches, clocks, locks, and edge-tools : their cabinet-work also is much admired : and the manufacture of glass is brought to great perfection, viz. coach-glass, looking-glass, perspectives, drinking-glasses, &c. The gold-smiths and silver-smiths, braziers, carpenters, and upholsterers, hat-makers, tailors, and shoe-makers, do not only furnish England with every thing that is wanted of this kind, but vast quantities are exported to foreign countries, as well as to the British Plantations. The skreen and chair-makers contribute to the adorning and furnishing the dwelling-house. Our ship and house-carpenters, masons, bricklayers, and smiths, are equal to the most ingenious foreigners, and employ a multitude of hands ; as do the tanners, coach-makers, wheel-wrights, and saddlers. The multitudes employed in husbandry contribute still more than any other set of men to the supporting and enriching the nation. The grazier and farmer do not only feed and clothe the numerous inhabitants, but incredible quantities of corn, as well as woollen manufactures, are exported abroad, and many thousand ships are annually victualled and fitted out for distant voyages, or the defence of the kingdom ; which brings us to consider a little more particularly our foreign traffic, which is vastly great, some of it carried on by companies, and the rest by private merchants. The Hamburgh Merchants were first incorporated, anno 1296 : these export broad cloth, druggets, long-ells, serges, and several sorts of stuffs, tobacco, sugar, ginger, East India goods, tin and lead, which are consumed in Lower Germany; from whence they import great quantities of linen-yarn, kid-skins, tin-plates, and other articles.

The Russia Merchants export coarse woollen-cloths, long-ells, worsted, stuffs, tin, lead, and tobacco; and import from Russia, hemp, flax, linen, linen yarn, Russia leather, tallow, furs, iron, pot-ashes, and naval stores.

The Eastland Company trade to all the countries within the Sound, viz. Norway, Sweden, Poland, Livonia, Prussia, Pomerania, and Mecklenburg; but this trade as well as that to Norway and Denmark, is in a manner laid open. To these countries we carry some of our cloth, and other manufactures; but send chiefly ready money for their iron, copper, timber, and naval stores; and the Turkey Merchants export broad-cloth, long-ells, tin, lead, iron, sugar, and some bullion. And they import great quantities of raw silk, grogram-yarn, dying-stuffs, drugs, soap, leather, cotton, fruit, and oil.

The East India Company export bullion to a very great value, lead, cloth, and some other English manufactures; and import raw and wrought silks, calicoes, chints, tea, China ware, cabinets, &c. All the wrought silks and calicoes being exported again.

The African and Guinea Merchants purchase Negroes with the manufactures and produce of England, and transport the Negroes to the British Plantations in America: they bring home also gold-dust, ivory, red-wood, Guinea grain, &c.

The African Company, it is said, never traded for more than 5 or 6000 Negroes annually; but since that trade has been laid open, 30,000 and upwards have been purchased in a year.

The Canary Company export bays, kerseys, serges, Norwich stuffs, stockings, hats, fustians, haberdashery wares, tin, hard-ware, herrings, pilchards, pipe-staves, &c. And they import Canary wines, logwood, hides, indigo, cochineal, and other produce of Spanish America.

The

INTRODUCTION.

The Hudson's Bay Company export woollen goods, haberdashery wares, knives, hatchets, arms, and other hard-ware ; and import great quantities of beaver-skins, and other skins and furs.

The trade to Italy is carried on by separate merchants, who export broad-cloth, long-ells, bays, druggets, calamancoes, camblets, and other stuffs, leather, tin, lead, fish, pepper, and East India goods ; and they import raw and wrought silk, wine, soap, olives, oil, anchovies, and dyers wares. The balance for thrown silk, to Piedmont only, amounted at one time to 200,000 l.

The merchants that trade to Spain export broad-cloth, druggets, bays, long-ells, calamancoes, and other stuffs, tin, lead, leather, fish, corn, and haberdashery wares : and they import wine, oil, salt, and fruits. From this trade, it is computed, England did receive a greater balance than from any other. But the French have the greatest share of this trade at present.

To France our merchants used to export tobacco, horn-plates, tin, lead, flannel, and corn, and they imported from thence wine, brandy, linen, fine cambrics, lace, lawn, brocades, velvets, and other rich silk manufactures ; but these last articles are now run in upon us, or brought by the way of Holland. This trade with France is the most disadvantageous of any to England ; it were better we had no trade with them ; but scarce any thing is liked by the Quality, either to drink or wear, but what is French.

To Flanders our merchants export some serges, flannels, and stuffs, sugar, tobacco, tin, and lead ; and import from thence fine cambrics, lawns, lace, linen, thread, and tapes, to a very great value ; so that the balance is very much against us.

To Holland we export broad-cloth, druggets, long-ells, stuffs, leather, corn, coals, India and Turkey re-exported goods, sugars, tobacco, rice, ginger, pitch, tar, and the produce of our Plantations ; and we import lace, cambrics, fine holland, linen, thread, tapes, incles, whale-fins, madder, argol, toys, clapboard, wainscot, India spices, viz. nutmegs, mace, cloves, and cinnamon.

INTRODUCTION.

To Ireland the merchants export fine broad-cloth, silk, ribbons, gold and silver lace, cutlery-wares, pewter, hops, coals, tobacco, sugar, East India goods, hollands, and whatever they wear almost, except linen and coarse woollen; and we import from thence woollen and linen-yarn, and wool in the fleece. And many of their noblemen and gentlemen, residing in England, most part of their rents are returned hither, and spent here. The Irish export to Holland, France, Flanders, Portugal, and the West Indies, great quantities of beef, butter, and tallow.

From England are exported to the Sugar Islands, in America, all manner of cloathing, both linen and woollen, and furniture for their houses; and we take the produce of those islands in return, which, besides sugar, yield ginger, indigo, rum, molasses, coffee, and formerly the cacao or chocolate-nut was cultivated in Jamaica.

To the Tobacco Plantations, on the continent of America, also, are exported all manner of cloathing and furniture, receiving tobacco in return, which is great part of it re-exported.

To Carolina, the same species of goods are carried as to the Tobacco Plantations; and we receive from thence vast quantities of rice and skins, pitch and tar; and the country produces some silk. There are hopes, also, that we may receive wine from thence, the country producing grapes spontaneously: And the olive-tree thrives here, which, if cultivated, may furnish us with oil, in another age.

Our merchants export all manner of cloathing and furniture, to the Northern Colonies, viz. Pensilvania, the Jerseys, New York, and New England; which they pay for with logwood, and the produce of Spanish America, with which they carry on a clandestine trade frequently, and send over hither all the silver they can pick up on those coasts.

As to the constitution of the government: England is a limited monarchy; the power of making and altering laws, and raising taxes, being lodged in the King, Lords, and Commons. Anciently, the Lords had a great influence on the whole state, and have sometimes brought the crown very low. Afterwards, the Commons grew up to great power, and had no small share in the direction of the government; but the crown has since found means to engage the other branches of the legislature so effectually in its interests, that it has met with very little opposition from either, of late years.

Until the reign of King Charles II. there were no standing forces in England; unless the gentlemen-pensioners, and the yeomen of the guard may be reckoned such; and, in that reign, the regular troops did not amount to 4000 men. In the reigns of King William and Queen Anne, the standing forces, in time of peace, were limited to 7000, or thereabouts.

As to the administration of justice; this is the business of the courts in Westminster-hall, viz. the Court of Chancery, the courts of King's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer, the courts of the respective Corporations, the Sheriff's, and other inferior courts; the last resort in all civil causes being to the house of Peers. But how just and equitable soever the laws of England may be, and however impartially administered by the respective courts, such is the expence of coming at justice, that it is much more prudent to lose a small sum, than to go to law for it. And where a man has a rich adversary to contend with, he will be obliged to spend vast sums to come at his right, and perhaps he kept in suspense many years, be his cause ever so just.

The ecclesiastical Government is in the archbishops and bishops, who administer justice in their respective courts in matters relating to ecclesiastical affairs, by their

their chancellors, officials, archdeacons, and other officers; and these courts also take cognizance of all causes relating to tithes, wills, administrations, and marriage-contracts. In the court of Chancery, and the Ecclesiastical courts, witnesses are examined on interrogatories, and their depositions taken in writing, on which the judge founds his decrees; but in the courts of Common Law, the witnesses are examined viva voce, and cross examined in court, and on their evidence, a jury of 12 substantial freeholders, returned by the Sheriff, determine every fact; nor can the Judges reverse or alter their verdict, but if some corrupt or indirect practices appear to have been used in obtaining it, they grant a new trial.

Of the CONVOCATION.

Whenever a Parliament is called, the King always convokes a National Synod of the Clergy, to consider of the state of the church, directing his writs to the archbishop of each province, to summon all bishops, deans, archdeacons, &c. to meet at a certain time and place. And thereupon, the archbishop of Canterbury directs his mandate to the bishop of London, as dean provincial, to cite all bishops, deans, archdeacons, to appear at a certain day, directing him, that one proctor be sent for each cathedral and collegiate church, and two for the body of the inferior clergy of each diocese. The convocation of the clergy of the province of Canterbury usually assemble in St. Paul's Cathedral, in London, and from thence adjourn to the Chapter-house, or Westminster.

The Upper House, in this province, consists of 22 bishops, of whom the archbishop is president. And the Lower House consists of all the deans, archdeacons, one proctor for every chapter, and two proctors for the clergy of each diocese; in all 166.

The archbishop of York may hold a convocation of his clergy at the same time; but neither the one nor the other has been suffered to enter upon business for many years tho' they are always regularly summoned to meet with

with every Parliament, being looked upon as an essential part of the constitution.

Of the ECCLESIASTICAL COURTS.

The highest Ecclesiastical Court is that of the Delegates; which consists of commissioners appointed by his Majesty, under the broad seal, to hear appeals from inferior courts.

The next court is that of the Arches, to which are directed appeals in ecclesiastical causes in the province of Canterbury. Here the Judge alone determines the cause, without a jury; and all process, in this court, runs in the name of the Judge.

In the court of Audience, the archbishop advocates a cause to his own hearing.

The Prerogative court takes cognizance of wills, and intestate estates.

The court of Peculiars takes cognizance of causes in certain parishes, exempt from the jurisdiction of the bishop of any diocese.

The bishop of every diocese hath a court held in his cathedral, that takes cognizance of wills, intestate estates, &c. where his chancellor is judge; and where the diocese is large, he hath commissaries in the distant parts, who sit as judges in the places assigned them; and these are called Consistory courts.

Every archdeacon also hath his court, and judges of causes of an inferior nature within his jurisdiction.

Of the PARLIAMENT.

Every Parliament is summoned by the King's writs to meet 50 days before they assemble; a writ is directed to every particular Lord, spiritual and temporal, commanding him to appear at a certain time and place, to treat and advise of certain weighty affairs relating to church and state.

Writs also are sent to the Sheriff of every county, to summon those who have a right to vote for representatives, to elect two knights for each county, two citizens for each city, and one or two burgesses for each borough, according to ancient custom.

INTRODUCTION.

Every candidate for a county, in England, ought to be possessed of an estate of 600 l. per annum; and every candidate for a city or corporation, of 300 l. per annum.

The Lord Chancellor, or Keeper, for the time being, is always Speaker in the House of Peers; but the Commons elect their Speaker, who must be approved by the King. No Roman Catholic can sit in either house, nor any member vote until he has taken the oaths to the government.

The Twelve Judges, and the Masters in Chancery, sit in the House of Peers, but have no vote; but the Judges give their opinions in points of law, when it is required; and the Masters in Chancery are usually employed upon messages to the Commons, and carrying down bills. The Commons send up all messages and bills by some of their own members. The Lords have the privilege of making proxies to vote for them in their absence; but the Commons have not.

The Commons only have the power of introducing money bills, in which they will not suffer the Lords to make any alteration, though they may reject the whole.

The Commons can impeach any Peer of the realm, but the Lords only can try them for capital offences, either upon an indictment, or an impeachment; and the whole house are made judges of the offence, though the trial be in the intervals of parliament.

Any member of the Commons may move to bring in a bill, which, if seconded and agreed to, some of the members are ordered to prepare and bring it in. When it is prepared, one of them presents it to the house, and it being read a first time, the Speaker reads an abstract of the bill, and puts the question if it shall have a second reading? and upon the second reading, it is usually committed to a committee, or thrown out.

When

INTRODUCTION.

When the committee has gone through the bill, the Chairman makes his report at the side-bar, reading all the alterations made by the committee, which are either agreed to, or rejected by the house, as the question is put on every one of them; and the question being put, whether the bill so amended shall be engrossed if agreed to, it is, after being engrossed, upon a motion being made for that purpose, read a third time, when the question is put if the bill shall pass? and, if agreed to, it is then carried to the Lords.

There must be 40 members present to constitute a House of Commons, and 8 in a committee.

If a bill is rejected, it can't be brought in again the same sessions.

The members direct their speeches only to the Speaker, and if any one answers, the first is not allowed to reply, unless the house be in a committee. And if a bill or motion be debated in the house, no member can speak to it more than once the same day, unless the house be turned into a committee, and then every man may speak to it as often as he pleases, if the chairman thinks proper.

The Commons give their votes by Ayes and Noes, and if it be uncertain which is the greater number, the house divides. If the question be to bring any matter into the house, as a bill or petition, then the Ayes go out; but if it relates to any thing the house is already possessed of, the Noes go out. If it be in a committee, they change sides; the Ayes taking the right, and the Noes the left-hand of the chair.

Where the two houses differ about a bill, or any other matter, a conference is demanded in the Painted Chamber, where a deputation from each house meet, the Lords sitting covered at a table, and the Commons standing bare. If they agree, the bill usually receives the royal assent; but the King may reject it.

A bill for a general pardon, coming from the crown, is read but once, in either house; tho' every other bill is read three times.

After

INTRODUCTION.

After an adjournment of either house, things continue in the same state they were in 'till the next meeting, and may then be resumed; but by a prorogation the Session is ended; and all bills that did not receive the royal assent are lost.

The Parliament was formerly dissolved by the King's death, but now they still continue sitting, or assemble if they are not sitting; and continue so 'till dismissed by the successor.

In the House of Peers, every Lord gives his vote (beginning with the youngest) declaring he is Content, or Not Content. And here all things are carried by a majority, as in the House of Commons.

COURTS OF JUSTICE.

The Court of Chancery, of which the Lord Chancellor, or Keeper, is the sole Judge, is a Court of Equity, and examines chiefly into frauds, breaches of trust, and secret uses; and moderates the rigor of the common law in many cases. The proceedings are by bills, answers, replications, &c. and the determination of the cause is called a decree.

The Lord Chancellor hath twelve assistants, usually called Masters in Chancery; the first whereof is the Master of the Rolls, so called from his being Keeper of the Rolls, or Records, belonging to the Court of Chancery; in term time he sits with the Lord Chancellor in the Court of Chancery at Westminster, but makes no decree unless the Chancellor be absent, when he sits by himself alone, and hears and determines such affairs as are then before the court. At other times, he sits by himself alone at the Rolls, and hears and determines such causes as are set down before him; but, from his decree, there lies an appeal to the Lord Chancellor.

INTRODUCTION.

To the other masters are referred matters of account, exceptions to answers, and the like ; and two of them sit with the Lord Chancellor, and two with the Master of the Rolls, to receive the directions of the court in such cases ; but they never hear or determine any cause.

The Master of the Rolls hath in his gift the places of the Six Clerks, whose office is to inroll commissions, pardons, patents, &c. which pass the Great Seal, and they are attorneys for the suitors in all cases depending in this court. And under these clerks are 60 more, who dispatch all the business of that office. There are also two examiners in the Court of Chancery, who examine all witnesses on their oaths in private, and take their depositions in writing.

The Court of Chancery issues out commissions for charitable uses, inquiring into such frauds and abuses as may have been committed, where estates or money have been given to any charitable use, obliging the trustees to perform their trust, according to the intent of the respective donors.

The Court of King's Bench takes cognizance of all criminal causes, viz. treasons, felonies, and breaches of the peace, and can examine, control, and correct the judgments and proceedings of other courts, not only in pleas of the crown, but in all pleas, real, personal, and mixed, except those of the Exchequer ; there are four judges in this court, viz. the Lord Chief Justice, styled, the Lord Chief Justice of England, and Lord Chief Justice, by way of eminence, who is created by patent, as well as the three Puisne Judges ; they all hold their places for life ; the salary of the Chief Justice being now 4500*l.* per annum, and of each of the other judges 2000*l.* per annum.

This court grants prohibitions to other courts, both ecclesiastical and civil, when they exceed the bounds of their jurisdiction. All matters of fact, relating either to

INTRODUCTION.

to civil or criminal causes, are determined here by a jury.

The Court of Common Pleas takes cognizance only of civil causes; and real actions are pleadable nowhere else: neither can fines be levied, or recoveries suffered in any other court. The judges of this court are the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and three other judges; the salary of the chief 2500*l.* and each of the puisne judges 2000*l.* per annum. They are created by patent for life. The Serjeants at Law are the only proper barristers of this court, for none but they can sign declarations, pleas, &c. or make motions, in this court; but in trials, other barristers are admitted to plead and examine witnesses for their clients.

In the Court of Exchequer are tried all causes relating to the public revenues, as well as those of private right between party and party; and the Exchequer is a Court of Equity, as well as a Court of Law, where suitors proceed by way of bill and answer. The salary of the Lord Chief Baron is 2500*l.* per annum, and the other three barons have a salary of 2000*l.* per ann. each, and enjoy their places for life.

The counties of England being divided into six circuits, two of the twelve judges are assigned to go each of the circuits twice a year, when they hear and determine all criminal as well as civil causes, at the assizes held for the respective counties, in spring and autumn. All facts being tried by a jury, as they are in the Courts of Common Law in Westminster-hall.

WALES, also, is divided into circuits, and two judges are appointed annually to hear and determine causes in each.

In every city, both civil and criminal causes are tried in the Court of the Mayor and Aldermen, in trivial matters; but they determine no capital cases, nor pleas of land; and causes may be removed from thence to the
b 3 superior

INTRODUCTION.

superior courts. And, in towns that are incorporated, the magistrates have the like power of holding courts, and determining causes.

The Lords of Manors also hold Courts-leet, and Courts-baron, where their tenants are obliged to attend and receive justice, in some few cases; but the business of courts-leet is chiefly to present and punish nuisances; and at courts-baron, the conveyances, and alienations of the copyhold tenants are enrolled, and they are admitted to their estates on a descent or purchase. There are also Sheriffs-courts and Hundred-courts, held in all parts of England, where little matters are controverted; but these inferior courts are the plague of every neighbourhood, the suit being managed by little rascally pettyfoggers, who commit more robberies, under the colour of law, than all the highwaymen in England; and what renders these oppressions still the more grievous is, that they are usually exercised on the poorest people, unable to defend themselves, who are surprised into an execution, and their beds taken from under them, where the matter in dispute is but for a trifle. If Courts of Conscience were erected in the country, as in London, for the recovery of small debts, a great deal of this barbarity might be prevented. Several Courts of Conscience have lately been erected in other parts of the kingdom, by act of parliament, and other places may have them on application to Parliament.

Justices of Peace are appointed in every county, who have, in a great measure, the government of it; and the only qualification required for that office is an estate of 100*l.* per annum, no matter whether he understands a syllable of law, though he is intrusted with a power of putting great part of the statute law in execution, in relation to the poor, the highways, vagrants, treasons, felonies, riots, the preservation of the game, &c. In capital offences, indeed, they only commit or bind over the offender to take his trial at the assizes; but in most other cases they determine matters finally at their Quarter Sessions, especially in relation to the poor. And, indeed, indeed, the justices, even out of sessions, have a very great power over the lower sort of people, as to their settlements and removals. A Justice of Peace usually acts as arbitrarily in his division as any prince in Europe in his territories; and it is in vain for a poor man to oppose him, however oppressive or unjust his proceedings may be; but never were such oppressions exercised more frequently than when the power of pressing soldiers was committed to them: If a labouring man was about to marry, he was surely sent for a soldier, to prevent bringing a charge upon the parish; and justices, constables, and other officers, have often sent poor men away from their families only to gratify their revenge, or serve a present turn: many of them have been thrown into dungeons, and almost starved, before the officers came to take them off their hands; and some of them have been found such miserable objects, that neither the sea or land officers would entertain them.

As to the office of High-constable, or Petty-constable, it consists chiefly in serving the justices warrants and orders, and keeping the peace, and apprehending vagabonds; but they can't detain an offender any longer than they can conveniently have him before a justice of the peace.

The Lord Lieutenants and Deputy Lieutenants, had heretofore a considerable power and influence over the military in their respective counties; but since the increase of our standing army, the militia under their command were seldom mustered or exercised, and consequently became entirely unfit for service. This inconvenience was severely felt at the beginning of the last war, and therefore in the session of parliament 1756-7, an act was passed for the better ordering of the militia in the several counties of England. By that act, all former laws relating to the militia are repealed, and it is enacted that a certain number of militia-men, prescribed by the act, shall always be kept regularly disciplined, properly armed, and ready for service, in each county in England, amounting in the whole to 33,000 men, to be commanded by the lord lieutenants, and such deputy lieutenants and commission officers as shall be

be appointed by them, approved by the king, possessed of such estates as are prescribed by the act, and willing to serve in the stations for which they are appointed. For raising this militia, it is enacted, that the constables shall make up lists of all the men, with some exceptions, between 18 and 50, fit to bear arms within their respective precincts; that the deputy lieutenants and justices shall appoint what number of men in each parish, &c. in proportion to the whole number to be raised for that county or hundred, shall serve in the militia, and shall cause that number to be chosen by lot, out of the whole number of men so returned for that parish; and that every man so chosen by lot, shall be enrolled and obliged to serve for three years in the militia, or procure a substitute to serve in his stead; that the deputy lieutenants and justices shall meet in their several divisions at least once a year to fill up vacancies by lot, to cause new parish lists to be made out, and at the end of every three years to chuse by lot a sufficient number to serve in the room of those who have served out their three years; upon all which occasions, the men so chosen by lot, are to serve in person, or to procure a substitute to serve for them.

The act further enacts, that within one month after the rolls are returned from the deputy lieutenants, the lord lieutenant with two of his deputy lieutenants shall meet, and form the militia for their respective counties into regiments, consisting of at most 12 companies, at least 7, of 40 men each, or into a battalion consisting of all the men appointed to serve for that county, where the whole number does not amount to 7 companies; and shall post to each company proper commission and non-commission officers; and that the militia so ordered, shall be trained and exercised in half companies on the first Monday, and in whole companies on the third Monday of the months of March, April, May, June, July, August, September, and October; and in regiments, or by battalions, on the Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, in Whitsun-week, year. y.

Lastly,

INTRODUCTION.

Lastly, It is thereby enacted, that in case of actual invasion, or imminent danger thereof, or in case of rebellion, the king may order his lieutenants, with all convenient speed to draw out and embody the militia of their respective counties, or so many of them as he shall judge necessary, and to put them under the command of such general officers as he shall appoint, in order to be led into any parts of this kingdom, for the suppression of such invasion or rebellion; upon all which occasions they are to have the same pay as our regular forces, and to be subject to the same articles of war, but to be tried by Courts-martial, consisting only of their own officers.

The militia of London are not included in this act; and the usual powers of the Lord Warden of the Stanaries, the Constable of the Tower, and the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, are likewise preserved.

As most new acts are soon found to stand in need of some amendment or explanation, so in the last session 1757-8, there was a new act passed for amending and explaining the act before-mentioned.

In this new act, the most material amendments are,

That if the Lord Lieutenant of any county had not found officers to accept of commissions, in pursuance of the former act, he is by this new act required, within 14 days after passing the act, or as soon after as may be, by advertisement in the Gazette, to summon a meeting to be held within a month, of all persons qualified to serve as officers; and if within one month after such meeting, he shall not find so many persons qualified and willing to accept the commissions of field officers and captains as shall be equal to the number requisite for any one battalion, he shall, upon notice published in the Gazette, suspend all further proceedings until the 25th of March 1759, when he is to begin again to endeavour by advertisement to carry the two acts into execution.

That

Lastly,

INTRODUCTION.

That if the Parish-officers of any parish can provide volunteers, and such as shall be accepted of, no more men shall be chosen by lot out of their parish than such a number as, together with the volunteers, will make up their quota.

That instead of the usual oaths, militia-men shall only swear that they are Protestants, that they will bear true allegiance to the King, and that they will serve him faithfully as a militia-man :

That the Lord Lieutenant may change the day of exercising from Monday to any other day of the week, Sunday excepted :

That whenever the militia shall be called out into actual service, any Captain may augment his company, with the Lord Lieutenant's consent, by incorporating any number of volunteers, who shall offer themselves, and who shall appear to be sufficiently disciplined, and provided with proper cloaths, arms, and accoutrements ; and who shall take the oath appointed. This regulation seems to have been suggested by the author of the Parliament History, published in the London Magazine for 1757, p. 580.

By these acts, which continued in force 'till 1763, several encouragements were enacted for inducing men to serve in the militia, viz. That during such service they should not be liable to do any statute work, or to serve as a peace or parish officer, or to serve in the army without their consent ; nor after having served for three years in person, to serve again until it comes to their turn by rotation : that the militia should never be transported, or compelled to march out of the kingdom : that after three years service, every private man should keep his regiments to his own use ; and that every married man serving in the militia when called out to actual service, should be entitled to exercise any trade in any town or place in Great Britain or Ireland ; and that during such service

INTRODUCTION.

Service his family should be provided for at the county's expence, if unable to support themselves.

And by another act passed in 1757-8 for applying the money granted by parliament towards defraying the charge of pay and cloathing for the militia for 1758, the following issues or payments are directed, viz. For cloathing at the rate of 1 l. 1 s. for each private man or drummer; and 2 l. 10 s. for each serjeant: and for pay for four months in advance, at the rate of 6 s. per diem for each adjutant; 1 s. per diem for each serjeant, with the addition of 2 s. 6 d. per week for each serjeant-major; and 6 d. per diem for each drummer, with the addition of 3 s. 6 d. per week for each drum-major; and 1 s. for each private man, with the addition of 6 d. to each corporal, for every day in which they shall be respectively employed in the militia; besides a proper allowance to the clerks of the meetings and battalions. But no cloathing, pay, arms, or accoutrements, is to be issued for the militia of any county, until four fifths of the prescribed number for that county, have been chosen and properly officered.

In time of peace, the militia of every county are embodied once a year, and do duty for 28 days.

ALEPPO, E. lon. 37. lat. 36.
30. is the capital of the government or Beglarbelic, of Aleppo, in Asiatic Turkey, sit. 70 m. E. of the Levant sea, and Port of Scanderoon, and about 100 m. W. of the river Euphrates. It stands on four hills
in the middle of a pleasant fruitful plain, being of an oval figure, and about 3 miles in circumference, the castle being on the highest hill in the middle of the city; the buildings of the town are better than in most cities in Turkey, and they have a great many stately mosques and ca-ravanferas; it is well furnished with fountains and reservoirs of water,
and their gardens and vineyards well
planted with grapes, oranges, apples,
cherries, and other excellent fruits.
The Christians have their houses and churches in the suburbs. There is a very considerable trade here for silks, camblets, and Turkey leather.
Every European nation almost has its factors here: the English factors are about 40 in number, and live in a quadrangle, resembling a college,
having their chaplain and chapel,
where they perform their devotions regularly as in Christendom, and at their leisure hours they hunt and use
other sports, with all imaginable freedom. About 14 m. S. E. of Aleppo, is a salt lake, 7 or 8 m. over, having a dry crust of salt on the surface,
which sounds like frozen snow when horses trample on it; and magasines of this salt are laid up in the neighbourhood of Aleppo. The Beglerbeg of Aleppo commands all the country between the Levant sea and the Euphrates; but the castle has a governor independent of him.

ALEXANDRIA, E. lon. 31. lat.
30. a great city and port town of the Lower Egypt, in Africa, sit. 26
m. W. of the most westerly branch of the river Nile, and 125 m. N. W.
of the city of Grand Cairo. The old town was about 7 m. in circumference; built by Alexander
the Great, and still called Scanderia
by the Turks; but, except one long street which faces the harbour, it is only a heap of ruins at this day;
there is little left standing but part of the walls, which have great square towers, at 200 paces distant, and a little

little tower between them; every one of the great towers would contain 200 soldiers, and had a cistern to which the water of the Nile was conveyed; and the cisterns still serve to receive the rain-water, and what is brought them from the Nile; for Alexandria stands in a barren, desert country, where there are neither springs nor rivers, though it was once the capital of Egypt, and had the greatest trade of any town in the world, when the spices and treasures of the East-Indies were brought hither, and from hence distributed all over Europe; which was, in a great measure, lost when the Portuguese found the way to the East-Indies, round Africa, about the year 1400; however it has still a good foreign trade. The land on which the town stands is so low, that the seamen can hardly discern it till they are very near, which was the occasion of erecting the celebrated Pharos, or high watch tower here, so often mentioned in history. The gates of the town are still composed of Thebaick and Granite marble; but the finest piece of antiquity left, is Pompey's pillar, being one entire piece of Granite marble, seventy feet high, and twenty-five in circumference. Alexandria, and the rest of Egypt, is sub. to the Grand Signior, who seems however, to have a limited authority, being often obliged to submit the administration of the government to the humours of the petty princes of Europe.

ALEXANDRIA, a new, flourishing town; sit. near the falls of the river Potomack in Virginia. Here the troops under general Braddock landed.

ALGIERS, kingdom, is sit. between 30 and 37 degrees of N. lat. and between 1 degree W. and 9 degrees of E. lon. bounded by the Mediterranean on the N. the K. of Tunis on the E. by Mount-Atlas on the S. and by the river Mulvia, which separates it from the empire of Morocco, on the W. extending 600 miles from E. to W. along the coast of Barbary, for the most part mountainous. The whole country is divided into the following provinces, viz. 1. That of the Tlemfan on the W. 2. Titterie, on the S. 3. Constantina on the E. of Algiers. The Turks who have the government of this K. in their hands, do not consist of 7000 men; the Moors, or natives of Africa, have no share in it. The Arabs, who live in tents, are a distinct people from either; and these the Turks suffer to be governed by their own laws and magistrates, but interfere when they see fit. The Dey of Algiers is an absolute monarch, but elective: his son never inherits by descent; the right of election is in the Turkish soldiers only, and he is frequently deposed and put to death by them, if they apprehend he does not consult the interest of his electors, or if he wants success it is fatal to him. They have murdered four of their Deys, and deposed two, within the space of twenty years. They are not at all subject to the Grand Signior, though they pay some regard to him as the head of their religion. The revenues of the government arise from the tribute paid by the Moors and Arabs; a detachment of the army being sent into each province annually to collect it; and the prizes they take at sea, sometimes equal the taxes they lay upon the natives. The Dey has several thousand Moors in his service, both horse and foot; and every one of his beys, or viceroys, in the provinces,

ALGIERS, E. lon. 3. 30. lat.
36. 40. the cap. of the K. of Algiers, and a good port, sit. near the mouth of the river Safran, on the Mediterranean sea, opposite to the island of Majorca: it stands on the side of a hill, rising gradually from the shore, 300 m. W. of Tunis, and upwards of 400 m. E. of Gibraltar: it is defended by a pier, or mole, 500 paces in length, extended from the continent to a small island,
where they have a castle, and large batteries of guns, which have not been able, however, to protect them
from bombardments by the Christian powers, whose subjects they have plundered and carried into slavery,
for these people subsist chiefly by the prizes they make of Christian ships,
that are not at peace with them.
The houses of the town are contiguous, and computed to contain one hundred thousand Mahometans, fifteen thousand Jews, and two thousand Christian slaves. The country about Algiers is adorned with gardens and fine villas, where the many fountains and rivulets are no small addition to the pleasure of the inhabitants, who resort thither in the hot seasons.

ALPS, the highest mountains in Europe, which separate Italy from France and Germany, there being but few passes, and those of difficult access, which are the chief security of Piedmont, the king of Sardinia's country, against France; the Swiss also possess great part of these mountains, which secure them against the attacks, both of the Germans and the French. Hannibal, attempting the passes of the Alps on the side of Piedmont, in the winter season, when he invaded Italy, lost most of his elephants here; and here the present king of Sardinia resisted the united forces of France and Spain near Coni, in the year 1744, and compelled them to abandon Piedmont, and retire into France.

AMASIA, E. lon. 36. lat. 42. a city of Natolia, in Asiatic Turkey, sit.
near the river Iris, 36 m. N. W. of Tocat, and 70 m. S. of the Euxine sea. It gives its name to the pr. of Amasia, and is sometimes the residence of the Turkish Beglerbeg, or Viceroy, and was anciently the seat of the kings of Cappadocia.

AMASIA, the N. division of the Lesser Asia, lying on the S. shore of the Euxine sea.

AMAZONS, their country is supposed to have been situated in that part of the Lesser Asia, now called Amasia, on the banks of the Euxine sea.

AMAZON, a river which rises in Peru, in S. America, near the Equator, and, running eastward a course of 3000 miles and upwards, within 4 degrees of the Equator, falls into the Atlantic ocean, by several channels,
giving the country through which it passes the name of Amazonia, or the country of the Amazons. This river overflows annually, like others between the Tropics, and is then 150
mils broad at the mouth. Orellana sailed the whole breadth of South America, from W. to E. on this river;
and, arriving at the Atlantic ocean,
returned to Spain, from whose account of it, confirmed by later voyages,

voyages it appears to be the greatest river in the world, if we consider the length of its course, or the depth of its water.

AMBARAJAM, or Ambara, E. lon. 35. lat. 13. the capital of Abyssinia, or Ethiopia superior, is sit. on the E. side of a lake, out of which the river Nile rises.

AMBOYNA island, E. lon. 126. S. lat. 3. 40. sit. 300 m. S. W. of Ternate, the chief of the Molucca islands, and 100 m. N. W. of the Banda islands, being about 70 m. in circumference: here the Dutch have a strong castle, garrisoned by 7 or 800 men. This island being conveniently situated between the Molucca islands, which produce cloves, and the Banda islands, where only mace and nutmegs grow, the English and Dutch had each of them their factories here, the beginning of the 17th century, in the reign of king James I. but the Dutch forcibly expelled the English factors, in time of peace; tortured and put to death several of them, invaded and usurped the dominion of the Spice-islands, which had submitted to the English, and have kept the possession of them ever since, monopolizing the fine spices, and excluding all the rest of the world from them.

cedonia, sit. on the river Stymon, 70
m. N. E. of Salonichi.

ANPUJAS, E. lon. 2. 5. lat. 42.
65. the capital of the dis. of Ampou-dam in Catalonia, in Spain, sit. near the sea-coast, at the mouth of the river Fluvia, 60 m. N. E. of Barcelona.

AMSTERDAM, E. lon. 4. 30.
lat. 52. 25. the capital of the pr.
of Holland, and of the United Netherlands, sit. on the river Amstel,
and an arm of the sea, called the Wye, a little to the eastward of the Zuyder sea, 200 m. and upwards E.
of London, 240 N. E. of Paris, and upwards of 500 m. W. of Vienna, 12 m. E. of Haerlem, and 30 N. E.
of Rotterdam. This city lies almost in the form of a crescent; it is the greatest port of the known world;
no where are such numbers of merchants-ships seen, and yet of the most difficult access, it being scarce possible for a loaded ship, or man of war, to enter the harbour; and, indeed, the whole Zuyder sea is so shallow and full of sands, that scarce
any but their own flat-bottomed vessels can cross it; but then this is their great security against foreign enemies, whose men of war scarce
ever venture to pursue them beyond
the Texel, and other entrances into this sea. The foundations of this town are laid upon vast piles of timber drove into the morais, on which
it stands, at a prodigious expence;
the Stadhouse alone has upwards of 13,000 piles of wood, 'tis said, to bear up the foundation. The first mention of this town in history, is about the year 1300, when it was a poor fisher-town. In 1585, it appears to have been the chief town of trade
in these provinces, when they began to fortify it; and great additions were made to the fortifications in the year 1672, when Lewis XIV.
invaded the country. The houses are built with brick or stone, the streets spacious and well paved, and

through most of them run canals planted with trees; the town is computed to be half as big as London, including the fortifications; in it are peoples of almost every nation, and every religion in Europe, who are all tolerated in their respective persuasions, but none admitted to any share in the government but the Calvinists, or Presbyterians; all of them, however, apply themselves
with the utmost diligence to heap
up wealth, tormenting both body and soul (in the words of a late writer)
to get an estate, not to enjoy it, but
to have the pleasure of dying rich;
money, the idol of the world, is adored most in this country, where it supplies the place of birth, wit,
and merit.

ANGERS, W. lon. 10 min. lat.
47. 23. capital of the D. of Anjou,
in France, sit. at the confluence of the Little Loire and the Sarre 160 m.
S. W. of Paris, and 42 m. E. of Nantz; part of the town stands pleasantly on the side of a hill, and the rest in the plain through which the river Maine runs. It contains about 9000 houses, and 30,000 inhabitants, and besides the cathedral, which is an elegant structure, there are 16 narish churches, 8 collegiate chu., 4,
and a great number of convents,
being the see of a bish. under the archb. of Tours, a univ. for the study of law chiefly, and Lewis XIV. erected an academy here on the same footing with the Royal Academy at Paris.
The town is surrounded with a wall
and antique fortifications, and commanded by a castle, sit. on a steep
rock; the situation is in all respects
agreeable, that several English gentlemen made choice of it for their residence during their exile, after their defeat at Preston.

ANGHERA, E. lon. 9. 5. lat. 45.

ANGOL, W. lon. 78. lat. 38. a town of Chili, in S. America, 125 m.
N. of Baldivia.

ANGOLA, lies between 10 and 15
degrees of E. lon. and between 5
and 16 degrees of S. lat. It is a country on the S. W. side of Africa, inhabited chiefly by Negroes, and hither
most European nations resort to purchase slaves for their plantations in America; but it is generally agreed, that these Angola Negroes are the least and most untractable of any of the slaves they purchase on the coast of Guiney, for which several reasons are assigned; as that they are brought from far out of the inland parts of Africa, and have had little commerce or conversation with the rest of the world; that they have plenty of all manner of provisions in their country, and are not used to labour and hardships, as the Negroes who live upon the gold coast in a very barren country, are. This country is divided amongst abundance of petty princes and states, and the Portuguese have several colonies and considerable settlements on the coast, pretending to a dominion over the Negroes in their neighbourhood; but the English and Dutch, and other European nations, however, traffic with the Negroes on this coast without restraint.

ANGOULESME, E. lon. 10 min.
lat. 45. 40. the capital of the pr. of Angoumois, in France, sit. on the top of a mountain, surrounded with rocks, at the foot whereof runs the river Charente, 64 m. S. E. of Rochelle, and 250 m. S. W. of Paris.
The city is a bish. see, and contains about 8000 souls.

ANGOUMOIS, is bounded by the

Turkey, in the pr. of Natolia, and
ter. of Amasia, sit. on the river Melus, 212 miles E. of Constantinople.
It is a large populous city, containing 40,000 Mahometans, 4000 Armenians, and 1000 Greeks; near this city Pompey obtained a signal victory over Mithridates; and here Tamerlane was victorious over Bajazet, the emperor of the Turks.

ATHENS, E. lon. 24. 15. lat. 38. 5. the capital of Achaia anciently, and now Livadia, a pr. of Turkey in Europe, and the city called Setines. It stands in the middle of a large plain, near the river Ilissus, about 40 m. E. of the isthmus of Corinth, being at present about 4 m. in circumference, and containing about 15,000 souls, three parts whereof are Christians; and though it is no longer the seat of the Muses, the natives are observed to have a good share of wit. The present town does not lie round the castle as anciently, but on the N. W. side of it; the temple of Minerva in the castle is still entire, having been converted into a Christian church, and since into a Turkish mosque, which late travellers assure us, is, without comparison, the finest temple now in the world: this city, as well as all the rest of Greece is now subject to the Turks.

ATHENREE, W. lon. 8. 50. lat. 53. 14. a town of Ireland in the co. of Gallway, and pr. of Connaught, sit. 10 m. E. of Gallway; and gives title of Baron to the family of Bermingham Earl of Louth. It sends two members to parl.

N.W. of Fort St. George, and as many E. of Goa, formerly the residence of the kings of Golconda, but this and the whole pr. is now sub. to the Mogul. It was most taken notice of for a magnificent reservoir of water and fountains, round which was built a colonnade, supported by arches, which afforded a refreshing coolness in the hottest season. Asia.

BAGNIALACK, E. lon. 18. 23. lat. 44. 0. a large city of the pr. of Bosnia, in European Turkey, sit. 60 m. N. E. of Spalatto, and 50 m. S. W. of Posgea.

BAHAMA, or Lucaya islands, sit. in the Atlantic ocean, between 21 and 27 degrees of N. lat. and between 73 and 81 degrees of western lon. are very numerous, but there are about 12 of them of a considerable extent. The gulph of Florida, or Bahama, through which the Spanish galleons sail in their way to Europe, lies between these islands and the continent of Florida. America.

BAHAMA proper, which gives its name to the rest, is sit. between 78 and 81 deg. of W. lon. and between 26 and 27 deg. of N. lat. These islands were discovered by Columbus, anno 1492, in his search of America. The island of St. Salvador, one of the Bahama islands, was the first land Columbus discovered when his men despaired of finding any, and were about to throw him overboard, which occasioned his giving the island the name of St. Salvador; but see more of these islands in the description of the island of Providence, now fortified by the English, and commands the rest of the Bahama-islands.

BAHAREN island, E. lon. 40. lat. 26. an island in the Persian gulph in Asia, where was one of the most considerable pearl-fisheries in the world, but disused at present.

BAHUS, E. lon. 11. 10. lat. 57. 53. cap. of the pr. of Bahus, in Sweden, sit. near the sea called the Schagger-rach, 20 m. N.W. of Gottenburgh.

BAJA, or BALIA, E. lon. 14. 45. lat. 41. 6. a town of Italy in the K. of Naples, and ter de Lavoro, sit. on the sea-coast 12 m. W. of the city of Naples. This city was famous for its hot baths and elegant palaces in the time of the Romans, and here they still shew the ruins of buildings which they denominate the palaces of Cæsar, Pompey, Cicero, and other Romans of distinction; and that little spot called the Elysian fields, lies about a mile from Baja, but has not much to render it admired at present.

BAJA, or BAYA, a town in Hungary. See BAYA.

BALASTRO, W. lon. 20 min. lat. 41. 50. capital of the ter. of Balastro, in the pr. of Arragon, in Spain, sit. on the river Vero, 42 m. N. E. of Saragossa; a bish. under the archb. of Saragossa.

BALNEC, E. lon. 37. 30. lat. 33. 35. a town of Asiatick Turkey, sit. at the foot of mount Libanus, 37 m. N. of Damascus, in Syria; the ancient Heliopolis, or city of the Sun, of which there are most magnificent ruins still remaining, particularly some stones in the walls upwards of twenty yards in length, four yards broad, and four in depth each of them. It is sub. to the Turks, but inhabited chiefly by Greek Christians.

BALCH, E. lon. 65. 20. lat. 37. a city of Ubec Tartary in Asia, cap. of a ter. of the same name, sit. on the frontiers of Persia, 200 m. S. of Bochara.

BALDIVIA, or Valdivia, W. lon. 80. 5. S. lat. 40. 5. a port-town of the pr. of Chi i, in S. America, sit. 300 m. N. of St. Jago, and 100 m. N. E. of the island of Chiloe. This town was founded by that celebrated Spanish general Baldivia, about the year 1551, after he had spent upwards of eleven years in the conquest of that valuable country of Chili, and built St. Jago, the capital, and many other towns. To this he gave his own name, and reserved the country about it to himself, there being greater plenty of gold in the neighbouring mountains, than in any part of America; but he had the misfortune after all his conquests to be defeated and taken prisoner by the Chileans, who put him to death, his said, by pouring melted gold down his throat, after which he seemed to have so insupportable a thirst. The Chileans afterwards recovered Baldivia, and many other towns; driving the Spaniards out of the inland country, but they remained however possessed of several places on the coast.

The Dutch, and after them the English, attempted to settle at Baldivia, but were compelled to retire from thence, either by the Spaniards or natives, or both; and the Spaniards are masters of Baldivia at this day.

BALDOE, a market-town of Hertfordshire, 37 m. from London, on the great Northern-road.

BALARES, the ancient name for the islands of Majorca, Minorca, and Ivica, sit. in the Mediterranean sea, S. of Catalonia, in Spain.

BALI, E. lon. 115. 30. S. lat. 3. 5. This island and the east end of the island of Java, form a strait about a mile over, thro' which the East-India merchant-ships sometimes return to Europe from China. It is a difficult passage on account of the contrary winds, which burst thro' the straits once in 24 hours. Asa.

BALISORE, E. lon. 87. lat. 21. 30. a port-town of the hither India, sit. on the N.W. part of the bay of Bengal, 180 m. S.W. of Huegley, and 340 m. N. E. of Masapatan, an English factory, where East-India ships, bound for the river Ganges and Bengal, usually take in pilots; sub. to the Mogul. Asa.

BANDA, or Lantor, E. lon. 123. 5. S. lat. 4. 30. This is the chief of the Banda islands, where nutmegs grow; they are all of them very small, scarce any of them 20 m. long, and have the island of Ceraam on the N. the island of Celebes or Macassar on the W. and the ocean on the E. and S. and lies S. E. of Amboyna 170 miles. The mace covers the nutmeg as the husk covers a nut. These islands have been always much esteemed on account of their producing these spices. The Arabs first brought them to Egypt and the coasts of the Levant, and from thence they were distributed all over Europe. The Portuguese having found the way to Asia round the cape of Good Hope, about the year 1500, trafficked with the natives of India, and brought these spices to Europe. The Dutch invaded these islands about the year 1609, when the natives put themselves under the protection of the English, and acknowledged the K. of England their sovereign; but the Dutch expelled both the natives and the English, usurped the dominion of them, and keep possession of them to this day, excluding all other nations from these valuable spices, which will grow nowhere else, it is pretended. Asia.

BARACOA, W. lon. 70. 10. lat. 23. 0. a town on the N. E. part of the island of Cuba, in N. America, 30 m. N. E. of St. Jago de Cuba.

BARANCO, W. lon. 75. 30. lat. 21. 0. a port town of St. Martha, in Terra Firma, sit. on the river Magdalena, 30 m. S. of the mouth of that river, and 75 m. N. E. of Carthagena; the see of a bishop. America.

BARANWARR, E. lon. 20. 5. lat. 46. 0. a town of Lower Hungary, sit. near the Dapube, 15 m. N. W. of Essek, and 90 m. N. W. of Belgrade, sub. to the house of Austria.

BARBADOS, W. lon. 59. 21. lat. 13. 5. one of the British Caribbean islands, sit. in the Atlantic ocean, more easterly southerly than any of the rest, 60 m. S. E. of Martinico, and 70 m. E. of St. Vincent, being 25 m. in length, and 13 in breadth; a level country, generally with some small hills; and but little wood upon it. They produce sugar, rum, cotton, indigo, and ginger; their fruits, oranges, citrons, pine-apples, guavas, plantains, &c. The coast might easily be made defensible; but the money designed for the fortification is otherwise applied. The sugar-works are upon the decline at present; which, with the oppression of some of their governors, hath induced some of the richest planters to remove. A college has been built and endowed here by the late Col. Codrington, and other benefactors; but it has not yet answered the pious intention of the founders. The number of white inhabitants may be about 20,000, and there may be 100,000 negroes. They receive most of their corn, cattle, flesh, and salted fish, from the northern colonies, and their cloaths and furniture from England. They are subject to hurricanes here in the months of July and August; but not so much as in the other Caribbee islands. The trade-wind at all other times blows constantly from the eastward.

BARBARY. This coast extends itself along the southern shore of the Mediterranean sea, from the 2d degree of W. lon. to the 30th degree of E. lon. that is, from the river Mulvia, which separates it from Morocco on the W. to Egypt on the E. comprehending the countries of Algiers, Tunis, Tripoli, and Barca. Africa. The reigning religion is the Mahometan, and there are some Jews, but no Christians, except the slaves.

BARCELONA. N. 110. 3. W. lat. 26. 10. a town of New Biscay, in North America, 300 m. N. W. of the city of Mexico. There are several rich silver mines in the neighbourhood of this town.

BARBERINO. E. lon. 12. 15. lat. 43. 40. a town of Tuscany, in Italy, 22 m. S. of Florence.

BARBUDA. W. lon. 61. 3. lat. 18. 5. one of the British Caribbee isles, sit. 45. N. of Antego, about 20 m. lon. and 12 broad. The natives apply themselves chiefly to the breeding cattle, and raising provisions for the neighbouring islands. It is the property of the Codrington family, who have great numbers of negroes here as well as in Barbadoes; and have given large benefactions to have them instructed in the Christian religion. America.

BARCA, is sit. on the S. coast of the Mediterranean, between Tripoli and Egypt; a barren desert for the most part. Here was the ancient Cyrene, and the temple of Jupiter Ammon. Afr. ca.

BARCELONA, E. lon. 2. 5. lat. 41. 26. the capital of Catalonia, in Spain, sit. in a large plain along the shore of the Mediterranean, 150 m. E. of Madrid, 140 m. E. of Saragossa, and 180 m. N. E. of Valencia. The city is of an oblong form, and contains about 15,000 houses, defended by the fort of Montjoy, which stands on a rocky mountain near a mile to the W. of it, by its own walls on the N. and E. and by the sea on the S. there being a mole running out into the sea, which secures small vessels; but the larger ships lie in the road exposed to storms. It is divided into the new and old town, separated from each other by a wall and ditch, the old town inclosing the new. There are several beautiful streets and squares, and it enjoys a good foreign trade. It is the seat of the viceroy of the pr. bish. and univ. The French possessing themselves of this city, and the rest of the Spanish monarchy, anno 1700, K. Charles, the late Emperor, and the earl of Peterborough, took it with a very small force, 4 Oct. 1705; and Philip the late K. of Spain lay siege to it the next year; it was relieved by the earl of Peterborough and admiral Leake, the French and Spaniards retiring precipitately into France, and leaving all their cannon, ammunition, tents, baggage, sent hither, being frequently men of little experience, have so provoked

the natives, that there have been several attempts to drive them from thence; and in the year 1719, the town and fort were set on fire, great part of the garrison massacred, and the factors expelled: but matters were soon after accommodated, and they were permitted to return again,
and carry on their trade as formerly.
It was taken by the French in the late war; but they were not long able to hold it.

53. the capital of the K. of Prussia's dominions in Germany, sit. on the river Spree, in the mar. of Brandenburg, 90 m. N. of Dresden, and 50 m. W. of Frankfort upon Oder. A city that has been exceedingly improved by the late K. of Prussia in its trade and buildings; and canals are cut from the river Spree to the Oder on the E. and from thence to the Elbe on the W. It has a communication by water, both with the Baltic sea and the German ocean. This city surrendered by capitulation to the Austrian and Russian forces combined, Oct. 9, 1760; but on the 13th they evacuated it again, after levying heavy contributions upon the inhabitants, and plundering the king's palaces and arsenal.

BERMUDA islands, W. lon. 5. 10. lat. 32. 30. sit. in the Atlantic ocean, 500 m. E. of Charlestown, in Carolina. They are a cluster of very small islands, lying in a little compass, almost in form of a shepherd's hook, and containing about twenty thousand acres of ground, surrounded in a manner with rocks, which render them inaccessible to strangers. They enjoy a pure and temperate air, and have plenty of flesh, fish, fowl, and garden-stuff. The natives are usually employed in joiners work, building of sloops, making hats of palm leaves, raising corn and other provisions, which they vend in the W. Indies. They were discovered by one John Bermuda, or Bermudez, a Spaniard, anno 1522; but they were not inhabited by him. In the year 1609, Sir George Summers being cast away upon them, found them deserted, and the English have been in possession of them ever since. Here Dean Berkeley, afterwards bishop of Cloyne, in Ireland, intended to have founded a univ. for the education of Indians; but the captain of the ship mistook his way, and carried him to New England, which frustrated the design.

is one of the most fruitful plains of Italy. The city is about 5 m. in circumference, remarkable for its magnificent churches and monasteries, and the riches and fine paintings in them. The inhabitants computed to amount to 80,000 souls. It is the see of an archb. and one of the most considerable univ. in Europe, sub. to the Pope, and governed by his Vice-Legate. This city long enjoyed a kind of liberty under the protection of the emperor of Germany, till it became subject to P. Nicolas III. anno 1528, and was absolutely annexed to the papal dominions by Julius II.

BOLOGNE, or Boulogne, E. lon. 1. 42. lat. 50. 42. a port-town on the English channel, the cap. of the Bolognois, a ter. of Picardy, in France, sit. at the mouth of the river Laine, 16 m. S. W. of Calais, and 130 N. of Paris. This town was taken by Henry VIII. K. of England, but restored to France again, in consideration of 300,000 crowns. It is the see of a bishop, commonly called by the English Bullen.

BOLSENNA TOWN, E. lon. 11. 3. lat. 42. 37. a town in the Pope's ter. in the D. of Castro, in Italy, sit. 45 m. N. of which it gives its name.

BOMBAY, E. lon. 73. 0. lat. 19. 0. a island on the W. coast of the Hther Peninsula of India, sit. 130 m. S. of Surat, and 200 m. N. of Goa, and 40 m. N. W. of Dumde Ra-japore. This island is 7 m. long, and about 20 m. in circumference, and has a town upon it a mile in length, and a castle well fortified, and some other small towns. The inhabitants are of several nations, viz. English, Portuguese, and Indians, amounting to abut 50,000. In the year 1663, the K. of Portugal transferred the property and dominion of this island to Charles II. K. of England, as part of the portion of the Infanta Catharine, Princess of Portugal, on her marriage with him; and King Charles made a present of it to the English East-India company, who have been in possession of it ever since. The president of the English factory at Surat, is usually governor of the island, and appears like a sovereign prince, attended by his guards, &c. This place is exceedingly well situated for a trade on the continent of India, and is indeed the principal settlement the English have in this part of the world. It was very unhealthy for many years, but governor Bohun, by draining the bogs and swamps, made it as healthful as any of the English settlements on this coast.

BOMENE, E. lon. 4. 5. lat. 51. 50. a port-town of the United Provinces, in the pr. of Zealand, sit. on the N. shore of the island of Schonen, opposite to the island of Goree.

BORNA, a market-town of Lincolnshire, 34 m. S. of Lincoln, 16 N. of Peterborough, and 98 N. of London.

BORNIO island, situate between 107 and 117 degrees of eastern lon. and between 7 degrees 30 min. N. latitude, and 4 degrees of S. latitude; the form of the island almost round, and computed to be 1800 miles in circumference, containing consequently a greater number of acres than any other island in the known world. The Indian ocean separates it from China and India on the N. and N.W. and from the Philippine islands on the N.E. The island of Celebes or Macassar, lies on the S.E. of Bornio, Java on the S. and the island of Sumatra on the W. The sea-coast is usually overflowed for half the year, during the continuance of the rains, and when the waters retire, the coast remains covered with ooze and mud, for which reason their towns consist either of floating-houses in the mouths of their rivers, or houses built upon pillars a great height from the surface; and such a floating town there is in the mouth of the river Banjar, where the English East-India company have their factory, from whence they import chiefly pepper, though sometimes the merchants of the country bring down diamonds and other precious stones, and some gold, or our people purchase them of the Chinese, who carry on a great trade with the natives as well as foreigners.

BORNIO town, E. lon. 121. 27. lat. 4. 55. lies on a bay of the sea, on the N.W. part of the island. This is not a place of any great traffic; foreigners usually resorting to the S.E. part of the island, which is under the dominion of the Sultan of Chyntong, whose capital lies about 160 m. up the river Banjar; for the island is divided into several kingdoms, of which the most powerful Prince assumes a superiority over the rest, at least this is the case in that part of the island near the coast, which is inhabited by Mahometans. Those of the inland country are Pagans, and have different forms of government, but of these we have little knowledge; the people are very swarthy, but not black, and go almost naked. Our East-India company having attempted to build forts upon the coast, near Banjar, their factors were murdered or expelled; but they have since accommodated matters, and are permitted to trade thither again.

BONNORUM, E. lon. 14. 56. lat. 55. 15. an island in the Baltic sea, sit. 16 m. S.E. of the co. of Schonen, in Sweden, and 43 m. N.E. of the isle of Rugen, bet. to Denmark.

BONEVILLE, a town of the N. riding of Yorkshire, sit. 18 m. N.E. of York, and 203 N. of London; sends two members to parliament.

BOSA, or BOSSA, E. lon. 8. 30. lat. 40. 15. a city and port of Sardinia, sit. on the W. coast of the island, at the mouth of the river Bosa, 27 m. N. of Oristagni. The see of a bishop.

BOSNA SENAJO, E. lon. 19. 57. lat. 44. 40. the capital of the pr. of Bosnia, sit. on the frontiers of European Turkey, 160 miles S.W. of Belgrade.

BOSNIA, a frontier pr. of Christendom, divided between the house of Austria and the Turks; that part which lies on the E. of the river Unna, belonging to the Turks, and that part on the W. of that river to the Austrians.

BOSPHORUS, or Straits of Constantinople, divides Europe from Asia. It is about a mile broad between Constantinople on the European side, and Scutari on the Asian side; where the Grand Seignior has a palace, and frequently goes thither attended by the ladies of the Seraglio, and it is indeed so near the city, that it is looked upon as a suburb of Constantinople.

BOSRAO, Bassora, or Basrah, E. lon. 48. 29. lat. 30. 20. a port town of Asiatic Turkey, in the pr. of Euphrate Arabic, sit. on the W. side of the river Euphrates, about 40 m. N. W. of the gulph of Persia, or Bassora. It stands 3 m. W. of the river, but has a communication with it by a navigable canal, to the end whereof large ships come up from the sea. The town is about 12 m. in circumference, and surrounded by a wall and other works, and was taken from the Arabs by the Turks about 160 years ago; however they capitulated to be governed by a prince of their own, and enjoy many other privileges, and as it is a free port is more resorted to than any town on that side of Turkey by foreign merchants.

BOSUPT, E. lon. 4. 30. lat. 50. 32. a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in the pr. of Brabant, 8 m. S. of Louvain.

BOSTON, a port town of Lincolnshire, sit. near the mouth of the river Witham, which falls into the German sea, and 120 m. N. E. of London.

BOSTON, W. lon. 71. 3. lat. 42. 24. the capital of New England, in N. America, sit. on a peninsula at the bottom of a fine bay, covered by small islands and rocks, and defended by a castle and platforms of guns, which render the approach of an enemy very difficult. It lies in the form of a crescent about the harbour, and the country beyond rising gradually, affords a delightful prospect from the sea. There are ten churches in the town, of which six are independents, and the number of souls is computed to be fourteen thousand, and it is one of the most flourishing towns of trade in N. America.

BOSWORTH, a market town in Leicestershire, sit. 10 m. W. of Leicester, and 104 m. N. N. W. of London, rendered memorable by the

lat. 40. 30. the capital of Bithynia, in Asia Minor, sit. in a fine fruitful plain at the foot of mount Olympus, 100 m. S. of Constantinople. The present inhabitants are a mixture of Turks, Armenians, Jews, and Greeks; it is watered by to many rivulets, which descend from mount Olympus, that every house almost has its fountain: the silk of the adjacent country is the best in Turkey; their workmen imitate the European tapestry, and they have good wine and other provisions in great plenty. The celebrated baths of Calista are within a mile of the city, whither people from all countries resort to be cured of their diseases. Mount Olympus, in the neighbourhood of this city, is of a prodigious height, the top barren, and covered with snow the greatest part of the year; but the valleys below are warm, and produce all manner of delicious fruits. This was the seat of the Turkish empire before they passed into Europe, and is still sub. to the Grand Signior.

CADIZ, W. lon. 6. 46. lat. 36. 25.
a city and port-town of the pr. of Andalusia, in Spain, sit. at the N.W.
end of the island of Leon, or Lyon, opposite to port St. Mary's, on the continent, 170 m. S.W. of Madrid, 60 m. S.W. of Seville, and 45 m. N.
W. of Gibraltar. The island it stands upon is in length about 18 m. the
S.W. end about 9 broad, and the N.
W. end, where the town stands, is not 2 m. broad. It has a communication with the continent by a bridge,
and with the opposite shore forms a bay 12 miles long, and 6 broad; but about the middle of the bay are two points of land, one on the continent,
and the other on the island, so near
together that the forts upon them,
called the Puntal and Matagorda,
command the passage; and within these points is the harbour, which it is impossible for an enemy to enter,
till it has taken these forts; and for this reason the English, anno 1702, landed on the continent near St. Mary's, in order to attack the Puntal,
which not being able to reduce, they reimbarked without effecting any thing; but the earl of Essex had better success in the year 1596, when he landed on the island, took the town,
plundered it of a prodigious treasure,
and burnt the galleons in the harbour. The city has about 5000 houses in it, and the best foreign trade of any town in Spain, for the galleons annually take in their loading here, and return hither with the treasures and rich merchandize of Peru and Mexico. Cadiz is the see

CAIRO GRAND, E. lon. 32. 12. lat. 30. 2. the capital of Egypt, in Africa, is sit. in a plain at the foot of a mountain, 2 m. E. of the bank of the river Nile, and 100 m. S. of the mouth of that river. The town is 10 m. in circumference, and may contain a million of inhabitants, and some have computed them at five millions, which must be a mistake, though 'tis certain they are very numerous, 30 or 40 people frequently lodging in one house. Their private buildings make a mean appearance on the outside, but are often very richly furnished and adorned within, and their chief mosques or temples very magnificent. The castle stands on the top of a hill on the S. side of the city, and is 3 miles round, of great antiquity, but hardly so ancient as the natives give out, who imagine it was built by the Patriarch Joseph, and shew a well near the top of it, near 300 foot deep, to which they have given the name of Joseph's well, and is the only well almost in the country. There is a grand Bazar, or market-place, in the middle of the city, but the streets are generally narrow, except the Khalis, or Grand Canal, which runs through the middle of it, from one end to the other, into which they let the water of the river Nile when it rises to a certain height, and from this canal the water is let into others, and distributed to the adjacent fields and gardens. The Khalis remains dry one half of the year, and appears a spacious street. The plague usually visits Cairo once in three or four years, and is observed to decrease as the waters of the Nile rise. Either on the site of this city, or near it, it is supposed that ancient Egyptian Babylon stood. The English, and other Europeans, have their consuls and factors here at this day, for the protection and management of the Turkey trade on that side.

CAIROAN, E. lon. 9. 18. lat. 36. a town of the K. of Tunis, in Africa, sit. on the river Magrida, 80 m. S. of Tunis.

CALAHORRA, W. lon. 2. 7. lat. 42. 12. a town of Old Castile, in Spain, sit. on the river Ebro, near the confines of Navarre, 70 m. E. of Burgos, and 62 m. N.W. of Saragossa.

CALAIS, E. lon. 2. 6. lat. 50. 58. the capital of the Pais Reconquis, in the pr. of Picardy, in France, sit. on the coast of the English channel, 27 m. S.E. of Dover, and 152 N. of Paris. Taken by Edward III. King of England, anno 1347, and lost in the reign of Q. Mary, anno 1557. It was anciently a good harbour, but is so choked up that it will not admit of any vessels of burden at present. The town is well fortified, and a citadel commands both town and country, but its greatest strength is in its situation among the marshes. It may be overflowed on the approach of an enemy; there is a canal running from it to St. Omers, Graveline, Dunkirk, Bergues, and Ypres. It consists but of one parish; and yet the inhabitants are computed at 4000.

CALCEDON, E. lon. 29. 7. lat. 41. 30. a city of Bithynia, in the Lesser Asia, once the capital of the country, stood on the Asian side of the Bosphorus, or strait of Constantinople, opposite to that city, and near the place where the seraglio or palace of Scutari now stands. Here the 4th general council was held, anno 451, and it made a great figure at that time, but is now dwindled to a little village.

CALCINATO, E. lon. 9. 55. lat. 45. 25. a small town in the D. of Mantua, in Italy, sit. 10 m. S. of the lake De Garda, most remarkable for a defeat of the Imperialists by the French, commanded by the D. of Vendôme, anno 1706.

CALCUTTA on the river Hughley, in Bengal, taken by the Nabob from the English in 1756, when the garrison and English factors were thrust into the black-hole, where most of them miserably perished for want of air. It was retaken in 1757, by vice-admiral Watson and colonel Clive, now lord Clive. See WILLIAM'S FORT.

CALEDONIA, W. lon. 79. 12. lat. 8. 7. a settlement the Scots made on the W. side of the gulph or river of Darien, in S. America, anno 1698. It stood on a peninsula, inaccessible almost to an enemy, and from whence they could not have been driven by the Spaniards, if the English E. India company had not made an interest in the English court to prohibit their colonies in America affording them any provisions or assistance; which orders obliged them, anno 1700, to abandon a colony that would have been of infinite service to Great Britain in the late wars. Caledonia also was the ancient name of part of Scotland.

CALENBURG CASTLE, E. lon. 9. 43. lat. 52. 20. capital of the D. of Calenberg, in Lower Saxony, in Germany, sit. on the river Leine, 15 m. S. of Hanover, and subject to the D. of Brunswick-Lunenburg, Elector of Hanover, and King of England, CALICOUAN, or Quilon, E. lon. 75. 21. lat. 9. 5. a town on the Malabar coast, on the Hither Peninsula of India, sit. 150 m. S. of Calicut. Here the Dutch have a factory.

CALICUT, E. lon. 76. 4. lat. 12. 21. a town sit. on the Malabar coast in the Hither Peninsula of India, in Asia, 300 m. S. of Goa, and 320 m. S. W. of Fort St. George, subject to its own prince. This was the first land the Portuguese discovered in India, when they found the way by the Cape of Good Hope, anno 1498.

CALLAN, W. lon. 7. 22. lat. 52. 25. a town of Ireland, in the co. of Kilkenny, and pr. of Leinster, sit. 10 m. S. W. of Kilkenny; sends two members to parl.

CALLIFORNIA, is sit. between 116 and 138 degrees of W. lon. and between 23 and 46 degrees of N. lat. It lies almost in the form of a cone reversed, and is either an island or peninsula, most properly the latter, which has the Pacific ocean on the N. W. and S. and the gulph of California, which separates it from the Mexico on the E. unless it be joined to that continent by a narrow isthmus on the N. W. The Spanish missionaries from Mexico have lately visited most parts of Callifornia, and made many profelytes to Christianity, who acknowledge the King of Spain for their sovereign; and they relate that it is a fine fertile country, producing all the necessaries and conveniences of life. Sir Francis Drake, in his voyage round the world, visited the N. W. part of this country in 1578, and took possession of it in the name of Q. Elizabeth; but the Eng-

capital of the pr. of Gothland, in Sweden, sit. on the coast of the Baltic sea, 40 m. N. of Carelsruon, and 150
S. W. of Stockholm.

CALMUCKS, wandering tribes, or herds of Tartars, who inhabit the country North of the Caspian sea;
and sometimes put themselves under the protection of Russia, visiting the city of Astracan and the adjacent country one or twice a year.

CALNE, a borough town in Wiltshire, 88 m. from London, on the Bristol road; sends two members to parl.

CALPA, or Calpe, mountain, W.
lon. 6. lat. 36. at the foot whereof Gibraltar, in the pr. of Andalusia, in Spain, stands. It was anciently supposed to be one of the pillars of Hercules, the other being Abyla, on the opposite coast of Africa. This mountain or rock of Calpa, which covers Gibraltar on the land side, is half a league in height, and so steep that there is no approaching on that side;
whereupon the Spaniards, when they besieged Gibraltar, anno 1727, attempted to undermine the rock and blow it up; but it was found impracticable.

CALVI, E. lon. 24. 50. lat. 41. 13.
a town of the pr. of Lavoro, in Naples,
sit. near the sea, 15 m. N. of Naples.
The see of a bishop.

CALVI, E. lon. 9. 7. lat. 42. 30.
a port town of the island of Corsica,

sit. on a bay on the W. side of the island, 40 m. S. W. of Bastia.

CAM river, anciently called Grant,
rises in Hertfordshire, and running N. E. of Cambridge, afterwards continues its course northward to the isle of Ely, where it falls into the river Ouse.

CAMBATA, or Campay, E. lon.
72. 15. lat. 22. 30. a town of the
pr. of Cambaja, or Guzarat, in the Higher Peninsula of India, in Asia.
sit. at the bottom of the gulph of Cam-
baya, 150 m. N. of Surat, and 500 m.
S. W. of Delly; a very large city, and had once a great trade, which is now removed to Surat. It is sub. to the Mogul.

CAMBODIA, E. lon. 104. 15. lat.
12. 40. the capital of a K. of the same name in India beyond Ganges,
in Asia, sit. near the western shore
of the river Mecon, about 150 m.
North of the mouth of that river.
Cambodia K. extends from the 9th
to the 15th degree of N. lat. being bounded by the K. of Laos on the N. Cochin China and Chiampas, on the E. the Indian ocean on the S. and the bay of Siam on the W. A country annually overflowed in the rainy season, viz. between June and October, as most countries are which lie within the tropic of Cancer and
N. of the Equator, producing rice
and such fruits as are usually found between the tropics.

CAMBRAT, E. lon. 3. 20. lat.
50. 11. the capital city of the Cam-
brefis, in the French Netherlands,
sit. on the river Scheld near its source, 14 m. S. W. of Valenciennes, and 15 m. S. E. of Douay. It is a large well built city, and stands in a fruitful country, considerable for its linen manufactory, especially cambrics,
which took their name from hence.
It is well fortified and defended by two citadels, and as the country about it may be overflowed, it is looked upon to be one of the strongest towns in the Low Countries. It is the sea-of an archb. and sub. to the French;

CAMPANIA of Rome, is a PEN-

of W. lon. and between 27 and 30

about 100 m. N. of the African coast, the most easterly of them about 100 m. from the N. on the coast of Madagascar in Africa.

CANARY, or Canaries, which give its name to the sea, is in 15. 30. degrees of N. lat. and between 15 and 18 degrees of W. lon. and is about 150 m. in circumference; the chief town Palma, from whence comes the excellent ginsack we meet with for the chief products of these islands are thick rich wines, which from them have obtained the name of Canary, and of these the compound for thousand bottlers are best adapted to Britain in time of peace. They may be well called the Portuguese islands, from the power and long possession of the air, which in this warm climate, is constantly refreshed with cool sea breezes. They were first discovered by the Portuguese, but they came afterwards for many ages from the east of the world till they were again discovered, anno 1492, by the Spaniards, who remain in possession of them at this day. There were then some people on these islands, but could not tell which was their mother country, or indeed whether there were any other country, nor did their language, manners, or customs resemble their neighbours on the continents of Africa or Europe, or any other part of the world; but they were of an olive complexion, like the people on the coast of Barbary in Africa.

CANDAHAR, or Candahar, E. lon. 65. 30. lat. 35. 0. capital of a part of the same name, formerly sub. to the Mogul, but at present to Persia, 60. 450 m. N. W. of Lahore, and 200 m. S. W. of Mafched, Asia.

CANDIA island, the ancient Crete, is sit. between 23 and 27 degrees of E. lon. and between 35 and 36 degrees of N. lat. in the Mediterranean sea, having the Archipelago on the N. Asia Minor or Naxos on the E. the Pelopon on the S. W. and

Attica on the S. generally supposed to be in Asia. It is about 100 m. in length, 50 in breadth, and 600 in circumference; 200 m. from Constantinople, and from Damascus 200 m. and 150 from the coast of Cyprus. There is no considerable river in the island; but many small rivulets, of which Lathio is one of the largest; and Mithra the chief mountain, which takes up most part of the middle of the island, and notwithstanding the situation of it we meet with of it in the adjacent parts, it is only a bare barren rock, without trees and herbage, though the valleys beneath are well stocked with all manner of excellent fruits, and the valleys are barren.

CANDIA, or Mithra, E. lon. 25. 30. lat. 35. 26, the capital of the island of Candia, is sit. on the coast on the N. side of the island in a plain at the foot of the mountain, and an excellent harbour, but is checked up to that only small vessels can approach it. It is but the ruin of a city now, which was long and well peopled, while subject to the Venetians, when it had a flourishing trade; and was celebrated for its strength and beauty, but is a perfect heap of ruins, in which condition it has remained ever since it was taken by the Turks, anno 1669, after it had endured a siege of above thirty years, having been stormed six times, and near 200,000 Turks killed under its walls. It is still subject to the Turks.

CANDIAN, a pt. of the British India, in Asia, bounded by China and Malabar on the N. Orissa on the E. Decan on the S. and Guzarat on the W. sit. in the Mogul.

CANDY, E. lon. 70. 12. lat. 7. 15, the capital of the island of Ceylon, in India, sit. in the middle of the island, sub. to the K. of Ceylon, and taken by the Dutch in 1765, and a good town settled there by them.

CANEA, E. lon. 24. 55. lat. 36. 20, is a sea port town on the N.

side of Candia, esteemed the second in the island, and sit. 100 m. W. of the city of Candia. It is a pretty good harbour, but the fortifications as much out of repair, as they are in the other towns of Candia, and in all the Grecian islands, sub. to the Turks.

CANETO, E. lon. 20. 45. lat. 45. 55. a fortified town of Mantua, in Italy, sit. on the Oglio, 12 m. S. W. of Mantua, several times taken and retaken in the late wars; now subject to Austria.

CANOE GULPH or sea, lies between China and Tartary, at the E. end of the long walk Asia.

CANINA, or Epirus, lon. 19. 25. lat. 40. 55. sit. on the E. side of the entrance of the gulph of Venice, having Albania on the N. W. and Thessaly on the S. E. and is a pr. of Turkey, in Europe.

CANOBIA, E. lon. 8. 47. lat. 45. 55. a town of Italy, in the D. of Milan, sit. on the W. side of the lake Maggiore, 30 m. W. of Como.

CANONOR, E. lon. 75. 6. lat. 10. 15. a town on the Malabar coast of India, in Asia, where the Dutch have a fort and factory they took from the Portuguese, anno 1663.

CANORIN ISLE. See SALBETTZ.

CANSO, W. lon. 60. lat. 46. a port town of Acadie, or New Scotland, in N. America, sit. on a narrow strait which separates Acadie from Cape Breton: near this town is a fine fishery for cod-fish, which the French when possessed of Cape-Breton interrupted, if at war with them.

CANTABRI, the ancient inhabitants of Biscay, and the northern provinces of Spain.

CANTERBURY, E. lon. 1. 17. lat. 51. 16. the capital city of the co. of Kent, 46 m. E. of London, and 16 m. N. W. of Dover, being a co. of itself, and an archb. the metropolitan see of the K. and founded by Augustin the monk, by the authority of Pope Gregory, and permission of Ethelbert King of Kent, who Austin converted to christianity about the year 598. It is a large populous trading city, and has a good silk manufactory, introduced by the Walloons and French in the reign of Q. Elizabeth, being driven out of their country on account of religion. The cathedral is a large superb structure, and was once very famous for the shrine of Thomas Becket; sends two mem. to parl.

CANTIN CAPE, a promontory in the Atlantic ocean, on the coast of Morocco, in Africa, sit. in 9 degrees 9 min. W. lon. and 32. 49. N. lat.

CANTIRE, a peninsula of Scotland, stretching into the Irish sea W. of the isle of Arran.

CANTON, or Kanton, E. lon. 112. 27. lat. 25. 20. a large populous wealthy city, and port town of the pr. of Quantong, or Canton in China, in Asia, sit. on the river Ta, 50 m. from the Indian ocean, upwards of a thousand miles S. of the capital city of Pekin. Canton is a very secure and commodious harbour, and the only port at present to which the European merchants resort; and from whence they import raw and wrought silks, China ware, tea, cabinets, and other lacquered wares, gold dust, copper, rhubarb, &c. This city is walled and fortified and is said to exceed all the cities of Asia, in temples, courts, and palaces, and must be immensely rich; all the trade of this large empire with the European nations, centring here. Notwithstanding their trade with the Christians is so considerable, they will not suffer a Christian to come within the walls of the town; they are admitted no farther than the suburbs.

CANTONS, the provinces of Switzerland so called.

CANTZ, or Canth, E. lon. 16. 40. lat. 51. 6. a town of Silesia, 6 m. W. of Breslaw.

CAORLO, E. lon. 15. 12. lat. 46. 20. an Italian island at the bottom of the gulph of Venice, sit. 20 m. S. W. of Aquileia, sub. to Venice. It has a town.

E. lon. 14. 43. lat. 40. 31. sit. at the entrance of the gulph of Naples, 3 m.
W. of the continent, and 20 m. S.
of the city of Naples. The island is 4 m. long and 1 broad, the W. end of it a vast high rock, inaccessible by sea, on which is the town of Caprea. The rock is covered with a fruitful soil,
producing corn and all manner of delicious fruits. This island the Emperor Augustus chose for his retirement, and it was the residence of Tiberius several years, where he is said to have had palaces and pleasure houses suitable to every season of the year, with a great variety of gardens and groves; but the works under ground were the most extraordinary; the rocks were all undermined, and there were prisons, galleries, high-ways, bagnios, and subterraneous retirements suitable to his taste, which, with the magnificent buildings on the surface, made it appear like one continued city at a distance, of which there still remain great ruins. These works having been demolished by the Romans
after the death of Tiberius, in detest-ation; 'tis said, of the unnatural scenes that had been acted there.
The city of Caprea is the see of a bishop at present.

CAPUA, E. lon. 15. 5. lat. 41.
7. a town of the pr. of Lavoro, in Naples, sit. on the river Volturno, 6 m. E. of the sea coast, 15 m. N. E.
of the city of Naples, and 95 m. S. E.
of Rome. It is a declining city, but pleasantly situated in a fine plain;
here Hannibal and his officers trifled
away their time, while the Romans recovered from their consternation after the battle of Cannæ. It was taken

taken by the Allied Army in 1707; and is the see of an archb. at present.

CARACOS, or St. John de Leon, W. lon. 66. 45. lat. 10. 6. a town on the coast of Terra-Firma, in S. America, to which it gives its name, and where the best Cacao or Chocolate nuts grow.

OZANES, or Maccaster island, is sit. between 116 and 124 degrees of E. lon. and between 2 degrees N. and 6 degrees S. lat. being 500 m. long, and generally 200 broad. The air of this island is hot and moist; and lying under or very near the equator, subject to great rains above six months in the year. It has the Philippine islands on the N. the Molucca and Banda islands on the E. and the island of Borneo on the W. The natives are most remarkable for their skill in poisonous drugs and herbs, which abound in this island, as well as opium. They poison their darts, which they blow thro' hollow trunks, and the least wound they make is mortal.

The Dutch joining with the natives against the Portuguese, first expelled them, and then usurped the dominion of the island, where they have such strong fortresses and numerous garrisons, that they treat the natives, both princes and people, as their slaves; though it was a great while before they could effect this, the inhabitants being generally a brave hardy people; and are hired by most of the Indian nations and Europeans who have settlements in that part of the world, to serve in their troops. The chief reason the Portuguese and the Dutch after them had for subduing this island, was, that it lay near the Molucca and Banda islands, where the cloves and nutmegs grow; and they could never secure their possession of those fine spices unless they were masters of this island; and still, if any other nation should join the natives, and expel the Dutch from hence, it would be so difficult matter to come in for a share of those spices, which they robbed the English of in time of full peace.

S. lat. an island in the Indian ocean,
having the islands of Molucca and Gilolo on the N. and Amboyna and the Banda islands on the S. and is about 120 m. long, and 40 broad, a mountainous woody country, where the Dutch have a fortress which keeps the natives in subjection, and contributes to defend their possession of the spice islands. The inhabitants of these and the neighbouring islands were reported to be cannibals by the first Europeans that visited them; but upon a better acquaintance with that people, there seems to be very little foundation for the charge.

the middle of the island, who resides
at his capital city of Candy, while the Dutch monopolize all the cinnamon which this island only produces,
and suffer no other nation to trade
with the natives, or get any cinnamon but what they purchase of them. They pretended to assist the K. of Ceylon against the Portuguese,
who had several towns and fortresses
on the coast; and when they had driven the Portuguese out, usurped

the dominion of the country, and in 1765, they attacked the city of Candy alio, and have established a governor there of their own.

CHINA, including Chinese Tartary, is sit. between 95 and 135 degrees of E. lon. and between 21 and 55 degrees of N. lat. being bounded by Russian Tartary on the N. by the Pacific ocean on the E and S. and by Tonquin, Tibet, and the territories of Russia on the W. from which it is separated by the river Argun, being about 2000 miles in length from N. to S. and 1500 in breadth from E. to W. It is usually divided into 16 provinces, which will be described in their alphabetical order, as they occur. In these provinces it is computed there are 155 capital cities, 1312 of the second rank, 2357 fortified towns, and upwards of ten millions of families, which may amount to fifty millions of people; and some have computed them at fifty-eight millions. There are several very large rivers, and where these are wanting, the whole country is cut through with navigable canals; and a brisk trade driven on them from one end of the K. to the other. There is a long wall of stone 1500 miles in length, which the Chinese built to defend themselves against the incursions of the Tartars; but the Tartars notwithstanding, made a conquest of their country, about 150 years since; and they are now governed by Tartar princes, who permit them however to retain their own laws, obliging them them only to cut off their hair; and as to religion, they were all Pagans, and so no great change made in it. The Popish missionaries had once made a considerable number of proselytes amongst them, but have lately been expelled the K.

The chief produce of this country is silk, tea, china, japan ware, and gold dust, of which every maritime people of Europe, almost, import a great deal, sending them silver in return.

The Europeans complain of them as very tricking unfair dealers; and that their custom-house officers take all opportunities of extorting money from foreigners.

Their writing and printing is a sort of short-hand, every character expressing a word, and sometimes a sentence. They have not the use of letters.

The Emperor is an absolute Prince, but all his laws and acts must be passed by a certain great council of his nobility, before they are of any force; however he does not want means to oblige them to yield their assent to what he proposes, any more than the sovereigns in this part of the world.

The government requires a profound submission of children to their parents; they even make statues and images to represent their ancestors, and worship them in their houses; and mutual civility among all men is enjoined by law, which seems to have made them a nation of hypocrites, having very little regard to the solemn professions they make of their friendship.

The revenues of the crown are computed at 21 millions sterling, which is not difficult to know, because an account of every man's family, estate, and substance, is taken every year and enrolled.

Their forces are said to consist of five millions of men in time of peace; a militia that are very seldom raised, having few enemies since the union of Tartary with China. Peking is the capital of the whole Empire.

CHIOS, Xio, or Scio, an island called by the Turks Saki Saduc, lies near the coast of Ionia, in the Lesser Asia, about 100 m. W. of Smyrna. It is a mountainous rocky island, 100 m. in circumference, almost destitute of water in dry summers. It is computed there are about 10,000 Turks, 3000 Latins, and 100,000 Greeks in the island; and the Greeks have 300 churches here, besides chapels and monasteries. A Cadi, or Mahometan ecclesiastic, has the administration of the civil government, and an Aga of the Janisaries has the command of the soldiers. The soil produces great plenty of excellent wines. It was from hence the ancients had their nectar. They have also oil and silk, oranges and lemons, and the best mastic, but very little corn.

CHIOS, the capital of the island of Chios, E. lon. 27. 14. lat. 38. 5. is sit. on the E. coast of the island. magistrates arbitrary, being restrained
by no written law. Their religio is downright Paganism, and they are as superstitious as any people, great observers of times and seasons, and of lucky and unlucky days, and Padua, and ter. of Venice, 30 m. S. W. of Padua.

COLOGNE, E. lon. 6. 37. lat. 50.
50. the capital of the archb. of Co-logne, and of the circle of the Lower Rhine, in Germany, sit. on the river
Rhine, 45 miles E. of Maestricht, 62 m. N. of Triers, and 400 m. N. W.
of Vienna. It is an imperial city,
and one of the largest and most elegant of Germany, and has a great trade, especially in wines; but the strength of its fortifications is not much to be depended on. King Charles II. being pleased with the situation of the town, spent the two last years of his exile here.

The government of the city is lodged in the magistrates and burghers, consisting of six burgo-masters,
seven aldermen, and 150 common-
council-men, who continue for life,
and two of the burgo-masters are regents annually by turns; but then the aldermen are appointed by the elector, without whose concurrence
no law can be made, and the elector
appoints the judges in criminal cases;
he also claims the command of the militia, and the defence of the city,
so that it appears to be a mixed government. The inhabitants are for the most part Roman-Catholics, but many of the principal merchants and tradersmen are Protestants, of whom the Lutherans have a church allowed them in the city; but the Calvinists
are obliged to go as far as Mulheim,
two miles on the other side of the Rhine, to their public worship. The elector has two palaces in the city, but usually resides at Bonn, 10 m. S.
of Cologne.

COLOGNE electorate extends upwards of 70 miles along the western shore of the Lower Rhine, in Germany, but is not more than 7 or 8 miles broad, sit. between 50 degrees 30 min. and 51. 30. N. lat. and bounded by the D. of Clèves on the N. by the river Rhine, which divides it from the D. of Berg, on the E. by the Electorate of Triers
on the S. and by the D. of Juliers and the Netherlands on the W. and is a fruitful country, abounding in corn, wine, pasture, and all necessities of life. The late elector (of the house of Bavaria) was bish. of Osnabrug, Paderborn, and Hildesheim;
but by the treaty of Westphalia, Osnabrug, &c. are alternately to be possessed by Protestants and Papists,
and the nomination is in the house
of Brunswick-Lunenbourg; so that on the death of the late Elector, his present majesty K. George III. head of that house, nominated his second son Prince Frederick, born 16 Aug. 1763, to the bishoprick of Osnabrug, and he was elected accordingly 27 Feb. 1764.

The elector of Cologne is archchancellor of the empire for Italy; and has a right with the elector of Mentz to consecrate the Emperor. The revenues of Cologne are computed to amount to 130,000*l.* per annum.

Conde, E. lon. 21 min. lat. 44. capital of the Condomois, in the pr. of Gascony, in France, sit. 75 miles S.E. of Bourdeaux, and 12 miles S.W. of Agen. The see of a bishop.

CONDEN, or PAUL CONDOR, E. lon. 104. 30. lat. 9. 30. a little island in the Indian ocean, sit. 60 m. S. of the K. of Cochinchina. It is a fruitful country, and has a commodious harbour, which induced the English East-India company to make a settlement here, anno 1702; but not agreeing with the natives, most of their factors were murdered by the Cochinchinese; and the rest were driven from thence, anno 1705.

CONFUCIUS, a Chinese philosopher and lawgiver, worshipped by the Chinese.

CONGO, sit. on the W. coast of Africa, between 10 and 20 degrees of E. lon. and between the equator and 18 degrees of S. lat. comprehending the countries of Loango, Angola, and Benguella; is bounded by the K. of Benin on the N. the inland parts of Africa on the E. by Mataman, a part of Caffaria on the S. and by the Atlantic ocean on the W. and is sometimes called, The Lower Guiney, where the European merchants purchase great numbers of slaves; the chief town S. Salvador. It is sub. to several Negro Princes; but as the Portuguese have a great many settlements on this coast and in the inland country, they pretend to the dominion of the whole, and that those princes are their vassals; however, the trade is open to all the nations in Europe, that please to traffic with the natives. The capital of all the Portuguese settlements in this part of Africa is the city of Loango, sit. in a small island near the coast, in 2 degrees S. lat.

CONI, E. lon. 7. 30. lat. 44. 23. a strong town of Piedmont, in Italy, capital of the ter. of Coni, sit. on the river Stura, 35 m. S. of Turin, and and 55 N. of Nice, besieged several times by the French, who have been as often obliged to raise the siege, particularly in the year 1744, when great numbers of their troops were destroyed in their attacks, or by the want of the season and the roads, in their retreat. A battle also was fought near this town during the last siege, wherein great numbers were killed on both sides, and the K. of Sardinia was obliged to retire and leave the French masters of the field; however, he found an opportunity of throwing a reinforcement of troops into the town during the action, and the French were soon after obliged to retire from before it.

CONINGSECK, E. lon. 9. 20. lat. 47. 50. capital of the co. of Coningseck, in the circle of Suabia, in Germany, 20 m. N. of Constance.

CONNAUGHT, the most westerly pr. of Ireland. It is about 130 miles in length, and 24 in breadth; but has no rivers of any note but the Shannon. It contains one archb. 3 bishopricks, 6 counties, 7 market-towns, 8 places of trade, 10 boroughs that send members to parl. and 330 parishes. The prin. town is Galway.

CONNECTICUT, a pr. of New-England in N. America, bounded by the Massachusetts colony on the N. E. by the sea on the S. and by New-York on the W. being about 100 m. in length, and 80 in breadth. This colony, tho' usually stiled a pr. of New-England, is a distinct government, and of a different form from that of New-England, having the choice of its own governor, deputy-governor, council, and assembly, as the colony of Rhode-Island has (tho' that also is frequently deemed dependent on New-England) and these are called charter governments.

CONNOR, W. lon. 6. 28. lat. 54. 50. a town of Ireland, in the co. of Antrim, and pr. of Ulster, sit. 6 m. N. of Antrim. The see of a bish.

CONQUERRA, or Conques, W. lon. 9. 50. lat. 45. 55. a port-town of Britany, in France, sit. on the bay of Biscay, 40 m. S. E. of Brest, and 20 N. W. of Port-Lewis.

CONSEANS, or COVSEANS, the S. W. division of Gascony, in France.

CONSTANCE, E. lon. 9. 22. lat. 47. 37. an elegant city in Germany, in the cir. of Suabia, sit. on the S. W. shore of the lake of Constance, 62 m. S. W. of Ulm, and as many S. E. of of Friburg. It is the see of a bish. who is a Prince of the Empire; but the city, tho' formerly a free imperial city, is now subject to the house of Austria; and the bishop whose power here is very considerable, usually resides at Merzburg, on the side of the lake. Here was held a council, anno 1514, for putting an end to a schism in the church, three Popes pretending a right to the infallible chair at the same time; they were all deposed; and Martin V. elected Pope. In this council the doctrines of Wickliff were condemned for heresy, and his bones ordered to be burnt 40 years after he was dead.

CONSTANCE LAKE, on which the city stands, is 30 m. long, and 8 or 10 broad; and the river Rhine runs through it with so strong a current, that it does not mix its waters with those of the lake, as 'tis said.

CONSTANTINA, E. lon. 7. 12. lat. 36. 4. the capital of the pr. of Constantia, in the K. of Algiers, in Africa, sit. 125 m. S. E. of Algiers, and 90 m. S. of Beni.

boats; but, frequently, by European nations, the Port being one of the securest and most commodious har-bours in Europe. It is sit on the western shore of the Bosphorus, or Strait of Constantinople, in the pr. of Romania. The city is built in the form of a triangle, and the ground rising gradually from the shore, the whole town appears at one view from the sea. The seraglio, or palace, is built upon a point of the triangle,
 which runs out between the Propontis
 and the harbour, and underneath the palace are the gardens, which extend to the water-side. It is surrounded by a wall of no great strength, about 22 miles in circumference, exclusive of Galata, and the other suburbs. The streets are narrow, and the private houses mean, built chiefly of wood;
 so that when a fire happens, thousands of them are sometimes destroyed; but the public buildings,
 palaces, mosques or temples, bagmies,
 and ovalsales for the entertainment of strangers, are many of them very magnificent. The chief mosque, particularly, which was formerly the metropolitan church of St. Sophia, is said to be the finest temple in the world, covered with five extensive domes or cupolas.

There is a public market daily held at Constantinople, for slaves of both sexes; where men purchase wives,
 concubines, and servants at pleasure;
 who have been either taken prisoners
 in Christian countries, or purchased by brokers of their friends. These brokers are generally Jews, who make a trade of purchasing children in Georgia, Circassia, and other Christian or Pagan countries, and selling them to the Turks; for no Mahometan is made a slave, and indeed they offer freedom to their Christian captives of the male sex, if they will apostatise; but as for the women,
 they will never part with them, or make them an offer of their liberty.
 It is not material, they think, what religion women are of, and often take Infidels, as they call them, into their embraces, than native Turkes.

 Constantine the Great, being obliged to reside in the East, chose this place
 for his abode, and rebuilt it after the model of Rome. It was taken by the Turks in May 1453, who have kept possession of it ever since. According to M. Tournefort, it is 23 miles in circumference, which, with the suburbs, must make the whole about 34 miles. It is said to contain 3770 streets; is 112 m. S. of Adrianople, 760 S. E. of Vienna, 150 E. of Rome, 1500 S. E. of London, 1250 E. of Madrid, 1250 S. E. of Paris, and 2100 S. S. E. of Stockholm.

COPENHAGEN, E. lon. 13. 2. lat.
 55. 51. the capital of the K. of Denmark,

Denmark, sit. on the eastern shore of the island of Zealand, upon a fine bay of the Baltic sea, near the strait, called the Sound, having a commodious harbour, not being distant above 16 miles from the coast of Schonen, in Sweden. The town is about five miles in circumference, and naturally strong, standing in a marshy ground, and fortified after the modern way. The harbour surrounded by forts and platforms, and the entrance so narrow, that but one ship can pass in at a time; but it appears that their fortifications cannot protect them against a bombardment at sea, nor are they secure on that side always against the attacks of a land army; for it seems the Baltic has been so hard frozen some years, that the Swedes have drawn their artillery over the ice, and laid siege to Copenhagen in the winter; and, as the town lies in a morass, it is more easily approached on the land side in winter, than in summer. The buildings of this city make no great figure, but here is a university and an academy established for martial exercises, and engineering, and others for the modern languages and mathematics. It was the seat of an archb., but the Danes, like other Lutheran sovereigns, have reduced their bishops and archbishops to superintendants, and stripped them of their lands and revenues, as well as their power. Copenhagen stands about 360 m. S. W. of Stockholm, 260 N. W. of Vienna; and 500 N. E. of London.

CORINTH, E. lon. 28. 13. lat. 38. 24. a city of European Turkey, called by them Gerame, sit. near the Isthmus, between the gulphs of Engia and Lepanto, having Achaia on the N. and the Morea on the S. 40 miles N. W. of Athens, 30 m. E. of Patras, and 70 m. N. by E. of Lacedemon, or Mistra. The buildings are not now contiguous, but intermixed with fields and gardens, which make it look like a village. The castle is sit. on a high steep rock above it, of very difficult access. The country about it abounds with corn, wine, and oil. From the castle there is one of the finest prospects in the world, having the sea in full view on the E. and W. and a fine country N. and S. The narrowest part of the Isthmus is about six miles over, and on a mount there, called Oneius, were anciently celebrated the Isthmian games; there are still the ruins of a town upon it, and of temples dedicated to the Sun, Neptune, Diana, Pluto, Ceres, and Bacchus, and some remains of the wall built by the Lacedemonians cross the Isthmus from sea to sea, to secure the Peloponnesian peninsula from the incursions of the Athenians, which the Venetians repaired when they were in possession of the Morea. The inhabitants of Corinth are most of them Christians, and it is the see of a Grecian archb. but sub. to the Turks, as all Greece and the Morea are at this day. The Venetians lost the Morea without fighting one battle for it, in the year 1715.

CRICKLADE, a borough-town of Wiltshire, sit. on the river Iſis, 6 m. N. W. of Highworth, near which the river of Thames has its rise; sends two members to parliament.

CRIM-TARTARY, the ancient Taurica Cherſoneſus, is a Peninſula, sit. in the Black-sea, between 40 and 44 degrees of E. lon. and between 44 and 46 degrees of N. lat. having the Palus Meotis on the N. E. and the Black-sea surrounding the rest, except a narrow isthmus which joins it to Little Tartary; the chief towns whereof are Bachiseral and Kassa; the town of Crim, from whence it received its name, being reduced to a village. The Tartars which inhabit this Peninſula, are sub. to the Turks, who were not able to defend them from the invasions and ravages of the Russians, in the years 1738 and 1739, though the Russians quitted the country again, as not tenable, being too far from their frontiers. The Cham or Han of Crim-Tartary, is obliged to furnish the Turks with a body of 30,000 men, when they take the field; they subsist on their plunder, having no other pay; every man takes two or three horses with him on their incursions; to carry off their slaves and booty; and whenever they lose a horse, they immediately seek upon him, inviting their comrades to the entertainment. When they are not at war, their chief traffick is in buying up children in Circassia, and other countries, and selling them to the Turks, who give them rice, coffee, raisins, dates, and cloathing, in return. The country is naturally fruitful, and produces excellent wine, where there are Christian or Jewish inhabitants; but this being a liquor prohibited the Mahometans, they do not cultivate the vine, or indeed any other produce of the earth, any further than necessity compels them.

CROATIA, a frontier pr. of Germany, bounded by Slavonia on the N. and E. by Bosnia on the S. and by Carniola on the W. sub. to the house of Austria.

CROCEIUS, or HOANGSO, a river of China, in Asia, rises in the mountains on the W. of the pr. of Suchuen, and runs along the frontiers of Tartary beyond the great wall, which it re-enters, and then runs S. between the provinces of Kans and Kensi, and passing on E. through the provinces of Honan, Xantum, and Nankin, after a course of near 1000 miles, falls into the bay of Nankin, carrying with it a yellow sort of slime or mud, from whence it is sometimes called the yellow river. And neither the waters of this, or any other of the Chinese rivers are fit to drink, till they are boiled, which is supposed to be one reason of boiling and infusing tea in them.

CROKESBORN, a market-town of Somersetshire, 133 m. from London.

CROMARTIE, W. lon. 3. 41. lat. 57. 40. capital of the shire of Cromartie, in Scotland, sit. on the German sea, at the mouth of the Frith of Cromartie, 12 m. N. E. of Inverness.

CROMER, a market-town in Norfolk, sit. 23 m. N. of Norwich, and 127 N. E. of London.

CROMACH, E. lon. 12. 20. lat. 50. 25. a town of Germany, in the circle of Franconia, and bishoprick of Bamberg, sit. 25 m. N. E. of Bamberg, and subject to that bishop.

CROMBAURG, E. lon. 8. 15. lat. 50. 15. a town of Germany, sit. in the Landgr. of Hesse-Cassel, and sub. to the Landgr. sit. 10 m. N. of Francofort on the Maine.

CROMENBURG, E. lon. 12. 50. lat. 56. a fortress of Denmark, sit. on the island of Zealand, at the entrance of the Sound; where the Danes take toll of such ships as are bound for the Baltic. It is built upon piles; and was very richly furnished before it was pillaged by the Swedes in 1658.

CRONSLÖT, or CROWN-CASTLE, E. lon. 30. lat. 60. a castle and harbour in the little island of Cronslöt, in the mouth of the river Neva, and entrance of the gulph of Finland, in Russia, sit. 12 m. W. of Petersburg, a station of the Russian men of war; where there are great magazines of naval stores, docks and yards for building of ships.

CRONSTAT, E. lon. 25. lat. 47. a town of Transilvania, sit. near the frontiers of Moldavia, 50 m. N. E. of Hermanstat, sub. to the house of Austria.

CROSSEN, E. lon. 15. 20. lat. 52. 5. a town of Silesia, sit. on the Oder, 35 miles N. W. of Glogaw, capital of the Dutchy of Crossen, in the Marche of Brandenburg.

CROTOT, E. lon. 1. 45. lat. 50. 15. a town of France, sit. in the pr. of Picardy, at the mouth of the river Somme, 14 m. N. W. of Abbeville.

CROWLAND, a market-town, in Lincolnshire, sit. 11 m. N. E. of Peterborough, and 88 N. by W. of London.

CROWN POINT, 75 W. lon. 44 N. lat. a strong fort on the W. side of the gut or river which connects Lake Sacrament with Lake Champlain. After several unsuccessful attempts, during the late war, it was taken by Gen. Amherst, in August 1759. This post secures all the British dominions that are behind it, from the inroads of the French and Indians, who infested the whole country, so long as this important place (originally within the limits of New-York) continued in possession of the French.

CROYDON, a market-town in Surrey, sit. 10 m. S. of London, on the road to Lewes. The archbishop of Canterbury has a palace here.

CRUZ, or CROIX (St.) W. lon. 65. 2. lat. 17. 55. one of the Caribbee islands in America, sit. in the Atlantic ocean, 60 m. S. E. of Porto Rico; sub. to France.

CUBA, an island of N. America, sit. in the Atlantic ocean, between 65 and 83 degrees of W. lon. and between 20 and 23 degrees of N. lat. being 800 m. and upwards in length from E. to W. and generally about 70 m. broad. A ridge of hills pretty well covered with wood, running through the middle of the island from E. to W. but the lands near the coast generally a plain champaign country. There are a great many rivulets running from the hills N. and S. but they have a very short course. There are also abundance of commodious harbours about the island, one particularly on the S. W. part of the island, where the English admiral and general landed several thousand men, in July 1741, and encamped there in a fine plentiful country; but the rainy season coming coming on, they lay there till most of them rotted, and then returned to Jamaica, without attempting any thing. St. Jago in the S. E. part of the island is esteemed the capital; but the Havannah on the N. W. is much more considerable, on account of its trade, and the rendezvous of the galleons annually on their return to Spain. It is not a very fruitful island, at least it produces little, through the sixth of the inhabitants; and were it not for its commodious situation and fine harbours, would have been abandoned probably by the Spaniards, as Hispaniola in a manner was, after they had destroyed the numerous India inhabitants. Cuba lies about 120 m. S. of Florida, 50 W. of Hispaniola, and 75 N. of Jamaica.

CUBA, or Al Cuba, W. lon. 8. 40. lat. 38. a town of Portugal, in the pr. of Entreajo and Guadiana, 30 m. S. of Evora.

CUBAGA, W. lon. 63. lat. 10. 15. an island in America, sit. between the island of Margaritta and Terra Firma; sub. to Spain.

CUCKFIELD, a market town in Sussex, sit. 13 miles S. W. of East-Grinstead, and 41 m. S. by W. of London.

CUENZA, W. lon. 7. 45. lat. 40. 10. a town of New Castile, in Spain, sit. 85 m. E. of Madrid. The see of a bishop. It was taken by Lord Peterborough in 1706, but retaken by the Duke of Berwick.

CUENZA, W. lon. 78. 40. S. lat. 3. a city in Peru.

CULIACAN, W. lon. 13. 35. lat. 24. 0. cap. of the pr. of Culiacan, in Mexico, in N. America, sit. near the Pacific ocean, opposite to the S. end of California; sub. to Spain.

CULLEMBACH, or Cullemberg, Marquisate, the N. E. division of the cir. of Franconia, in Germany; the principal town is, CULLENACK, E. lon. 11. 28. lat. 50. 12. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Franconia, sit. on the river Maine, 25 m. E. of Bamberg.

CULLEN, W. lon. 0. 12. lat. 57. 38. a parliament town in Scotland, sit. on the sea coast of the county of Bams, 40 miles W. of Aberdeen.

CULLENBURG, E. lon. 5. 10. lat. 51. 58. a town of the United Provinces, sit. on the river Lech, in the Betuwe, in the pr. of Guelderland, 12 m. S. E. of Utrecht.

CULLITON, a market town of Devon, sit. 17 m. S. E. of Exeter.

CULLODEN-BOUSE, sit. 3 m. E. of Inverness, near which the King's Highness the Duke of Cumberland, obtained a complete victory, and thereby put an end to the rebellion, 16 Ap 11 1746.

CULM, E. lon. 8. 10. lat. 53. 4. a town of Poland, in the pr. of Prussia, sit. on the river Weßel, 75 m. S. of Dantsick; the see of a bishop.

CULMORE, W. lon. 7. 40. lat. 55. 0. a town of Ireland, in the co. of Londonderry, and pr. of Ulster, sit. on the coast of Loughboyle, 5 m. N. of Londonderry.

CULROSS, W. lon. 3. 34. lat. 56. 8. a parliament town in Scotland, sit. on the river Forth, in the co. of Menteith, 33 m. N. W. of Edinburgh.

CUMBERLAND, a co. in the N. of England, separated from Scotland by Solway Firth, and river; 75 miles in length, and 27 in breadth, said to contain 14,810 houses, and about 88,920 inhabitants. It has one city, 14 market towns, 58 parishes, and sends 6 members to parliament. Carlisle is the capital. Here are mines which produce lapis calaminaris, coal, copper, and black lead.

CUNNERSBORO, E. lon. 16. 20. lat. 52. 20. a village in the mar. of Brandenburg, where an obstinate battle was fought 12 Aug. 1759, by the Prussians, against the Austrians and Russians combined; who, at last, obliged the Prussians (who made the attack) to retreat, sit. 30 m. E. of Frankfort upon the Oder, and 16 m. N. E. of Crossen in Silesia.

CUNNINGHAM, a shire of Scotland, sit. on the Frith of Clyde, opposite to Bute island.

Cura, or Cyrus, a river of Asia, rises in mount Caucasus, and running S. through Georgia and the pr. of Chirvan, in Persia, unites its waters with the river Arrax or Ataxes, and continues its course E. to the Caspian sea.

Curasaw, or Curasao, W. lon. 68. 20. lat. 11. 36. an island of the Lesser Antilles, sit. in the Atlantic ocean, opposite to Coro, or Venezuela on the Terra Firma, in S. America, sub. to the Dutch, from whence they carry on a clandestine smuggling trade with the Spanish settlements on the Terra Firma; a practice they complained of much in the Jamaica-men, and used great endeavours to put a stop to it, which they had no sooner effected, than they fell into the same traffic themselves, and take care usually to send ships of such force, that they are out of danger of their Guards Coast.

CURDISTAN, the ancient Assyria, lies part of it in Asiatic Turkey, and part of it in Persia, having Turcomania or Armenia on the N. and Eyraca Arabic or Chaldaea on the S. in which pr. Nineveh antiently stood, on the eastern bank of the river Tigris, opposite to Mosul.

Cusco, W. lon. 74. 35. S. lat. 13. the capital town of Peru, in S. America, during the reigns of the Incas or Indian emperors. It stands on a little hill, in the midst of a spacious plain, surrounded by mountains, from which fall four streams, which water the adjacent country, one of them running thro' the city, and supplying several canals in the chief streets. The principal buildings in it, when the Spaniards conquered the country, were the temple of the sun, and the emperor's palace. The temple of the sun was the richest on the face of the earth, both the ceiling and the walls being covered or lined with massy gold-plate on the inside; at the E. end was the image of the sun, which covered the wall from top to bottom, consisting of one gold plate, which was twice as thick as the plates that covered the other walls. This image, falling to the share of a Spanish officer, 'tis said he played it away in one night; and though the Peruvians worshipped no other deity in this temple but the sun, yet were there images of all animals, birds, beasts, and fishes, of wrought gold, as big as the life, dedicated to the sun; and having more than were sufficient to adorn the temple, they were piled up in rooms adjoining to it in heaps, when the Spaniards arrived there. This city the Spaniards would probably have made the seat of their government, if it had not stood so far from the sea; for nothing could be more commodiously situated, as this was upon an eminence, in a pleasant fruitful country, abounding in springs and rivulets, most desirable things in a hot climate, where it never rains. Cusco is still a fine town and the see of a bishop; and stands about 375 m. E. of Lima.

Custrin, E. lon. 15. lat. 52. 34. a town of Brandenburg, in Germany, sit. on the river Oder, 50 miles E. of Berlin. This city suffered very much by the Russian army in 1758; near it was fought the famous battle in which the K. of Prussia defeated the Russian army, leaving 20,000 dead on the field.

Cuyo, a division of Chili, in S. America, and in the government of Santa-cruz, of the Sierra.

CYCLADES, a name given to certain islands that lie about the isle of Delos, in the Archipelago, sit. between Europe and Asia, and, at length, extended to all the little islands in those seas, who sent presents, and contributed to the revenues of the temple in Delos, dedicated to Apollo and Diana, and said to be the place of their nativity.

CYDNEUS RIVER, in Cilicia, in the Lesser Asia; the waters whereof were so cold, that Alexander was near losing his life by bathing in them.

YPRUS,

CYPRUS, an island sit. in the most easterly part of the Levant, or Mediterranean sea, between 32 and 35 degrees of eastern lon. and between 34 and 36 degrees of N. lat. 60 m. S. of the coast of Caramania, or Cilicia, and 30 W. of the coast of Syria, being about 150 miles long, and 70 broad; the chief town Nicosia, the seat of the Turkish Beglerbeg, or Viceroy, and formerly the residence of the K. of the island. Here is one of those mountains called Olympus; there is another of the same name in the Lesser Asia, and a third in Greece; but there are no springs or rivers but what the rains produce; which happening to fail them thirty years successively, during the reign of Constantine the Great, the inhabitants were obliged to abandon the island for some time; the soil however produces corn, wine, oil, wool, cotton, salt, and some silk; they have plenty also of flesh, fish, and fowl; and a pretty brisk trade, between the merchants of Europe and Asia; several European nations, particularly the English Turkey company, have their consuls and factors in this island. It was very populous while in the possession of the Christians, and had a great many good towns in it; but it is now so thinly inhabited, that half the lands lie uncultivated. The present inhabitants are Turks, Jews, Greeks, Armenians, and some few Latins. The Turks have the government, but the Greeks are most numerous. This island was dedicated to Venus; and her votaries, it is said, prostituted themselves to foreigners. It has been successively governed by the Egyptians, Phenicians, Persians, Greeks, Romans, Saracens, Venetians, and Turks. Richard I. King of England, meeting with an unpardonable reception here, subdued the island, and transferred his right to it to Guy Lusignan, titular King of Jerusalem, whose descendants transferred it to the state of Venice; from whom the Turks took it, anno 1570; and have remained in possession of it ever since. This island brings them in 12501; annually, though the governor is changed every year. There is one archbishop, and three bishops, who join with the Turks to fleece the inhabitants. Nicosia the capital, is seated in the centre of the island, and is the archbishop's see.

CYRENE, the ter. of Barca, lying on the coast of Barbary, between Tripoly and Egypt, anciently so called.

CSACKATHURN, E. lon. 37. 16. lat. 46. 24. a town of Germany, in the D. of Stiria, and cir. of Austria, sit. near the confluence of the rivers Muhl and Drave, 40 m. N. E. of Gratz.

CSARLAW, E. lon. 15. 33. lat. 49. 50. a town of Bohemia, sit. 35 m. S. E. of Prague. Near which a battle was fought, in 1742, between the Austrians and Prussians, in which the latter had the advantage; 42 m. S. E. of Prague.

CZENSTOKOW, E. lon. 19. 15. lat. 50. 48. a town of Poland, sit. on the river Warta, in the pr. of Little Poland, 50 m. N. W. of Cracow. It has a fort; in it is kept a rich treasure, called the treasure of the Virgin Mary. It is called the Loretto of Poland, because the pilgrims visit this place on account of a convent near it.

CZERKASSI, E. lon. 31. 45. lat. 49. 0. a town of the Ukrain, in Russia, sit. on the river Nieper, 29 m. S. E. of Kiof.

CZERNIC, E. lon. 15. lat. 46. 22. a town of Carniola, in the cir. of Austria, sit. 25 m. S. E. of Laibach, remarkable for its lake, from whence the waters retiring in the summer, it makes good pasture, and at Michaelmas they rush in again with a torrent from under the earth.

CZERNIKOW, E. lon. 32. 13. lat. 51. 21. cap. of the pr. of Czernikow, in Russia, sit. near the frontier of Poland, 90 m. N. E. of Kiof.

CZERSKOW, E. lon. 21. 27. lat. 52. 26. a town of Poland, in the pr. of Warsovia, sit. on the Vistula, 30 m. S. of Warsaw, capital of the pr. of Czerikow.

DACIA, anciently the name of Transilvania and Walachia, and some neighbouring countries.

DAGHESTAN, a country of Asia, bounded by Circassia on the N. by the Caspian sea on the E. by Chirvan, a pr. of Persia, on the S. by Georgia, on the W. of which the chief towns are Tarku and Derbent; but the generality of the natives live in tents, wandering from place to place; and though they are but a small state, the country being mountainous, and of difficult access, none of the neighbouring powers have been able to subdue them. When they find themselves hard pressed at any time by one power, they put themselves under the protection of another; as lately, when they were attacked on the side of Persia by Kouli Khan, they called in the Russians, and so well defended themselves, with a little assistance given them underneath, that Kouli Khan was obliged to retire, having lost great part of his army in their mountains. The towns of Tarku and Derbent, on the Caspian sea, are usually in the possession of the Russians.

DAGNO, or DACAGNI, E. lon. 19. 48. lat. 42. a town of Tur. y, in the pr. of Albania, sit. on the rivers Drinc and Nero, near their confluence, 30 m. N. E. of Scutari. The see of a bishop.

DAGO, DAGHO, or DAGERWORT, E. lon. 22. 30. lat. 68. 48. capital of the island of Dago, sit. on the Baltic sea, near the coast of Livonia, 70 m. S. W. of Revel; sub. to Russia.

DAGOME, a K. of Africa, which lies N. of Whidaw, or Fida, on the Gdiney coast; the K. whereof lately made a conquest of Whidaw, and very much disturbed the Negro trade of the Europeans.

DALEBURG, E. lon. 13. lat. 59. capital of the pr. of Dalia, in Sweden, sit. on the W. side of the Wener-Lake, 50 m. N. E. of Gottenburg.

DALECARLIA, a pr. of Sweden, bounded by Norway on the N. and W. by Hellungia and Gestricia on the E. and by Dalia, Wermeland, and Westmania, on the S. abounds with iron and copper mines. This province is about 175 miles in length, and 100 in breadth. Idra is the cap.

DALECARLIA river, which gives the name to the pr. rises in the Dofrine mountains, which divide Norway from Sweden, and running from the N. W. to the S. E. through the whole pr. falls into the Bothnic gulph, between the provinces of Up-land and Gestricia.

DALEM, E. lon. 5. 59. lat. 50. 40. a town of the Netherlands, in the pr. of Limburg, 5 m. N. E. of the city of Liege; sub. to the Dutch.

DANCALA, E. lon. 34. 35. lat. 15. 16. a town of Nubia, in Africa, sit. on the river Nile, 260 m. S.W. of Sagem.

DANEBURG, E. lon. 11. 45. lat. 53. 25. a city of Germany, in the cir. of Lower Saxony, and D. of Lunenburg, sit. 38 m. S.E. of the city of Lunenburg.

DANTEICK, E. lon. 19. 5. lat. 54. 22. the capital of Regal Prussia, in the K. of Poland, sit. on the western shore of the river Weichsel, or Vistula, which a little below falls into the Baltic sea. It is an excellent harbour, has the best foreign trade of any port within the Baltic, and is one of the Hans-towns. It stands 140 m. N. of Warsaw, and 70 m. S.W. of Koningsburgh. The town is large, and encompassed with a wall and fortifications of a great extent. The houses are well built of stone, or brick, six or seven stories high; and the granaries, containing vast magazines of corn, and naval stores, are still higher, to which the shipping lie close, and take in their lading; for the Dutch annually import from hence a great many thousand tons of corn, timber, and naval stores; and other nations some; but the Dutch having the greatest share of this trade, paying for their merchandise with pickled herrings, the spices of India, sugars, brandy, and other produce of the more southern countries; whereas the English and other nations are forced to purchase these things chiefly with treasure. The inhabitants are computed to amount to 200,000 souls, who

who are subject to a mixed kind of government. Their magistracy consists of thirty senators, who continue for life, four of them burgo-masters; besides these are 13 consuls, who elect the said burgo-masters out of their own body; and elect the judges and all other officers of the city, from whom there lies an appeal to the 13 consuls and 4 burgo-masters; and from them to the republic of Poland. The king annually nominates a burgo-master out of the consuls, to represent his person in the senate; and all sentences of death must be signed by him in the king's name. One hundred burgesses are elected to represent the people's grievances, and defend their privileges, and inspect the administration of the government; and the hundred, with the concurrence of the senate, present the clergy to vacant benefices. The established religion is the Lutheran; but Papists, Calvinists, and Anabaptists, are tolerated. The jurisdiction of the town extends 30 m. round the city; and they maintain a garrison at their own expence, and coin money, with the assent of the King on one side, and the city arms on the reverse. They are said to be under the protection of Poland; but if they had not been protected by other powers against their enemies, their state had been subverted long since. In the year 1703, the English, the Dutch, and the King of Prussia, entered into an alliance for their protection against the Swedes, who would have extorted a sum of money from them, as they did again in the year 1706, when the King of Sweden threatened them with a visit, on his success against King Augustus, if they refused to acknowledge Stanislaus, for their King. But in the year 1734, when they took the part of Stanislaus against the late King of Poland, and actually harboured and protected him in their city, having been purchased with French money, they were besieged by the Muscovites and Saxons, obliged to surrender, and forced to purchase their peace with several hundred thousand pounds, for suffering Stanislaus to make his escape out of the city during the siege. A bishop's see and university.

DANUBE, one of the finest rivers in Europe, rises in the Black-forest, in the pr. of Suabia, in the S.W. of Germany, and running N. E. through Suabia, visits Ulm, the capital; then running E. through Bavaria and Austria, passes by Ratisbon, Passau, Ens, and Vienna; then entering Hungary, it runs S. E. from Presburgh to Buda, and so on to Belgrade; after which it divides Bulgaria from Molachia and Moldavia; then discharges itself by several channels into the Black-sea, through the pr. of Bessarabia. It is so deep between Buda and Belgrade, that the Turks and Christians have had fleets of men of war upon it, which frequently engaged during the late wars; and yet the cataracts below, render it unnavigable to the Black-sea; and there are also several cataracts above Buda.

DARDA, E. lon. 20. lat. 46. 40. a town of Hungary, sit. on the W. side of the Danube, at the end of the bridge of Esseck, 80 m. N.W. of Belgrade. It was built by the Turks in 1686, and taken by the Imperialists the next year, in whose hands it remains.

DARDANELLES, E. lon. 26. 26. lat. 40. 10. two castles at the entrance of the Hellespon, where all ships going to Constantinople are examined. These castles do not stand on the foundations of Sestos and Abydos, nor even near the places where they stood, as some have erroneously imagined.

DARIEN, or Terra-Firma Proper, is a pr. of Terra-Firma, in S. America, being a narrow isthmus, which joins the N. to S. other part of the S. sea and the pr. of Veragua on the W. lying between 78 and 83 degrees of W. lon. and between 8 and 10 degrees of N. lat. It lies in the form of a bow or crescent, about the great bay of Panama in the S. sea, and is 300 m. in length, and 60 in breadth, from sea to sea. This pr. if it be not the richest, is of the most importance to the Spaniards; and has been the scene of more action than any pr. in America, being situated both on the N. and S. seas; the gold sands found in some of the rivers; but above all the wealth of Peru being brought hither, and from hence imported into Europe, has induced many enterprising people to attempt Panama, Porto Bello, and other towns of this pr. in order to come in for a share of these treasures with the Spaniards, or dispossess them of their country. But it is very far from being a desirable place to inhabit; for it is generally mountainous and barren, excessive hot, and the low grounds overflowed with almost perpetual rains. The mountains so vastly high, and difficult of access, that it takes up a great many days to pass them, tho' the isthmus be not more than 60 m. over. It was from these mountains the Spaniards first discovered the S. sea, or Pacific ocean, anno 1513, and gave it the name of the S. sea, because they crossed the isthmus from the N. sea though in reality the Pacific ocean lies W. of the continent of America.

26. the chief of the islands of the Cyclades, in the Archipelago; but the least of all of them, not being more than 6 miles in circumference;
sit. a little S. of Mycon and Tinos.
This island, the ancients supposed was the place of Apollo's and Diana's nativity; and therefore the Greeks instituted public festivals, erected temples, and sent priests, sacrifices,
and choirs of virgins hither, to do them honour. But the island is now destitute of inhabitants.

DELISSA, E. lon. 22. 15. lat.

DENMARK; a K. sit. between 8 and 13 degrees of E. lon. and between 54 and 58 degrees of N. lat. bounded by the sea called the Cattegat, or Schagerrack, which separates it from Norway, on the N. by the same sea, and the straits called the Sound, which separate it from Sweden, on the E. by the Baltic sea, and part of Germany on the S. and by the German ocean on the W. The country is, in general, a flat barren land, and has thick foggy air, occasioned by the seas, which almost surround it, and their numerous lakes. The Peninsula of Jutland was anciently called the Cimbric Chersonese, or the Peninsula of the Cimbri. What is now properly called Denmark, consists of Jutland; the islands of Zeland and Funen, and the little islands about them. As to the K. of Norway, the D. of Holstein, Oldenburgh, and Delmonhurst, these are indeed part of the K. of Denmark's dominions, but in different countries.

The constitution of this K. has been frequently altered, sometimes their Kings have been hereditary, at others elective, sometimes limited and restrained by the States, consisting of the nobility, clergy, gentry, and peasants; and, at others, absolute, as they have been ever since the year 1660; when the peasants, finding themselves grievously oppressed by the nobility and gentry, agreed to make the crown absolute and hereditary, in which they were joined by the clergy. And the K. having assembled the nobility and gentry, in a garrisoned town, in a manner compelled them to resign their liberties into his hands.

The forces the K. of Denmark has usually on foot in Denmark, Norway, and Holstein, amount to near 40,000; but most of them are maintained by other princes, to whom he lets out, and receives a subsidy, almost equal to the pay of the troops besides, so that they rather add to the revenue of the crown, than diminish it; though they are very burthenfome, frequently to the farmers in the country, on whom they are quartered while they remain at home.

The revenues of this Prince are computed to amount to about 700,000 l. per annum, arising from the crown lands, customs, and other duties on beer, malt, corn, paper, a land-tax, poll-tax, &c. In Norway, the revenue arises from the tenth of the timber, tar, fish, oil, mines, and an excise, with the rest of the taxes enumerated in Denmark, and levied with much greater oppression, as they are a distant, and a kind of rival kingdom.

The produce of Denmark and Norway, consists chiefly in timber, pitch, tar, fish, oil, and lean cattle. They grow very little corn, except rye; and the produce of the mines of Norway is not comparable to those of Sweden.

Their religion is Lutheran, no other being tolerated; and the clergy depend on the state for their subsistence; the church lands having been seized by the government at the reformation. Copenhagen is the capital.

DOMINGO St. W. lon. 69. 15. lat. 10. 25. the capital of the island of Hispaniola, in N. America, sit. on the S. side of the island, having a pleasant fruitful country on the N. and E. the ocean on the S. and a large navigable river on the W. The approaches to it are so difficult, that the natives baffled the attacks of a very formidable body of English forces.

forces, though commanded by experienced generals, viz. Pan and Venable, in the year 1655; however they made a conquest of the island of Jamaica, after their retiring from St. Domingo. Bartholomew Columbus, brother to the admiral, built this city, and gave it the name of Dominica, in memory of his father Dominic. It is a large town and excellent harbour; the see of an archbishop, the most ancient royal audience in America, and the seat of the governor of the island, and in possession of the French.

DOMINGO ST. one of the richest of the Caribbee islands, in America, sit. between 17 and 21 degrees N. lat. and 67 and 74 degrees of W. lon. lying in the middle between Cuba and Porto-Rico, 450 miles long, and 150 broad, surrounded with craggy rocks and dangerous shoals. It was first discovered by Christopher Columbus, the Spanish general. It is partly in the hands of the French, and partly of the Spaniards; the latter giving it the name of Hispaniola.

DOMINICA, W. lon. 61. 24. lat. 73. one of the Caribbee islands, sit. in the Atlantic ocean, in N. America, 6 m. N. of Martinico, and 140 N. W. of Barbadoes; properly sub. to England, but very little cultivated, and lately usurped by the French, who have always opposed our settling here; but by the late treaty of peace, however, it was ceded in express terms to the English. This island obtained its name from being discovered by Christopher Columbus on a Sunday.

DUNKELD, W. lon. 3. 20. lat. 56. 36. a town of Scotland, in the shire of Perth, sit. on the river Tay, 12 m. N. of Perth. It was formerly a bishop's see, but the Cathedral is now in ruins.

DUNKIRK, E. lon. 2. 27. lat. 51. 2. a port town of the French Netherlands, in the pr. of Flanders, sit. on the English channel, at the mouth of the river Cols, 20 m. E. of Calais, 22 S. W. of Ostend, and 30 E. of Dover. The fortifications of which port, and the works that run out into the sea, had cost France more money than any fortress of that Kingdom. This town being taken from the Spaniards, by the united forces of England and France, was put into the hands of the English, anno 1658; but it was sold to France in the reign of King Charles II. Whereupon the fortifications were much improved, and it was the station of the French privateers in the wars that followed, who grew rich with the spoils of the English. Whereupon Britain insisted on the harbour and fortifications being demolished, at the treaty of Utrecht, anno 1713, which was done accordingly. In the late war, the French attempted to rebuild the works, but were afterwards obliged to demolish them by the peace of 1763. This port would never admit of large men of war, all the mischief done from thence was done by light frigates and privateers.

EBRO, anciently Iberus, is a river of Spain, which rises in the N. W. part of Old Castile, upon the confines of Asturias, runs S. E. through Old Castile and Biscay, then dividing Old Castile from Navarre, continues its course through Aragon, visiting the capital city of Saragosa, from whence it runs S. E. to the confines of Catalonia, where it receives the Cinca and Segra, and then crossing the S. W. part of Catalonia, passes by the city of Tortosa, discharging itself with great rapidity into the Mediterranean, 20 miles below that city. From this river Iberus it is supposed Spain had its ancient name of Iberia; certain it is the Celts, a nation of Gaul, that sent colonies into this part of Spain, were called Celtiberians, and the country Celtiberia. Upon the conclusion of the first Punic war, the Ebro made the boundary between the Roman and Carthaginian territories; and Spain, when entirely reduced by the Romans, was divided by them into two very unequal provinces, viz. the Hither and the Further Spain, in respect to Rome, that of the W. of the Ebro being vastly larger than the other. The river Ebro is, at present, almost the only navigable river in Spain, and in this the navigation is very difficult, except between Tortosa and the sea; for though it will carry vessels 250 miles down the stream, it runs with that rapid force, that a boat cannot go up the stream higher than Tortosa, and it is very dangerous going down on account of the rocks, which lie in the channel for 50 or 60 m. below Saragosa.

EDWILL, near Keynton, in Warwickshire, sit. 14 m. S. of Warwick, and 12 m. N. W. of Banbury, in Oxfordshire; rendered memorable by the first battle which was fought in the civil war between the Royalists and Parliamentarians, where K. Charles I. was in person, on Sunday the 23d of October, 1642.

EDWORTH, or Edware, a market town of Middlesex, sit. 12 miles N. W. of London; adjoining to which stood Canons, the elegant seat of the
D. of Chandos, now demolished.

EDINBURGH, W. lon. 3. lat. 55.
58. the capital city of Scotland, and of the co. of Mid-lothian, sit. 3 miles
S. of Leith, and of the Frith of Forth, 82 m. N. W. of Newcastle, and upwards of 393 N. W. of London. It stands on an eminence, and has one grand street, upwards of a mile in length, and very broad; the castle is at one end, and the palace of Holyroodhouse at the other, where, for some ages before the Union, the Kings of Scotland resided. The buildings are of hewn stones, fished, and ten or eleven stories high, there being distinct families on every floor almost. There is a descent from this street on each side, which makes the cross streets
incommodious; however, the Scots
esteem it the prettiest town in Europe,
though it be but small for the capital city of the kingdom. Here the parliament used to assemble, and here
the supreme courts of justice are still held; but, as most of their great men attend the English parliament, Edinburgh must necessarily be upon the decline at present. It was the see of a bishop till episcopacy was abolished, at the revolution 1688;
the university, however, still flour-ishes. It is defended by a castle, situated on the W. end of the city, strong
both by art and nature, being inaccessible, except on the side next the city.

EDISTON ROCK, W. lon. 4. 20.
lat. 50. 12. a rock sit. in the English channel, 14 m. S. of Plymouth, in Devonshire; on which a light-house
is erected, for the direction of ships going in or out of the channel. The first light house was built by Mr.
Winstanley, which was demolished by the great storm on the 26th of November 1703, in which Mr. Win-stanley, the engineer, perished; but it has been rebuilt, and bids defiance
to all the storms that have happened
since, on the coasts of Devon and

Cornwall, from whence it is equally distant. It has been since again demolished by fire, but is again rebuilt.

EGREMONT, or EGREMONT, a market-town in Cumberland, 14 m. S. of Cockermouth, and 39 S.W. of Carlisle; gives title of Earl to the family of Wyndham.

EGRA, E. lon. 12. 25. lat. 50. 10. a town of Bohemia, sit. on the river Eger, 95 m. W. of Prague, taken by the French, anno 1742, but surrendered to the Austrians the next year, and now sub. to the house of Austria; a town of the greatest consequence of any in Bohemia, except Prague.

EGAIPOS. See NEGROFONT.

EGYPT, sit. in the N.E. part of Africa, between 29 and 38 degrees of E. lon. and between 21 and 31 degrees of N. lat. bounded by the Levant, or Mediterranean-sea, on the N. by the Red-sea, and the Isthmus of Suez, which divides it from Arabia, on the E. by Abyssinia, or Ethiopia Superior, on the S. and by the deserts of Barca and Nubia on the W. being 600 m. in length, from N. to S. and from 100 to 200 in breadth, from E. to W. the river Nile, which rises in Abyssinia, running the whole length of it, from S. to N. and overflowing it annually, beginning to rise in the months of May or June, and is at the height usually in September, from which time the waters decrease till May or June again. There being no other water in the country (or not more than two springs) they were under a necessity of building their towns on the banks of the Nile, on some eminences, natural or artificial; so that on the overflowing of the river, they look like so many islands, which have no other communication but by boats. The Lower Egypt is contained in a triangular island, made by the Levant; and the two chief branches of the Nile, which, dividing 5 miles below Cairo, one branch takes its course to the N.W. and falls into the Levant at Rosetta, and the other N.E. falling into the sea at Damietta, the ancient Pelusium; these mouths being about 100 miles asunder. This part of the country called the Delta, or Lower Egypt, having the greatest advantage by the overflowing of the Nile, is much the most fruitful, but not the most healthful, the mud which covers it, after the flood is gone, sending up an unwholesome vapour. The mountains and sands which inclose Egypt on the E. and W. would render the valley between excessive hot, if it were not for this annual flood; nor would the soil produce much without it, for the country is naturally barren, where the waters do not reach, and they have seldom any rain, unless in the Lower Egypt, though travellers relate, that they have sometimes seen heavy showers even in Upper Egypt. They have canals cut quite through Upper Egypt, to distribute the water to their fields and gardens, and preserve it in the dry season; and these they fill with great ceremony annually, when the river rises to a certain height; and, by these means, Egypt is rendered the most fruitful country in Africa, supplying Constantinople, and other towns in European Turkey with corn, as it did Rome, and Italy of old. They only harrow their grain into the mud, on the retiring of the waters; and, in March following, usually have a plentiful harvest. As to their rice fields, they supply them with water from their canals and reservoirs constantly, this grain usually growing growing in water. Those lands that are not sown, yield good crops of grass for their cattle. No place in the world, says Mr. Sandys, is better furnished with grain, flesh, fish, sugar, fruits, melons, roots, and other garden stuff, than the Lower Egypt; oranges, lemons, figs, dates, almonds, cassia, and plantains, abound here; and they have some grapes, but not proper for wine; which defect is, in some measure, supplied by palm wine. The country is excessive hot for two or three months before the flood rises, and the musketos, or gnats, will not suffer people to sleep in the night. The sands also are extremely troublesome, insinuating themselves into the closets, chests, and cabinets, and even into the bedcloaths, making them as hot as if they had been warmed with coals; and these sands are probably the occasion of sore eyes, with which the natives are almost universally afflicted in summer. Fevers and fluxes are frequent in autumns, and the swelling of the scrotum; but the greatest misfortune is the plague, which visits them, at least, once in seven years; but, when the Nile begins to overflow, 'tis said, the plague and all other diseases are abated. It must not be forgot, also, that the hot winds are very troublesome in April and May, and occasion their sore eyes, as well as the sands.

Among the curiosities of Egypt, the pyramids are the most considerable; they are built of stone, by whom, or when, none knows; the base of the largest taking up ten acres of ground, and running up to 700 feet perpendicular height, eye-witnesses frequently differ 100 feet as to their height; and, indeed, the sands are driven up so high on the sides, that it is impracticable to take the height exactly. The mummy pits are another curiosity, which, with the pyramids, are on the W. side of the river, opposite to Cairo; in these pits have been thousands of embalmed bodies interred, which have continued 3 or 4000 years at least; the coffins are set upright, in niches in the walls, and never laid at length.

Egypt is generally held to be sub- to the Grand Signior, and so it is in part, but his authority is extremely limited by the Egyptian princes, who are all of them absolute in their respective territories, and assemble at Cairo, in a kind of parliament, or great council, which submits to the Grand Signior's Bassa, or Viceroy, no farther than they see fit, and sometimes they depose him, and demand another of the Grand Signior, who is more acceptable to them; however, they suffer the Grand Signior to collect a revenue in their several districts, but by no means equal to what the country is able to pay; and, if more is demanded, or any innovations attempted, it endangers a revolt. They come to Cairo with such bodies of troops as protect them against the arbitrary administration of the Bassa, and the only way he has to manage them, is by dividing them into parties, and siding with that party which is most devoted to the Grand Signior. These Egyptian princes are not natives of the country, neither are they ever succeeded by their children in their respective governments, but by some slave, whom they appoint their successor; and these are usually slaves purchased in Georgia, or Circassia. This is their constitution, as was that of the ancient Mamelukes; no man could be sovereign who had not been a slave, and purchased in some foreign country; but, out of these, we must except some Chiefs, or Arab Chiefs, who are proprietors of villages, or small districts, in the country; these are succeeded by their children, on paying a fine, or small rent, to the government. The religion of the governors of the country is Mahometan; but the Copts, the posterity of the ancient Egyptians, the Greeks and Latins, are Christians, but of different sects; and there is a great number of Jews at Cairo, and in the great towns where any thing is to be got.

It is a fruitful country, and abounds with partridges to that degree, that the people are summoned annually to destroy their eggs, to preserve their corn.

ENGLAND OLD. See the Introduction.

ENGLAND NEW, comprehending the colonies of, 1. The Massachusetts, 2. New-Hampshire, 3. Connecticut. And, 4. Rhode-island, and Providence plantation; is situated between 67 and 73 degrees of W. lon. and between 41 and 45 degrees of N. lat. bounded by Canada on the N. W. by Nova Scotia, or Acadia, on the N. E. by the Atlantic Ocean on the E. and S. and by the pr. of New-York on the W. being 300 m. long, and from 100 to 200 broad. The land near the sea is generally low, but farther up the country it rises into hills, and on the N. E. is rocky and mountainous; the N. and N. W. winds blowing over a long tract of frozen country are excessive cold, and their winters much severer and longer than in Old England, the ground being covered with snow, and the ships on the coast froze up several months; but then their weather is more constant, and not variable as in Old England, and the short summer they have is much hotter; however the climate appears to be as healthful as in any of our American plantations.

tions. The four provinces into which New-England is divided have different constitutions, and generally different governors; the pr. of the Massachusetts, comprehending New Plymouth and Maine, are included in the same charter. 2. New Hampshire has another charter, and is a distinct government. 3. Connecticut and New-haven are included in a third charter. 4. Rhode-island and Providence plantation have another charter, and no dependence on any of the rest. As to the constitution of the Massachusetts colony: the crown appoints the governor, and all the officers of the admiralty; and the power of the militia is entirely in the hands of the governor, as captain-general; all the judges, justices, and sheriffs, are nominated by the governor and council, and the governor has a negative in the choice of any member of the council; all laws of the general assembly are sent to England to receive the approbation of the crown, and no act of government is valid without the governor's consent in writing.

As to the colonies of Connecticut and Rhode-Island, tho' their governments are distinct and independent of each other, yet is their constitution much the same, for each of these are impowered, by their respective charters, to elect their own governor, deputy-governor, council, and assembly; to appoint officers both civil and military, and to make laws for the government of their respective colonies. As to the colony of New-Hampshire, this is immediately dependent on the crown; the King appoints their governor, lieutenant-governor, council, magistrates, and officers; but the freemen elect their representatives, or lower house, as in Old-England; but the laws in all the colonies are liable to be altered and repealed by the parliament of Great-Britain.

From whence it appears, that the Massachusetts colony, which is the chief of the New-England colonies, has a different constitution from any of the rest. There is a ministers of the royal and the charter governments; for though the King appoints the governor, he depends on the general assembly for his subsistence, and the general assembly chuse the council, which is equivalent to our house of lords; but then the governor can reject any member of the council, chosen by the lower house; and the power of the militia, and the collection of the customs is entirely in the crown. The inhabitants are of the independent persuasion.

ENNIS, a borough in the co. of Clare, in Ireland; sends two members to parliament.

ENNISCORTNEY, a borough in the co. of Wexford, in Ireland; sends two members to parliament.

was the capital of Asia, during the Roman government; and here stood the celebrated temple of Diana, which Erostratus burnt down to perpetuate his memory, the same night Alexander the Great was born. St. Paul has honoured the Ephesians with an Epistle, and made Timothy the first bishop of this city, which is now dwindled to a little town, though there are some remains of a Roman theatre, a circus, and aqueduct, and many other magnificent ruins, which lie about 40 m. S. of Smyrna.

EPHROS, or Caniza, a pr. of European Turkey, is bounded by Albania on the N. by Thessaly on the E. by Achaia on the S. and by the sea, near the entrance of the gulph of Venice on the W. The capital is St. Janina.

Albania is frequently comprehended in Epirus, and reckoned the North division of it; and, in some maps, the whole is denominated Albania. N. E. The whole province of Epirus is in the hands of the Turks, except Patras, which belongs to the Venetians.

EPSTEAD, a market town of Essex, 17 m. N. of London; on the New-market road.

ERRINGHAM, E. lon. 9. 59. lat. 53. 12. a town of Germany, in the pal. of the Rhine, sit. 23 m. N. W. of Hailbron.

ESSEX, a town in Surrey, 16 miles S. W. of London; formerly much resorted to on account of its medicinal waters.

ESSEN, E. lon. 11. 3. lat. 51. 4. a city of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, capital of Thuringia, sit. 12 m. W. of Weimar, and 20 E. of Saxony, sub. to the Elector of Mentz. It is one of the largest and most beautiful cities in Germany; has an university, and a considerable ter. depending on it, which comprehends 73 villages. A fire happened in the city in 1736, which burnt down 180 houses, and several churches.

ESERANUS, the ancient name of the river Po, in Italy.

ESER LARK, lies between 80 and 87 degrees of W. lon. and between 41 and 42 degrees of N. lat. W. of the colony of Pensilvania, in North America. It has a communication with the lake Ontario, or Frontinat, by the strait of Niagara; the greatest cataract or fall of water in the known world. The country between these lakes and the British plantations, is inhabited by the Five Nations of fre-quois Indians.

ERIVAN, E. lon. 45. lat. 40. 8. a town of Persia, on the frontiers of Turkey, in Asia, in the pr. of Chirvan, sit. 180 m. E. of Erzerum, and 160 m. N. W. of Taurin. Erivan-lake lies N. of the town.

ERLENBURG, E. lon. 6. lat. 51. a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, and D. of Juliers, sit. on the river Roer, 10 miles N. of Juliers.

ERPACH, E. lon. 8. 58. lat. 47. 33. a town of Germany in the cir. of Franconia, sit. 30 miles S. E. of Francfort, capital of the co. of Erpach; sub. to its Count. Also a castle in the cir. of Suabia, 8 miles S. E. of Ulm.

ERZICHO, E. lon. 39. lat. 17. a port town of the Red Sea, sit. on the coast of Abex, in Africa; subject to Turkey; 320 m. S. W. of Mecca.

ERZERUM, E. lon. 41. 15. lat. 40. capital of the pr. of Turcomania, or Armenia, in Asiatic Turkey, sit. 180 miles W. of Erivan, and 140 m. S. of Trebizond and the Black Sea. It stands at the foot of a chain of mountains, which are covered with snow usually till midsummer. The town is about 2 m. in circumference, surrounded by a double wall and towers, very antique. The Beglerbeg, or Viceroy, resides here, in an ancient palace; and the Aga of the Janisaries, who is independent on him; in a castle, which stands above the town. It is computed that the inhabitants of Erzerum consist of 15,000 Mahometans, and 6000 Armenians. The trade of the place consists chiefly in furs and copper utensils;

utensils; copper being dug out of the neighbouring mountains, and manufactured here. This city is a great thoroughfare from Persia and India to Constantinople, by the way of Trepisond and the Black Sea; the merchants chusing this way to avoid the Arabs, who lie on the road to Aleppo. Erserum does not stand on the Euphrates, as we find it in some maps, but in a peninsula, formed by the sources of that river; one of which streams lies a day's journey,
and the other half a day's journey,
from the city. Every week some caravan sets out from hence for Tocat, Teflis, Tauris, Trepisond, or Aleppo; but the Curdes or natives of Kurdistan (Assyria) rambling about with their flocks and herds, as far as the sources of the Euphrates, are almost as troublesome to the merchants as the Arabs, frequently extorting money from the caravans on one pretence or other. These Curdes call themselves Jafides, or followers of Jesus, but have a great deal of superstition, and very little religion
amongst them, and acknowledge neither the Turks nor Persians for their sovereigns; but retire when they are attacked to their cold inaccessible mountains. Neither of these powers think it worth their while to make an entire conquest of them.

ESCURIAL, a palace of the K. of Spain, sit. 15 miles N. W. of Madrid, in a village of the same name in New Castile, one of the largest and most magnificent palaces in the world, began to be built by Philip II. son of the Emperor Charles V. anno 1557.
and finished in 1563. There is not any thing wanting in it to render it a complete and beautiful town; for here is a fine church, built after the model of St. Peter's at Rome, a college, monastery, dwelling-house,

shops, artificers, cloysters, gardens,
and an extensive park, with groves,
fountains, cascades, grottoes, fine prospect, and every thing that can render a place agreeable in so hot a climate, though it is situated in an exceeding barren soil. There are in the palace 11,000 windows, 14,000
doors, 1806 pillars, 17 cloysters, or piazzas, and 22 courts. The Pantheon, so called from its being built also after the model of the Pantheon
at Rome, is the Mausoleum of the Kings of Spain, of the Austrian family.

giving name to a district of Scotland,
called Eskdale.

ESKIMAUX, sometimes called New Britain, and Terra de Labrador, in N. America, is sit. between 59 and 80 degrees of W. lon. and between 50 and 64 degrees of N. lat. bounded by Hudson's Strait, which separates it from Greenland on the N. by the Atlantic ocean on the E. by the river and bay of St. Lawrence, which separates it from Newfoundland, Acadia, or New Scotland, on the S. E.
and by Hudson's bay on the W. most of it yielded to Great Britain by the treaty of Utrecht, the whole ceded
to her at the peace 1763; but no colonies are yet sent thither, unless some little settlements at the bottom of Hudson's bay; and here the Indians
of Canada, constantly hunt for furs.
The natives are not very numerous,
they are chiefly employed in hunting and fishing.

Africa on the S. and by other desert and unknown countries on the W. Abyssinia Proper has now little communication with the rest of the world, the Turks having possessed themselves of Abex, which runs along the western coast of the Red Sea. The river Nile rises from a lake almost in the middle of Abyssinia, and being swelled by the rains, which annually fall at a certain season between the Tropics, overflows Egypt, and all the lower grounds which border on the river, which is the case of all rivers that rise within the tropics, though the ancients were at so great a loss for the occasion of this periodical flood; and what increases the flood still more, are the torrents that fall from the numerous hills with which this country is encumbered; though they have this advantage from their hills, that they can remove thither in the hot season, and enjoy a cooler air than they do in Egypt, which lies several degrees N. of Abyssinia. Their valleys also are rendered fruitful, by the annual rains and the numerous rivelets, producing plenty of corn, rice, wine, flax, sugar, and fruits proper for the climate, and gold is said to be very plentiful here; but the Turks have shut up all the avenues to the country, that no other people can traffic with them for it at this day. Their cattle are camels, horses, oxen, sheep, and asses, with which they abound. As to the persons of the Ethiopians, or Abyssinians, they are perfectly black, but their features more agreeable than their southern neighbours, having neither flat noses, or thick lips, like other Caffres. The sovereign of this country was once absolute, but at present the great men set up for princes in their respective government, and the K. can transact nothing without them of any consequence. It was the King of this country, that the Europeans used to stile Presto John. The Portuguese, 'tis said, when they first discovered this country, seeing a cross always carried before him, stiled him priest, or Presthyter Maximus. He took upon him the supreme ecclesiastical, as well as civil, power; others say, the Turks gave him the name of Prestor, Chan, or Cam, i. e. King of slaves, because they purchased most of their negro slaves in this country. The government appears now to be a republic, or rather a mixed monarchy, in which the Prince's power is extremely limited by the great men. As to the common people, it is not very material whether the power be lodged in the King or Lords, for they are all slaves either to the one or the other. Their religion is a mixture of Christianity and Judaism, but they seem to adhere more to the Greek church than to Latin. They keep both the Christian and the Jewish sabbath, and both baptize and circumcise their children, and even their female children. The King, by the persuasion of the Jesuit missionaries, once submitted to the authority of the Pope; but this occasioning a civil war, he was obliged to expel the Latin fathers, and restore their ancient rites and ceremonies in ecclesiastical affairs. This is the country from whence 'tis supposed, the Q. of Sheba came to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and from whence the eunuch, the prime minister of Q. Candace came, who was converted to Christianity, and baptized by St. Philip.

ETNA MOUNT, or M. Gibell, E. lon. 15. lat. 38. a volcano, or burning mountain, in the island of Sicily, and pr. of Val di Demona, is sit. 50 miles S. W. of Messina, and 10 m. W. of the town of Catania; from whence the first part of the way is full of towns and villages, vineyards, and plantations, which are rendered fruitful by the ashes thrown out of the volcano; beyond this the rising grounds are planted with vines and fruit-trees, intermixed with corn-fields and pastures, and the upper part is planted with fir-trees, and here are clefts and and tracks in the earth, from whence there issues smoke. The top of the mountain is encompassed with a circle of snow, from whence, however, smoke and flames continually ascend. This Volcano being generally about six miles round, but the eruptions frequently alter the face of it. As this hill is much larger than mount Vesuvius, being 63 m. in circumference at the bottom, the eruptions have been more frequent, and much more dreadful. In an eruption that happened in the year 1693, the town of Catania was overturned in a moment, and 18,000 people perished in the ruins.

of it, is the port town to Exeter,
ships above 200 tons burden coming no higher up the river. The buildings of this city, and the roads round
the adjacent country, have been greatly improved of late years; it is a place of good trade, and there is a woollen-manufactory flourishes here. It is generally styled the London of the W.
there being no city between that and the Land's end, which lies about 130
m. W. of this city. It is the see of a bishop, sends two members to parl.
and gives the title of Earl to the family of Cecil. It contains 25 parish churches, besides the cathedral, which is a very ancient structure, famous for

a fine peat of bells, the bishop's throne,
and one of the largest and most magnificent organs in this kingdom, built by one John Loosemore, a native of that county.

about 400 miles long, and as many in breadth. It is a fertile country, producing good oil, corn and pasture; and is proper for vines, as the Jews experience, where they are cultivated;
but wine being prohibited the Mahometans, there are few vineyards. The garrisons of Gibraltar and Port-mahon furnish themselves with all manner of provisions from this country, and the soil is very proper for flax. They have also a fine breed of horses, much esteemed by all the nations of Europe.
The Emperor is an absolute prince,
and the crown said to be hereditary;
but if there be more sons than one,
they usually fight for the crown, till there be but one pretender left, which occasions perpetual civil wars, the last having continued near 30 years. They are almost always at war with the Spaniards and Portuguese; the first having Ceuta, and some other towns
on the coast of Barbary, in their possession; and the Portuguese being masters of Arzailai, and some other towns sit. on the ocean, which are perpetual bones of contention between those Christian powers, and the subjects of Fez. The cavalry of Fez and Morocco are very good; but their foot are not to be depended on, or they would; long since, have recovered the towns the Spaniards and Portuguese have taken from them; however their horse prevent the Christians extending their conquests beyond the sea coasts. The religion of the country is Mahometanism, and of the same sect as the Turks are; and they entertain the like aversion for the Persians, the disciples of Mah. They frequently attack Christian ships in the ocean, as the Algerines do in the Mediterranean; their rovers lie at Saltee usually; their cruisers are very small, but full of men.

FIATONE, E. lon. 11. 14. lat. 42. 45. a town of Italy, in the pr. of Orvieto, in the Pop's ter. sit. near the lake Bolsenna, 12 m. S. of Orvieto. The see of a bish.

FIDA, Juda, or Whidah, E. lon. 3. 12. N. lat. 6. 10. the capital of a ter. of the same name, on that part of Guinea, in Africa, called the slave-coast. This country was lately conquered by the K. of Dahome, a prince whose ter. lay to the N. of Whidah; but the K. of Whidah, 'tis said, has recovered his country again. Here the English, and several other European nations; had factories, and purchased slaves; but suffered pretty much in the late wars.

FIESENUELO, E. lon. 10. 10. lat. 44. 50. a town of Italy, in the D. of Parma, 10 miles S. E. of Piacentia.

FLEURS, E. lon. 4. 35. lat. 50. 25. a village of the Austrian Netherlands, in the pr. of Namur, sit. 15 m. W. of Namur, and 6 N. E. of Charleroy; rendered memorable by a battle fought here, between the French and Dutch, anno 1690; when the Dutch foot being abandoned by their horse, made a fine retreat, and could not be broken by the French.

FLEURY, E. lon. 4. 50. lat. 47. 15. a town of France, in the pr. of Burgundy, sit. 30 m. N. of Chalons.

FLIE, or ULY-ISLAND, an island on the coast of Holland, at the entrance of the Zuidersee.

FLINT-CASTLE, an old town and castle in Flintshire in N. Wales, which gives its name to that county, sit. on the river Doc, 13 m. N. W. of Chester, and 201 N. W. of London; sends one member to parliament. Richard II. on his arrival from Ireland, took shelter in the castle for some time; but, on quitting it, was taken prisoner by the D. of Lancaster.

FLINTSHIRE, a co. of N. Wales, 29 m. in length, and 18 in breadth. It contains 23 parishes, one market-town which is St. Asaph, for the capital has no market, it sends but two members to parliament, one for the town, and one for the county.

FLIX, E. lon. 12 min. lat. 41. 12. a town and castle in Spain, in the pr. of Catalonia, sit. on the river Ebro, 25 m. N. of Tortosa, where there is a famous water-fall.

FLORENCE, E. lon. 11. 34. lat. 43. 46. the capital city of Tuscany, in Italy, sit. on the river Arno, 48 m. S. of Bologna, 125 N. of Rome, and 45 E. of Leghorn, and the Tuscan sea.

It is one of the most elegant towns in Italy, and called Florence the Fair, defended by a wall and other modern works, besides three citadels of a round figure, and 6 miles in circumference; encompassed on three sides with little fruitful hills, full of villas and country-seats; and on the W. lies that rich and extensive valley thro' which the river Arno runs as far as Pisa, and the Tuscan sea. Statues and fountains are seen in almost all their streets; their private buildings lofty; their squares spacious; their churches little inferior to those of Rome; their nobleman's palaces equal to any in Italy. The statues, paintings, and curiosities in the Great Duke's palace, are the admiration of travellers. This city, with the D. of Tuscany, was allotted to the D. of Lorraine, (late Emperor) when he ceded the D. of Lorraine to France; and his second son, the archduke Leopold, is now sovereign of Tuscany. It is an archb. and univ. This celebrated city is supposed to contain upwards of 70,000 inhabitants. It has 152 churches, 89 convents, 22 hospitals, 17 large squares, 19 gates, and 17 fountains. Among the statues, is that of Venus of Medicis, thought to be the most beautiful and finely finished statue in the world.

FLORES,

FLORIS, W. lon. 31. 12. lat. 39. 25. an island of the Azores, sit. in the Atlantic ocean, almost in the midway between Europe and America, so named from the variety of beautiful flowers it produces; sub. to Portugal.

FLORIDA, was a name given by the Spaniards to all that part of the continent of North-America, which lies N. of the gulph of Mexico, bounded on the E. by the Atlantic ocean, which country now goes under many different names, for within these limits are contained most of the English colonies in N. America, and those countries which the French have denominated Louisiana and New France. All that retains the name of Florida at present, is that peninsula between the colony of Georgia and Cape Florida, viz. between 25 and 30 degrees of N. lat. and between 83 and 89 degrees of W. lon. All Spanish Florida, and so much of the French province of Louisiana as lay to the E. of the Mississippi, (except a town of New Orleans, and a small district round it) were ceded to Great-Britain by the late treaty of peace 1763, and are now formed into the governments of E. and W. Florida. St. Augustine is the capital of E. Florida, and Pensacola of W. Florida.

FLORA (St.) E. lon. 3. 11. lat. 45. a town of France, in the pr. of Lyonsis, and ter. of Auvergne, sit. 45 m. S. of Clermont.

FLUSHING, or Vlissingen, E. lon. 3. 25. lat. 51. 30. a port-town of the United Provinces, in the pr. of Zeland, sit. on the S. coast of the island of Walcheren, 5 miles S. of Middleburg, and 14 N. E. of Sluys, in Flanders; a good secure harbour, and a town of great foreign trade. This was one of the cautionary towns delivered to the Q. of England by the Dutch, as a pledge of their fidelity, and as a security for the money she advanced in their defence against the Spaniards; and restored to them by K. James, in the succeeding reign, for a very small part of the money they were indebted to England. The Prince of Orange has the lordship of this town.

for we have recent instances of their not being a noble land. But in civil causes, these parliaments are still the last resort, where the Court does not interpose. These parliaments consist of a certain number of presidents and inferior judges, who purchase their seats openly, and the crown makes a considerable revenue by such sales. The parliament of Paris is much the most considerable. Hither the King frequently comes in person, and sees his royal acts recorded. This parliament consists of the Dukes and Peers of France, besides the ordinary judges, and takes cognizance of all offences committed by peers, where the King does not issue a special commission to try them. The other parliaments are excluded from taking cognizance of any causes which relate to the crown, or the power of the realm.

As France is divided into 30 general governments, at present, over every one of these an officer, called an Intendant, is appointed by the King, who seems to have a power of controlling the governor and all other officers of justice, and presides over the Recorders General of his generality. The whole number of parishes contained in all the generalities, amount to 38,502, in which is comprehended 1,385,112 families, liable to pay the Taille or Land-tax; which is only paid by those who hold by tenure, and tradesmen; the nobility, clergy, and gentry, are exempted from this tax. The burgesses of Paris, and some other free cities also, are exempted from the Land-tax.

There is another tax, called the Taille, payable by the same persons as the Taille, which amounts to about a third part of the former.

There is another tax, called the Aides, which arises from the customs and duties on all merchandises, except salt.

The Gabelles, are the taxes raising by salt.

The other taxes are the Capitation or Poll-tax; the ventu of all estates, offices, and employments; the fifth penny, from which neither the nobility nor clergy are exempted; and the tenths and free gifts of the clergy, who are allowed to tax themselves, but it is expected they should pay as much as the laity at least, and lastly, the crown lands, rents, fines, and forfeitures, bring in a considerable revenue; all which are computed at fifteen millions sterling per annum: besides which, vast sums are raised by raising and lowering the coin at pleasure, by compounding debentures and government bills, and other oppressive means. The Kingdom is but one great farm to the crown. The whole produce of the country is in the King's power, if he thinks fit to demand it, though he chooses to take it in the accustomed way, that he may make no more malecontents than he cannot avoid; and were there never so many, he has always armies on foot sufficient to suppress insurrections. In time of peace, he has frequently 200,000 men in pay; and in time of war sometimes 400,000, many of which are foreigners, viz. Swiss, Germans, Scotch, Irish, Swedes, and Danes. The marine force of France is not so considerable as it was in the late reign. For though the present King has several times endeavoured to perfect his navy, he seemed in the last war, to have built ships of force for the service of Great Britain, so frequent were the captures made by the English. In 1769, we were told the whole navy of France, amounted to no more than 64 ships of the line (including 10 frigates, 21 galleys, and some smaller vessels).

The religion of France is Roman Catholic, but they are less devoted to the Pope than any other nation of that communion, and have not yet admitted the interdict among them.

The Protestants fought for their religion and liberties many years.

and, at length, obtained a toleration, by a royal edict, called, The Edict of Nantes; but this being repealed by Lewis XIV. in 1685, a cruel persecution followed, which compelled several hundred thousands of them to quit the Kingdom, who were entertained in Protestant countries, to the unspeakable prejudice of this Kingdom; for they did not only lose the most industrious part of the inhabitants, but the refugees set up the French manufacturies in every country where they came, which very much lessened the demand for French merchandise. The crown of France is hereditary; but by their Salique law no female is suffered to inherit; neither is their royal line of that duration as in England; for in the pedigrees of their Kings, we find there have been three families on the throne, viz. the Merovingian, the Carolinian, and the Capetian, which had no relation to one another; the second usurping on the first, and the third upon the second, which is the present reigning family. The eldest son of France is always styled the Dauphin. The new conquests, or acquisitions, that France has made to her dominions the last hundred years, are those of Alsace and Lorrain, on the side of Germany; those of Artois, the Cambresie, part of Flanders, Hainault, and Luxemburg, on the side of the Netherlands; and Roussillon, anciently part of Catalonia, on the side of Spain. In the whole Kingdom, there are 27 archbishops, 123 bishops, 770 abbies for men, 319 abbies and priories for women, besides a great number of lesser convents, and 200 commanderies of the order of Malta; but many of the abbies, &c. have been lately suppressed, and their revenues seized by the King. The ecclesiastics of all sorts are computed at near 400,000, and their revenues at about six millions sterling. The games and amusements of the French are well known. A national vanity is their predominant passion, and they are perhaps the only people ever heard of, who have derived great utility from a national weakness; since it supports them under misfortunes, and impels them to actions to which true courage only inspires other nations.

FRANCE, (the isle of) a province of France so called, because it was formerly bounded by the rivers Seine, Marne, Oise, Aisne, and Ourque. Paris is the capital.

FRANKFORT on the Main, E. lon. 8. 36. lat. 50. 9. a city of Germany, sit. on the confines of Hesse and Franconia. It stands on both sides the river Maine, 18 miles E. of Mentz, and 15 m. W. of Hanau; a large populous city, regularly fortified and well situated for trade. It is an imperial city, that is, a sovereign state, and with a considerable territory about it, governed by its own magistrates. The Papists possess the cathedral; but the greatest part of the inhabitants being Lutheran Protestants, the Papists make no public processions through the town. In the Stadthouse, or Guildhall of this city, the Electors assemble for the choice of an Emperor, and here is preserved the Golden Bull, which contains the fundamental laws of the Empire.

FRANKFORT upon Oder, E. lon. 15. lat. 52. 22. a city of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, and mar. of Brandenburg, sit. 40 miles E. of Berlin, and sub. to Prussia. It is a large well built town, and has a flourishing trade, having a communication with the Baltic, by the river Oder, and with the Spree and Havel, by canals. It is a Calvinist university.

FRANCHE COMTE, or the co. of Burgundy, was part of the D. of Burgundy, and subject to the Spanish branch of the house of Austria, but taken from them by Lewis XIV. and confirmed to France by the treaty of Nimwegen, 1698. Besancon is the capital.

St. Lawrence, in Canada, in North America, where it issues out of the lake Ontario; to which fort and lake, a French officer gave the name of Frontigniac. This lake is 300 miles long, and upwards of 100 broad,
abundance of rivers fall into it; but the greatest body of waters it is supplied with comes from the river Niagara, being a strait, or channel between the lakes of Erie and Ontario,
which forms one of the most surprising cataracts, or falls of water, in the world. This fort was taken by the English, August 27, 1758. Colonel Bradstreet, the commander, after destroying the fortifications, aban-

GALLILEE,

GALLILEE, once a pr. of Judea, and now of Asiatic Turkey, the scene of many of our Saviour's miracles, was bounded by mount Libanus on the N. by the river Jordan and the sea of Galilee on the E. by the river Chison on the S. and the Mediterranean sea on the W. in which were the cities of Capernaum, Chorazin, and Bethsaida, which are not only gone to ruin, but the exact places where they stood, now unknown; however some pretend to point them out in their maps of Palestine; Capernaum they place at the N. end of the lake of Galilee, Chorazin on the East, and Bethsaida West of the lake.

GALL, (St.) a town of Switzerland, in the ter. of Thurgow, 5 miles W. of the lake of Constance, and adjoining to the abbey, but has now no dependence on it, the town having purchased the sovereignty of the Abbot. It is at present a republic, in alliance with the Cantons; but no ter. belongs to it, the Abbot being sovereign of the adjacent country. The legislative power of this town is lodged in two councils. It is computed the inhabitants amount to ten thousand souls, who are most of them employed in the linen manufacture; the neighbouring country furnishing them with great quantities of the best flax, out of which they annually make upwards of 40,000 pieces of lines, of 200 ells each, and are much enriched by exporting it, it being reckoned one of the wealthiest towns in Switzerland. Their religion is Protestant, which occasions continual differences between them and the adjoining abbey. The Abbot of St. Gall was at war with the Tockenburghers in the year 1713, claiming the sovereignty of that city, and ter. in which the Protestant cantons took the part of the Tockenburghers, and the Popish cantons the part of the Abbot; of which a further account will be given in the description of Switzerland. This town is seated in a barren valley, between two mountains, and upon two small streams, 37 m. N. E. of Zurich, and 62 N. E. of Lucerne.

GALLIFAGO ISLANDS, sit. in the Pacific ocean on both sides of the Equator, between 93 and 96 degrees of W. lon. 400 miles W. of the coast of Peru; hither shipping frequently come to rest and get water and fresh provisions, but the Spaniards have not thought fit to send any colonies hither, and they lie too far from any other nation to turn to any account.

GALLIPOLI, E. lon. 27. lat. 40. 30. a port-town of European Turkey, in the pr. of Romania, or Thrace, sit. at the entrance of the Propontis, or Sea of Marmora, 25 m. N. E. of the straits of the Hellespont, or Dardanelles, and 100 m. S. W. of Constantinople. There are two harbours for the reception of galleys; but they will not admit of large ships. It is computed that the inhabitants consist of 10,000 Turks, and 4000 Christians, besides a great number of Jews. This was the first town the Turks possessed themselves of in Europe.

GALLIPOLI, E. lon. 18. 10. lat. 40. 19. a port-town of Italy, in the K. of Naples, and pr. of Otranto, sit. on the gulph of Otranto, 22 m. W. of Otranto. See of a bishop.

GALLO, W. lon. 86. lat. 4. 15. an island in the Pacific Ocean, near the coast of Peru, 200 miles W. of Popayan. There being some good harbours in this island, with wood and water, the Buccaneers used to put in here to rest. This was the first place the Spaniards possessed themselves of when they attempted the conquest of Peru.

GALLO, E. lon. 15. lat. 43. 35. a town of Italy, in the mar. of Ancona, sit 10 miles S. of Ancona.

GALLO, or PUNTO GALLO, E. lon. 80. 20. lat. 6. 15. a sea-port town and fort, sit. on the S. W. part of the island of Ceylon, in the E. Indies, in Asia; sub. to the Dutch.

GALLWAY, or Galloway, a county of Ireland, 32 miles in length, and 43 in breadth: It contains 136 parishes, 17 baronies, 13 boroughs, and sends 3 members to parliament.

GALLWAY, or Galloway, W. lon. 9. 12. lat. 53. 12. the cap. of the co. of Galloway, and pr. of Connasught, in Ireland, sit. on the bay of Galloway, in the western ocean, 110 miles W. of Dublin, a good port, advantageously situated for a foreign trade; sends two members to parliament, and gives title of Viscount to the English family of Monckton. Galloway is the name of a co. and shewartry in the S.W. of Scotland, which is 170 m. in length from E. to W. and 100 in breadth from N. to S.

GAMBIA, a great river of Africa, which running from E. to W. falls into the Atlantic Ocean in 14 degrees N. lat. supposed to be a branch of the river Niger. It is navigable for sloops 600 miles, as the English factors relate, who have gone up it so far in search of gold mines, but found none. At the mouth of the river the land is low; but higher up they meet with a mountainous, rocky country, well clothed with timber. There are a great many towns, and several distinct nations inhabit the banks of this river; most of them Negroes, but some of an olive complexion, who live like the Arabs, and speak the Arabic language, and are of the Mahometan religion, as most of the Negroes N. of the river are; but those that live on the S. of the river are Pagans. James island, the chief settlement belonging to the African company, lies 10 leagues up the river, almost in the middle of it, being 3 miles from the nearest shore. The island is less than a mile in circumference, on which the company have a fort mounted with cannon, and a small garrison which preserves their right of trading in that river; they have also factories on either shore for several hundred miles up the river. They trade with the natives for gold, slaves, elephants teeth, and bees-wax. In May 1758, we took Senegal from the French, which was confirmed to England at the late peace, whereby we have acquired the whole of the gum trade. These rivers running a long course within the Tropics, annually overflow all the flat country near their banks, about Midsummer, as the Nile and the Ganges do, being swelled by the periodical rains.

GAMBIA, W. lon. 20 min. lat. 39. 6. a port-town of Spain, in the pr. of Valencia, sit. on the coast of the Mediterranean, 25 miles S. of Valencia.

GANGRA, E. lon. 46. lat. 41. the capital of a tar. in the pr. of Chirvan, in the K. of Persia, in Asia, sit. 200 m. N.W. of Baku, and the Caspian sea, and 120 miles N.E. of Erivan.

GANGA, a river of the Hither India, in Asia, rises in the mountains which separate India from Tartary, and some say farther northwards, and running from the N.W. to the S.E. near 1500 m. through the Mogul's dominions, discharges itself by several channels into the bay of Bengal. This river is in great esteem in India, not only on account of the long course it runs, the depth of its several channels, and the purity of its stream, but from the sanctity which the natives believe to be in its waters. 'Tis visited annually by several hundred thousand pilgrims, who pay their devotions to this river as a god, and carry their dying friends from distant countries, to expire on its banks, and as soon as they die, heave them into the middle of it. The water is lowest in April or May; but the rains beginning to fall soon after, the flat country is overflowed for several miles before September ends, and then the waters begin to retire, but leave a prolific mud behind, which makes Bengal the most fruitful pr. of India, for all kinds of grain. These waters keep better at sea than any other, except the Thames. The spring-tides rise usually about 10 foot here; but there have been terrible inundations

tains, and running N.W. passes by the city of Tholouse, and continuing the course N.W. divides the provinces of Guienne and Gascony, visiting the city of Bourdeaux, and afterwards discharges itself into the bay of Biscay, about 60 miles below that city, having received the river Dordonne, and several others in its passage. It has also a communication with the Mediterranean sea
by the royal canal made by Lewis XIV. The usual tide comes up the river Garonne, 20 m. above Bourdeaux.

city of Yedd, where great numbers of their priests reside, whose employment is to take care of the sacred fire, that it be never extinguished; which fire, they say, was lighted by their great prophet Zoroaster, whose return they daily expect. The employment of this people is husbandry; they never bury their dead, but expose them in the open air, to be devoured by birds of prey, in places surrounded with high walls.

GUEDERLAND, a territory of the Netherlands, bounded by the Zuider sea, and by the pr. of Overijssel on the N. by Westphalia on the E. by Brabant and Prussian Guelderland on the S. and by the pr. of Utrecht on the W. It comprehends the three counties of Nimeguen, Zutphen, and Arnhem, including the upper quarter of Gueldres, which contains the quarter of Ruremond, and is possessed by three sovereigns, viz. Gueldres belongs to the K. of Prussia; Ruremond and its dependencies, to the house of Austria; and Venloe and Stephensvaert to the States-General. It is the first of the United Provinces.

S. W. of Bern, 43 m. N. of Chamberry, and 60 m. N.W. of Lyons. It is surrounded with a wall, and other fortifications, about 2 m. in circumference; it is tolerably well built, but most admired for its situation on the lake and river, and the fine walks and prospects about it. The town is not very strong, considering its potent neighbours, whose territories in some measure surround this little state, viz. those of France and Sardinia, whose princes make some pretensions to the dominion of this city; but they are protected by their allies, the cantons of Bern of Zurich, against the attacks of both. The inhabitants are computed to amount to 30,000. This is the great resort of the Calvinists from France, and other nations, tions, for education; it having been the place of Calvin's residence, and his disciples having had the dominion of this city ever since. They expelled their bishop in the year 1553,

who was their sovereign at that time,
and erected a republic, placing the legislative authority in a council of 200, and a senate of 25, who have the executive power, or administration of the government; none but the principal citizens were admitted to have any share in the government, or election of magistrates; but the common people have of late insisted on a share in the administration, and compelled their superiors to delegate part of their power to them. Their church is Presbyterian, governed by the city clergy, the Burghmaster of reformation, and six others elected out of the great council; but their decrees, or canons, are of no force, till ratified by the great council. Their clergy have neither glebe nor tithes,
but are allowed 50 l. per annum each,
by the states. They will neither allow of cards, drinking in public houses, or dancing; but are less strict in keeping the sabbath than their brethren in this island; for they exercise their militia on Sundays,
and go to bowls, and other manly sports. The adjoining lake is 60 miles long, and 12 broad, and produces great plenty of the best fish.
They have a good foreign trade;
their manufactures are chiefly gold
and silver lace, silks, and shammy leather. Here is an university, but no salaries settled on the professors
or fellows; their subsistence arising from the contributions of their pupils. The language of the common people is the Savoyard, or a very bad dialect of the French tongue; but people of condition speak French in greater purity. This republic was once allied to the Roman Catholic,
as well as the Protestant cantons of Switzerland; but since they have embraced the doctrine of Calvin,
the Popish cantons are not reckoned among their allies.

GENOA, is a republic in Italy,
whose territories lie in the form of a crescent, on the Mediterranean sea,
for 150 miles, viz. from the town of Ventimiglia on the W. to the
ter. of the republic of Lucca almost on the E. and is properly called the Riviera, or coast of Genoa, their country no where extending 20 miles from the sea, and in some parts not 10; the Apennine mountains, in a manner, cover it on the land side,
and separate it from the country
of Nice, Piedmont, and Montserrat,
the Milanese and Parmesan. The tops of these mountains are perfectly bare, having neither trees or herbage upon them; but towards the bottom they are well planted with vines, olives, and other fruit; but their soil yields scarce any corn, and their seas not many fish.

GENOA city, the capital of this republic, is sit. 8 deg. 57 min. E.
lon. and in 44 deg. 25 min. N. lat.
part of it on a level strand near
the sea, but rises gradually to the top of the hill. The houses are well built, five or six stories high,
and rising like the seats of a theatre,
afford a very fine prospect, as we approach it from the sea. The harbour is large and deep, but exposed to the S. W. wind, only there is a mole for the security of their gallees
and small vessels, and the city lies poorly much exposed to a bombardment, as they experienced in the year 1684, when Lewis XIV. ordered the town to be beat about their ears; but it has been since rebuilt to great advantage, with stone and brick, the roofs generally flat. Their principal street, according to Mr. Addison, is a double range of palaces,
from

from one end to the other, built with excellent fancy, and fit to entertain the greatest princes; the fronts of several of them entirely of marble. The circumference of the city is 6 miles, surrounded by a wall and other works: and at a little distance there is a second wall, which takes in the hills that command the place. There are in the city 57 churches, 17 convents, and it is the see of an archb. The legislative authority is lodged in the Great Senate, consisting of the signiory, and 400 noblemen and principal citizens, elected annually out of the freemen. The signiory consists of the Doge and 12 other members, who hold their places two years; to whom, assisted by some other councils, is committed the administration of the government, four parts in five of the senate must agree to the enacting laws. The Doge is obliged to reside in the palace the two years he is in office, with two of the signiory and their families; and after he has served his two years, he retires to his own house for eight days, when his administration is approved or condemned; and if it be censured, he is proceeded against as a criminal. His guards are equal to those of other crowned heads, and he is clothed in robes of crimson velvet, and complimented with the title of Most Serenè. The senators are styled their Excellencies, and the Nobility Illustrious. The nobility derive their titles from the lands they possess in Naples, Milan, and other countries; but the republic suffers much by permitting her subjects to purchase honours and estates of foreign princes; for this renders the principal families amongst them subject to another jurisdiction. When the Spaniards possessed Milan and Naples, they were obliged to be governed by Spanish councils, and when the Austrians possess those countries, the Austrians influence their affairs, which for times draws on them the resentment of other powers, particularly the French, who have not only bombarded their towns, but obstructed their foreign trade; and their formidable fleets, which heretofore gained so many victories over the Greeks, the Venetians, Turks, Spaniards, &c. and settled so many colonies in Asia, and the Euxine Sea, are now dwindled to six galleys; and when they would have increased them, the French ordered them to forbear increasing their navy at their peril. Their forces at land are usually about 4 or 5000, and they can increase them to 20,000. Their ordinary revenue is computed at 200,000 l. per annum, but they can increase it considerably, many of their subjects being very rich. There is a bank at Genoa, which has part of the public duties for its fund. The crown of Spain is very much in debt to this Republic for money lent during the reign of Philip II. and other sums taken up since, for which Spain continues to pay the interest, or part of it, to this day; but has never offered to repay any of the principal. Their country being but a barren spot, they usually keep two or three years provisions of corn, wine, and oil, and other necessities in their magazines, which they sell out at reasonable prices, in scarce years, to the people. The chief manufactories of Genoa are rich silks, velvets, and brocades; of which they export abundance; together with wine, oil, fruits, anchovies, sweet-meats, and several sorts of drugs. The celebrated Andrew Doria, one of the greatest admirals and generals of his time, freed his country from the tyranny of the French and Spaniards, and settled their government in the present form, anno 1528. It is 70 miles S. of Milan, 62 S. E. of Turin, 65 S. W. of Parma, 112 N. W. of Florence, and 225 N. W. of Rome.

GOOKOR (St.) fort and town, E. lon. 80. 33. lat. 13. 13. sit. on the coast of Coromandel, in the Hither India, in Asia, 3 m. N. of the city of St. Thomas, and 63 N. of Pondicherry. The town is divided into the white and black town. The fort, and white town, which adjoins to the fort, are inhabited only by English, and are not above half a mile in circumference, surrounded by a stone wall. The outward or black town, called Madras, was surrounded by a stone wall and bastions, cannon proof, by the late governor Pitt, and is about a mile and a half in circumference; the whole being almost surrounded by a river and the sea. This is the capital or presidency of all the settlements the English East-India company have on the coast of Coromandel, and is a healthful pleasant situation as any in India; the garrison does not consist of more than 3 or 400 men, besides Blacks. The Mogul's generals visit them sometimes, demanding a tribute, or presents from the governor, which he is obliged to comply with; for tho' he might defend himself against the Mogul's forces, which consist chiefly of horse; yet they are able to ruin the company's trade, and cut off their communication with the country; where the English purchase of the natives calicoes, chints, muslins, and sometimes diamonds. The company purchased this settlement and a small tar, about it, of the K. of Golconda; but the Mogul afterwards making a conquest of the country, looks upon himself entitled to this, as well as the rest of the towns in that Kingdom. The white town is pretty well built with brick; the rooms lofty, and flat roofs; but the black town, in which merchants and people of every Asiatic nation almost inhabit, makes but an indifferent figure, consisting chiefly of thatched cottages; however the people are very numerous, and some of them very rich. In the white town there is an elegant English church, and another for the Portuguese Catholics. In the black town there is an Armenian Christian church, and several Pagoda's, or Indian temples. A universal toleration reigns here; no disputes about religion or riots, or tumults, disturb the peace of the place; and robberies and other disorders, are scarce ever heard of. The unhappy people are the company's soldiers, who are prisoners for life, never suffered to stir out of the town, and whipped at a post for every trivial offence; though it must be allowed their pay is good, considering the cheapness of provisions, and they are very well clothed; every soldier has a black boy to wait on him, and puts on a white shirt every day almost. The government of the town resembles an English corporation, with a mayor and aldermen, and they have lately received authority from England, to punish offenders capitally. The military power is lodged in the governor and council, who are also the last resort in civil causes. The company have two chaplains here, who officiate in the English church by turns, allowing them a house and 100 l. per ann. and the governor and council allow them so many advantages in trade, or rather traffic for them, that they generally make a fortune of 10,000 l. in ten years time. As for making proselytes, or converting the Indians, this does not seem to be any part of their business; this is left entirely to the Popish missionaries, who practise even upon the slaves of the Protestant inhabitants, and make good Catholics of them. The salaries of the writers who keep the company's accounts, are exceeding small; they have only their table and 5 l. per annum, annum, and the factors 15*l.* per annum; and were they not in expectation of rising gradually to better posts, and had something of their own to subsist on, and traffic with, few would accept these employments. The salary of the judge advocate is but 10*l.* per annum, and the attorney-general's 23*l.* per annum; but they must have other ways of making money, for they all grow rich. It was taken by the French in 1746, but rendered back to the English after the peace.

GRANGE'S (ST.) W. lon. 65. 12. lat. 32. 30. the largest of the Bermuda or Summer islands, sit. 300 m. E. of Charles-Town, and the continent of America.

GEORGIA, in Asia, the ancient Iberia, is bounded by Circassia and Daghestan on the N. by the Caspian sea on the E. by Armenia or Turcomania on the S. and by Mingrelia on the W. the eastern and much the largest division is sub. to Persia; the capital city Teflis, though neither Georgia nor the ancient Iberia, extended so far eastward as the Caspian sea, but it is separated from it by the pr. of Chirvan. It is a mountainous but fruitful country, producing corn, wine, and cattle in abundance; and the difficult access of some of their mountains has preserved them from being absolutely subdued, either by the Turks or Persians; but what this country is most remarkable for, is the beauty of the natives, and the traffic they carry on with the Turks and Persians for their children, who are sold and carried young to both those courts, where they expect to be advanced to the greatest honours; and for this reason their parents part with them with joy, instead of lamenting their absence.

GEORGIA, an English plantation in N. America, lies South of S. Carolina, separated from it on the N. by the river Savannah, bounded by the Atlantic ocean on the E. by the river of St. John, which divides it from Florida on the S. and on the

W. it has no known bounds. The river of St. John, which is the southern boundary, lies in 30 degrees 21 min. N. lat. The land of Carolina is low near the sea, and covered with wood; but begins to rise into hills at 25 miles distance, and at length terminates in mountains, which run in a line from N. to S. on the back of Virginia and Carolina, ending in the pr. of Georgia, about 200 miles from the bay of Apalachicola, in the gulph of Mexico; there being a plain country from the foot of those mountains to that sea. The Savannah is navigable 600 miles for canoes, and 300 for boats. The coast of Georgia is defended from the fury of the ocean, by a range of islands, which run parallel to it; and both the islands and continent being well wooded, the channel between them is extremely pleasant. There are sand-banks upwards of 70 miles from the coast of Georgia, and the water shoals gradually, till you come within six miles of the land, where the banks are so shallow, that they bar all further passage, except in the channels which lie between the bars; and these were supposed a sufficient defence against the fleets of an enemy; but the Spaniards, it seems, found means to pass the channels and attack the island of St. Simon, in the year 1742, which had been lost, with the town of Frederica, if General Oglethorpe had not defeated their design by his excellent conduct. When ships have passed the bars, they meet with a commodious and secure harbour. in the mouth of the river Savannah; and there is still a more capacious harbour to the South of it, called Teky Sound, where there is anchoring for a large fleet, in 10 or 14 fathoms water, and land-locked, and a safe entry through the bar. The tides on this coast generally flow seven feet. There are several towns already built in Georgia, by the trustees for that colony, particularly the town of Savannah, on the banks of vinces of the Netherlands; but the Empire.

There are in Germany upwards
 of 300 sovereign princes and state-
 most of them arbitrary in their respective territories: 1. the Emperor;
 2. the nine Electors; 3. the ecclesiastical Princes, consisting of Archbi-shops, Bishops, Abbots and Abbees;
 4. secular Princes, consisting of Dukes, Marquises, Counts, Landgraves, Earls,
 and Barons; 5. free cities, which are either Imperial or Hans-towns. The Imperial cities are sovereign states,
 and send their deputies, or representatives, to the general diets, or parliaments of the Empire. The Hans-towns also are sovereign states, not different from the other Imperial cities at present, but were about 200 years ago allied or confederated for their mutual defence, and the protection of their trade; and at first consisted only of the great sea port towns on the German ocean, or the Baltic sea, and near the mouths of their great rivers; but afterwards they took in many inland cities into their alliance, monopolized most of the trade of Europe, and were a most formidable maritime power.

Germany is generally a level country, towards the N. and E. consisting of a barren sand, or marsh: on the
 S. it is incumbered with the mountains of the Alps, but in the middle of the country there is a variety of hills, vallies, fruitful fields, and meadows, especially along the banks of their great rivers, the Danube, Rhine, &c. Abundance of fine cities, castles,
 and

and palace adorn it; and it is much more populous than France.

Charlemain, the son of Pepin, K. of France, laid the foundation of the German empire, in the year 800, being then sovereign of Italy, and a great part of Spain, and the S. of Germany, as well as France; the Empire being afterwards divided among the posterity of Charlemain, the sovereign of Germany and Italy only retained the title of Emperor, the Princes of the Empire being then his vassals. The Imperial crown was hereditary for 300 years after Charlemain, when the Pope, to lessen the Imperial authority, and advance his own, incited the German Princes to alter the constitution, and render the Imperial crown elective. And during the struggles between the Emperor and the Pope, for superiority, several sovereign states and principalities were created in Italy and Germany, which claimed an independency on either.

The Emperors, after the hereditary line was broke, were at first elected by the body of the people, which occasioned some confusion; the nobility and great officers of state excluded the common people from their share in the election, and chose the Emperor themselves; and the number of Electors was at length reduced to seven, viz. the Archbishops of Mentz, Trier, and Cologne, the King of Bohemia, the D. of Saxony, the Palgrave or Prince Palatine of the Rhine, and the Marquis of Brandenburg; to whom the Dukes of Bavaria and Hanover have been since added. The Emperor is obliged to keep the number of Electors complete; and in failure of male issue of any one, to confer the vacant place upon a German prince. Nor can the Electors divest themselves of that dignity, or transfer it to any other than the right heir; for the succession is regulated by the Salique law, according to the right of seniority, being independent of all transactions, testaments, and other civil acts used in other cases for changing the order of succession. But, notwithstanding the Imperial dignity was elective, the Austrian family found means to continue it in that house for 300 years, viz. from 1273, when Albert D. of Austria became possessor of the Imperial dignity, till, for want of male issue of the house of Austria, the Elector of Bavaria was chosen Emperor, anno 1742; who, contending for the hereditary dominions of the house of Austria, brought himself into great difficulties, ruined his native country of Bavaria, and after a short and troublesome reign, died in his own capital, on the 9th day of January in 1745.

The Emperor is now chosen by the nine Electors, on a demise, unless a King of the Romans hath been chosen in the preceding reign, and then he succeeds of course.

The Emperor is the fountain of honour in Germany, and disposes of almost all places and honours, civil and military, except those that are hereditary; as the great chancellor, treasurer, &c. which are rather honorary than lucrative posts.

By the Golden Bull, the person elected Emperor, ought to be a Christian Prince, of German extraction, and 25 years of age; and is obliged to sign a capitulation, which the Electors present him, before he is installed; by which he promises to maintain the rights and privileges of the Electors, Princes, and States of the empire; that he will not alienate the lands or revenues of the crown; that he will not introduce foreign forces, or employ foreigners in his service.

The Emperor's ordinary revenue arises from the Crown lands, fines, forfeitures, and confiscations; and he is heir-general to all the princes and nobility of the Empire, that leave no heirs male. There is also a tax, called Roman months, to which all the Princes and States contribute in certain proportion, for the support of the government; and all extraordinary taxes are raised, and forces

for the defence of the Empire maintained by the seven Electors, Princes,
and States, at their own expence;
or by taxes raised by the Diet, or General Assembly of the Electors,
Princes, and States of the Empire.
They are well able to raise and pay 500,000 men; and were they unanimous would be an overmatch for France by land; but this scarce ever happens. The French, when they enter into war with Germany, ever corrupt some of the Princes of the Empire, and bring them over to their party; or incite the Turk, or Sultan, or make a division in their favour.

The Diet, or Parliament of the Empire, consists of the Emperor, the seven Electors, the ecclesiastical and secular Princes of the Empire, and the deputies of the towns, who constitute the legislature, to whose laws
all the Princes and States are subject;
but yet every Elector, Prince, and State, are sovereigns in their respective territories, where the Diet
or the supreme courts of judicature
do not interpose; for there are two such councils; one called the Aulic council, and the other the Chamber of Spire: each consisting of fifty members of the first quality, some appointed by the Emperor, others
by the Electors, and the rest by the several Clashes. The Emperor's revenue, as Emperor, was not very great; but then he is at no charge
in the administration of the government, or maintaining forces. These are provided for by the Empire.
And the Austrian Emperor had very considerable revenues from their hereditary countries, which, with the disposal of all places of profit, gave them such an influence, that they were able to keep the possession of the Imperial throne for 300 years;
and might have kept it much longer,
if there had not been a defect of male issue.

The Germans are much divided in their opinions of religion; the principal sects are those of the Papists, the Lutherans, and Calvinists;
there are also Independents, Ana-baptists, Quakers, and Christians of every other denomination; and a multitude of Jews, in all their great towns. The Emperor is always a Roman Catholic; Saxony and Brandenburg are most of them Lutherans;
but some Calvinists; Bavaria and Austria, are Catholics; the Rati-bona and the Upper and Lower Rhine
are a mixture of all denominations;
the Imperial cities are most of them
Lutherans, and some Calvinists; the two last sects and persecute one another more than they do the Papists.
At the treaty of Munster, or Westphalia, anno 1648, the Protestants were not only tolerated, but put on the same foot with the Papists, in their respective territories. But from the information till that time, they were almost always at war; and for several hundred thousand Christians perished in the quarrel. When the Protestant religion was established by that treaty, several archbishops, bishops, and abbays were secularised,
converted into Duchies, or Lay-lands,
and applied to the support of the government, with the revenue of all church lands. The Protestant clergy of Germany have neither globe or tithes; but depend on the bounty of their respective governments for their support. Instead of bishops, the Lutherans have superintendents; and the Calvinist churches are governed by their Presbyters, or Parish Priests, and Elders, who are all equal, and claim no superiority over any of their brethren.

Germany produces corn, wine, oil,
sheep, black cattle, and an uncal-cated breed of horses, fit for the coach or army; and with these the French usually remount their cavalry.
The country also produces great quantities of flax and hemp; and they have abundance of good timber; none

should their bacon, beer, and meat, be forgot; they have also mines of iron, copper, and silver, lead, salt, coal, vitriol, quicksilver, nitre, ore, and sulphur; and some of the best medicinal springs and baths in Europe; as at Pymont, Baden, Aix la-Chapelle, &c. They have also plenty of deer, fish, and fowl; and their orchards are full of the best fruits. The people are excellent mechanics and chymists: the invention of printing and gun-powder, is generally ascribed to them; clocks, watches, locks, swords, and fire-arms, they have also brought to great perfection; and they have in a manner monopolized the manufactures of tin plates, or white iron. They are reckoned good artists at painting and engraving; and are excellent engineers. They carry on their foreign trade by the rivers Rhine, Elbe, Oder, Weser, and the Baltic sea; particularly from the ports of Hamburg, Lubeck, Bremen, Stettin, &c. and by land, with Italy, Switzerland, France, and Holland; they export a good deal of linen, particularly to England; and what we call Dutch toys comes from hence: provisions, and consequently labour, are very cheap; so it could never turn to account to employ their hands in such trifles. Vienna is generally considered as the capital city, and the Emperors, since Charles V. have resided there, till the death of Charles VI. and now the present Emperor resides there again. The extent of Germany is about 600 miles in length, and 550 in breadth. The air is temperate and wholesome, but more inclined to cold than heat, especially by the sea side. The language of Germany is a dialect of the Teutonic, which succeeded that called the Celtic.

This

This was generally the whole quantity of the English feet in Queen Anne's war; there were sometimes twenty-five regiments of English in the place, who had a chapel, and the English service regularly performed every Sunday. It is reckoned an beautiful situation by the natives;
 but there lie buried some thousands of English on St. Peter's hill, before the great barrack, most of them
 new raised men, with whom the climate did not agree; and indeed
 there is usually a great mortality
 among the English, who are sent to any foreign country: it was still worse in Ireland, in King William's wars, after the revolution. There are 7 parish churches, and 55 munasteries and nunneries; in the great square is the statue of the Emperor Charles V. King of Spain, who was born in the castle; and here John of Gaunt, son of Edward III. King of England, was born. The silk, linen, and woollen manufactures flourish
 here: they have a great trade in corn; and it is exceedingly well situated for a foreign trade, by the numerous rivers and canals. The French possessed themselves of this city, and the rest of the town in Flanders, on the death of Charles II.
 King of Spain, in the name of the Duke of Anjou, whom they set upon the throne of Spain; but it surrendered to King Charles III. and his confederates, immediately after the victory they obtained over the French at Ramillies, in 1706. The French surprised Ghent again, in 1708, as they did also the city of Bruges; but the D. of Marlborough having reduced the city of Lille, and invested Ghent in December following, the city surrendered within two or three days, tho' the French had an army of 20,000 men in the place;
 and they immediately after evacuated
 all the Austrian Flanders. It is the see of a bish. and sub. to the house of Austria; but the civil government of the city is lodged in the Burgher-master and Schepier, or their Mayor and Aldermen.

GIBRALTAR, W. lon. 4. 53. lat.
 34. 25. a port town in the pr. of Andalusia, in Spain, sit on the Strait
 between the Ocean and the Medi-

 It stands at the foot of mount Calpe, generally supposed to be one of Hesculus' pillars about 25 miles N. of Ceuta in Africa, 40 S. W. of Cadix, and 20 S. of Seville. It is built on a rock in a peninsula; and can only be approached on the land side, by a very narrow passage between the mountain and the sea, cross which the Spaniards have drawn a line, and fortified it, to prevent the garrison having any communication with the country. It was taken by the considerable fleet commanded by Sir George Rook, in two days, anno 1704. The French and Spaniards attempted to retake it the same year;
 and 4 or 500 of them crept up the rock which covers this town, in the night time; but were drove down head-long the next morning. They besieged it again 1727; but were forced to raise the siege, after they had lain before it several months.
 They attempted at this siege to blow up the rock with gun-powder; but found it impracticable. The strait, to which this town gives name, is about 24 miles long, and 15 broad,
 and there is a strong current less thro'
 it from the Ocean to the Mediterranean, which requires a brisk gale
 to stem it. The garrison of Gibraltar is cooped up in very narrow limits;
 and the little ground they have, produces scarce any thing. They have all their provision from England, and the coast of Barbary. The road is very unsafe either against enemies or storms. It is made a free port, and merchants have been invited to settle

where, to little purpose; but it is now made a corporate town, and the civil power, at length, put into the hands of the magistrates, there being some notorious oppressions while the people were under a military government. It was ceded to England by the treaties of Utrecht and Seville.

GNESNA, E. lon. 18. 2. lat. 53. the capital town of Great Poland, sit. 125 miles W. of Warsaw; the see of an archbishop, who is always Primate of Poland, and Viceroy during the vacancy of the throne. It was the first town that was built in the kingdom.

GOA, E. lon. 75. 50. lat. 15. 31. a great town and sea port of the Nether India, in Asia, sit. on the Malabar coast, in the K. of Decan, or Vissapour, the capital of the Portuguese settlements in India. It stands on an island of the river Mandous, about 3 miles from the mouth of it; and by the strength of its situation and the fortifications the Portuguese have added to it, has been able to defend itself both against the Dutch and the natives, who have besieged it several times. The island it stands upon is 24 miles in circumference; and the hills, which surround it at a little distance, on the neighbouring continent, render it very hot and unhealthful. The town is about 2 miles in length, and half a one in breadth; and is not only fortified with walls and ramparts, but the whole island is surrounded by a wall, bastions, and other modern works, which secure their fields and gardens from the incursions of enemies; and indeed the Portuguese have fortified the banks of the river from the very mouth of it, with redoubts and batteries of guns, which make the attacking of it more difficult than any other town in India. Near to the country between the town and the sea more secure than it is pleasant, being full of country-seats and villages, well planted with all such fruits as are found between the tropics. The Viceroy, who resides in this town, commands all the settlements the Portuguese are masters of, from the Cape of Good Hope to China, which are very numerous; and the clergy in the Portuguese towns and settlements in Asia, and the E. coast of Africa, are subject to the archbishop of Goa. The buildings of this town are of stone, and very magnificent. They have abundance of convents and superiors here; and it is surprising to see what numbers of Monks, and other Popish ecclesiastics, there are in this town, and on the coast of Malabar and Golconda; but they do not make many proselytes among the Indian Pagans, and as for the Mahometans, who have the government in their hands, it is as much as a missionary's life is worth to attempt to make a convert of any of them: their labours are chiefly bestowed on the slaves and dependents of the European factories and settlements on these coasts; for the Protestants having few or no missionaries in India, permit the Popish priests to make as many converts to Christianity as they can in their own way. It is 250 miles N. by W. of Cochin.

In taking the Island of Comor, from the Portuguese, (then one of the greatest rulers in the E.) the government allowed the English some extraordinary privileges, and half the customs of the port; and, till very lately, a great sum in lieu of these. It stands about 30 miles N. E. of the Arabian coast, and about 300 miles S. E. of Schian. Besides the native Persians, it is inhabited by English, Dutch, Portuguese, Arabs, Jews, Armenians, Indians, Banians, and several other nations, of which the Armenians and Banians are much the greatest traders. It is an unhealthy place, which occasions most of the inhabitants to renounce the country during the hot season, the winters being the time for traffic. Trading there was made by the English East India company, in carrying the merchandise of the Armenians, Moors, Indians, &c. from Comor to Surat, was one great branch of the company's trade; they seldom sent ships from Comor to Surat, but the vessels sailed as far as the coast, with their chests, bullock passengers, and a vast quantity of treasure on board, sometimes of the value of two or three hundred thousand pounds. But this traffic has been discontinued some time.

GREENLAND, or Spitzbergen, sit. between 10 and 30 degrees of E. lon. and between 77 and 82 degrees of N. lat. a cold, miserable country, without inhabitants, and very few animals, or vegetables. The animals are chiefly deer, bears, foxes, wild-fowl, and fish. But fish and fowl forsake it in the winter, where there is a night of four months, and all waters frozen up. Here the Dutch fish for whales with great success, about Midsummer, and enjoy continual day, the sun being above the horizon all the twenty-four hours, for four months together. The Dutch have attempted to settle colonies here twice; but all their people perished in the winter. On the other hand, eight Englishmen were left here, by accident all winter, without provisions, and yet found means to preserve themselves, 'till the shipping returned next summer. The English first began the whale-fishery here; but the Dutch have long since beaten them out of it. Whether East Greenland be a continent or island is uncertain; some imagine it to be contiguous to West Greenland, but never any man made the experiment.

Meer. The streets are wide and straight, and canals run through several of them, and there is a wall and other fortifications about the town, but of no great strength. They have large manufactories of silk, velvet, and linen here, as also of thread and tapes. Here Laurence Coffer dwelt, to whom the Dutch ascribe the invention of printing; but he only engraved letters in wood.

H A G E N A U, E. lon. 7. 40. lat. 48. 45. a fortified town of Germany, in the lan. of Alsace, sit. 14 miles N. of Strasburg, frequently taken and retaken in the late wars; but subject to France.

H A G U E, or Graven Hague, 1. a. the Earl's Grove, E. lon. 4. 12. lat. 52. 10. a town of the United Provinces, in the pr. of Holland, sit. 4 miles E. of the sea, 10 m. N. W. of Rotterdam, and 9 m. S. W. of Leyden; encompassed with fine meadows and groves, but no walls, and therefore esteemed a village, but it is equal to the largest and most elegant town in Europe, and enjoys all the privileges of a city of Holland, except that of sending representatives to the States. But here the States of the province of Holland, and the States General assemble, as well as the council of state, and their supreme courts of justice; and here foreign ministers are admitted to audience, and all public affairs transacted, and here is a palace, in which there is an apartment for the Princes of Orange when Stadtholders; the chambers of the States General, and Provincial, and of the Council of State. On the West of the palace is a large area, surrounded by good houses, and planted with fine walks of trees, which makes it sometimes to be compared to St. James's Park; and here every city of the United Provinces has a house for their respective deputies. But notwithstanding the place place is very populous, and there is so great a resort of people of figure here, they have but two churches in it. On the N. side of the Hague is a walk planted with lime-trees, 2 miles long, extending to the village of Scheveling, by the sea side.

HAILBRON, E. lon. 9. 8. lat. 49. 10. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Suabia, and D. of Wirtemberg, called Hailbron, or the Fountain of Health, on account of its excellent baths. It is situated on the river Neckar, in a pleasant fruitful country, 25 miles N. of Stutgard, and 25 m. S. E. of Heidelberg; an imperial town, or sovereign state.

HAINAN, or Aynan, an island of China, in Asia, sit. between 107 and 110 degrees of E. lon. and between 18 and 20 degrees of N. lat. about 50 miles S. of the continent of China, and subject to that K. It is of an oval form, about 400 m. in circumference, and has both gold and silver mines in it, and a pearl fishery; and there is a lake in the island which petrifies fish, it is said, but the instance given of it is a crab, the shell whereof was petrified, probably after the fish was dead.

HAMADAN, E. lon. 47. 5. lat. 35. 15. a city of Persia, in Asia, in the pr. of Eyrac Agem, 200 miles N. W. of Isfahan, and 200 N. E. of Bagdat.

HAMBURG, E. lon. 10. lat. 53. 41. a great city and hans-town of Germany, in the circle of Lower Saxony, and D. of Holstein, sit. on the river Elbe, 70 miles S. E. of the German ocean, 40 miles S. W. of Lubec, and 55 m. N. E. of Bremen. It stands on the N. side of the river Elbe, partly on islands, and partly on the continent; the territory subject to it is small, but there are several large villages and noblemen's seats in it. The tide flows through the channels, which separate the islands; and the town lies so low, that in some spring tides they receive great damage in their houses. They have spacious streets, and their houses are built of brick, very high, and make a grand figure. As the town is naturally strong, it is as well fortified by art also, as a town of that magnitude can well be; and it is exceeding populous, merchants from all parts of Europe resorting to it, from whence their goods are sent into the middle of the Empire by the Elbe. All provisions are plentiful here, and their beer has such a reputation, that they export a great deal of it. They have very elegant gardens and summer houses for several miles about the town on the land side; and on the water, ships come up to their doors, to deliver and take in their lading; the tide flowing 16 miles above the town. It is a free imperial city, or sovereign state, governed by its own magistrates, subject only to the general laws of the Empire, as other Princes and States are; but the people have sometimes disputed the authority of the Senate, of late years, and the Empire has interposed, and compelled them to put an end to their dissensions by force. And the K. of Denmark, as D. of Holstein, sometimes lays claim to the dominion of this city, and extorts money from them; for as he is possessed of the fortress of Gluckstadt, towards the mouth of the river, it lies in his power to distress them pretty much. Their liberties also are sometimes endangered by religious disputes with the Roman Catholics, in whose behalf the Emperor sometimes interposes, as he did in the year 1708, commanding a body of troops to march into the city, and they were forced to buy their peace. They are at variance also with other denominations of Protestants, for the Lutheran pers-

HAMCREW, E. lon. 120. lat. 30. cap. of the pr. of Chekiang, in China, in Asia, sit. on the river Canton, 160 miles S. E. of Nankin.

HAMELIN, E. lon. 9. 32. lat. 52. 15. a town of Germany, in the circle of Lower Saxony, and D. of Brunswick, sit. on the river Weser, 27 miles S. W. of Hanover, and sub. to the Elector. The French possessed themselves of this town in 1757, but quitted it in Feb. 1758.

HAMILTON, W. lon. 3. 50. lat. 55. 40. a town of Scotland, in the co. of Clydesdale, sit. on the river Clyde, 11 miles S. E. of Glasgow; from whence the noble family of Hamilton take their name and title of Duke.

HAMMERSMITH, a village in Middlesex, 4 miles W. of London, a little to the N. of the Thames.

HAMMONT, E. lon. 5. 32. lat. 51. 20. a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, and bish. of Liege, sit. near the confines of Brabant, 17 miles W. of Roermond, and 15 m. N. W. of Mayesiek.

HAMPSHIRE, an English county, bounded by Berkshire on the N. Surrey and Sussex on the E. the English channel on the S. and Wiltshire and Dorsetshire on the W. the chief towns Winchester, Southampton, and Portsmouth; and it comprehends the isle of Wight. It contains 253 parishes, 20 market towns, and sends 20 members to parl. It is remarkable for a forest, called the New-Forest, for the making of which, William the Conqueror is said to have demolished 36 churches.

HAMPSHIRE NEW, a pr. of New England, in N. America, bounded by New Scotland on the N. by the Atlantic ocean on the E. by the pr. of the Massachusetts bay on the S. and by New York on the W. subject to Great Britain, and governed by a governor, council, and house of representatives; the governor and council appointed by the King. This country seems very proper for producing naval stores; a great part of it is appropriated by act of parliament, for furnishing, masts, yards, &c. for the royal navy.

HAMPSTEAD, a very populous village, in Middlesex, 4 miles N. of London; admired for its air, its situation, its elegant buildings, and medicinal waters.

HAMPTON, or Hampton-court, a town in Middlesex, sit. on the N. side of the Thames, 12 miles S. W. of London, and 2 W. of Kingston; near which is the finest palace the King of Great Britain possesses, built by Cardinal Wolsey, who gave it to Henry VIII. but the buildings, gardens, parks, &c. were greatly improved and enlarged by K. William.

HAMPTON, a market town of Gloucestershire, sit. 14 miles S. of Gloucester, and 90 W. of London.

HAMPTON, W. lon. 74. lat. 32. 45. a port town of New Hampshire, sit. 40 miles N. of Boston.

HANAU, a city of Germany, in the cir. of the Lower Rhine, and ter. of Wetteravia, is bounded by the lan. of Hesse-Cassel on the N. by the territories of the abbey of Fulda on the E. by the river Main and the territories of Mentz on the S. and by the co. of Nassau on the W. being about 40 miles in length, and 13 in breadth; sub. to its Earl, who is now lan. of Hesse-Cassel.

HANAU CITY, E. lon. 8. 55. lat. 50. 12. the cap. of the co. of Hanau, is pleasantly sit. on the river Kunte, on the N. side of the river Main, 13 miles E. of Francfort, and 12 m. N. W. of Aschaffenburg.

HANOVER, E. lon. 9. 45. lat. 52. 32. a city of Germany, in the circle of Lower Saxony, capital of the King of Great Britain's German dominions, situate on the river Leina, 16 miles W. of Brunswick, is surrounded by a wall and other works of

of no great strength; nor is there any thing very elegant in the palace, or castle, which is rather commodious than magnificent, and the town generally ill built. The best edifice is the Roman Catholic church, which was assigned to the Papists, when the late King's father, George I. of England, was made the ninth Elector. That Prince also engaged to admit an apostolical vicar in his dominions from the Pope, and to permit him to reside in the city of Hanover; and Divine Service is performed here by the Roman Catholics, as in a cathedral, and their numbers are very considerable; but the established religion is the Luthoran. There is a court kept in this city in the King's absence, the same number of gentlemen, pages, domestics, and guards, as if he was present; and a French comedy acted three times a week, to which all people are admitted gratis; and there are frequently concerts, balls, and assemblies. The situation of Hanover is very agreeable, and there are several pretty seats in the neighbourhood. The Elector is absolute here, and in the rest of his German dominions; he is arch-treasurer of the Empire. His revenues are computed to amount to 400,000 l. per ann. and he is able to raise 30,000 men in all his territories, which, besides Hanover, consist of the Duchies of Lauenburg and Zell, Bremen and Verden; and the D. of Lawenberg; most part of which lie between the rivers Weser and Elbe, and extend near 200 miles in length, from S. E. to N. W. and are from 150 to 50 in breadth; but then within these limits are the territories of several other princes and states, as the bish. of Hildesheim, and D. of Brunswick Proper, Wol. embutte-Blankenburg, the territories of the city of Bremen, and of several other Imperial cities. These dominions seem very well situated for a foreign trade, lying upon the German sea, and the two great rivers of the Elbe and the Weser; however, trade does not flourish here: either they have but few staple commodities, or men of substance do not apply themselves to foreign traffic. The country is pretty much over-run with wood, and the soil is not fruitful where it is not. The chief articles of their trade are timber, cattle, hogs, and some minerals, viz. a little silver, copper, lead, iron, vitriol, brimstone, quicksilver, and copperas; with mumm, beer, and bacon.

HANSE-TOWNS; port towns of Germany, formerly confederated for their mutual defence, and protection of their trade, of which Lubeck and Hamburg were the chief; they were all of them imperial cities, or sovereign states. There were formerly 72 Hanse-towns; but their number is now reduced to 4, viz. Hamburg, Bremen, Lubeck, and Dantsick.

HARBOROUGH, a town of Leicestershire, sit. 16 miles S. E. of Leicester, and 85 W. by N. of London.

HARBURGH, E. lon. 9. 40. lat. 53. a port town of Germany, in the circle of Lower Saxony, and D. of Lunenburg, sit. on the S. side of the river Elbe, opposite to Hamburg, and 37 miles N. W. of Lunenburg, said to be as well situated for a foreign trade as Hamburg, having the like advantage of importing and exporting their merchandise by the Elbe, and of vending their effects in the heart of Germany by that river. This town was taken by the French in 1757, and garrisoned by them; but the garrison capitulated the 29th of Dec. and surrendered the castle to the Hanoverians.

HARCOURT, E. lon. 32 min. lat. 49. 15. a town of France, in the pr. of Normandy, sit. 23 m. S. W. of Rouen.

steep to an enemy; having a narrow entrance, well defended by forts and platforms of great guns. Here the galleons from Porto-Bello and Vera Cruz rendezvous, on their return to Spain. The town is not 2 miles in circumference; and does not contain above 2000 inhabitants, consisting of Spaniards, Malattoes, and Negroes, besides the garrison; and the governor has the title of Captain-General of the island. The bishop of St. Jago, capital of the island, also resides here, that city being upon the decline, and most men of figure and fortune in the island residing at the Havana; it is subject to Spain. This town, with all its dependencies, surrendered to the English forces, under the Earl of Albemarle, Aug. 12, 1762, the very day on which the Prince of Wales was born. The forces landed upon the island of Cuba, July 7, and after making a breach, took the strong fort of Moro by storm, which occasioned the town of Havana to surrender afterwards.

har, 43 miles S. of Frankfurt, and 13 N. E. of Spire. Here the Elector Palatine has a fine palace, and here is the capacious tun which holds 800 hogheads, and is generally full of the best Rhenish wine, which every one was obliged to taste of who visited the late Elector's court; and some were not excused without swallowing such a dose as the Prince prescribed. There is an university in this city, and the Elector had one of the most valuable libraries in Europe; but it was either plundered and destroyed, or removed to the Vatican, and the Emperor's library at Vienna, when the Elector was driven from his dominions, anno 1622, and the Protestant inhabitants were cruelly treated by the Spaniards. This town was sacked and plundered again by the French, in the year 1683; and in 1693, they almost demolished it, driving the people of the Palatinats from their dwellings; and obliging them to take refuge in foreign countries. Much the greatest part of the inhabitants of this city are Protestants; but their sovereign is a Papist; who, using his Protestant subjects hardly, they complained to some Protestant powers, who procured their grievances to be redressed; but the late Elector was so exasperated at their applying to foreign powers, that he abandoned the town and went to reside at Mannheim; which sufficiently mortified the Heidelbergers, as he carried most of the people of wealth and distinction with him. The great tun was broke to pieces in 1693 by the French, but was repaired in 1729 at a great expence. The electoral palace was set on fire by lightening, June 24, 1764, and the greatest part of it consumed.

HEILA, E. lon. 19. 25. lat. 54. 50. a port town of Regal Prussia, in the K. of Poland, sit. on the point of a peninsula, in the Baltic sea, 12 m. N. of Dantzick; sub. to Poland.

HELENA St. W. lon. 6. 30. 8. lat. 16. an island in the Atlantic ocean, sit. 1200 miles W. of the coast of Africa, and 1800 m. E. of the coast of

S. America. It consists of one steep high rock, and looks like a castle in the middle of the sea; nor is there any possibility of landing but at one place, which is defended by a platform of 40 guns, beyond which is a fort, in which the governor resides; and adjoining to it is a pretty town of 40 or 50 houses, to which the natives come down with fresh provisions, when shipping arrives. The island is about 21 m. round; and the rock, covered with about a foot of vegetable earth, produces corn, grapes, and all manner of fruits and vegetables almost; but no corn comes to perfection, being eaten up by the rats which burrow in the rock; and the climate is too warm to make wine. The natives have houses, plantations, and fields, on the top of the rock, where they feed their cattle and manure their ground and gardens, with the produce whereof they supply the shipping which touches there, in their way from India. There are about 200 families, descended from English parents, who planted it by the assistance of the East India Company, after it was taken from the Dutch, in the reign of K. Charles II. and it is now subject to the English East India Company. This island is said to have been first discovered by the Portuguese on the festival of the Empress, Helena, mother of the Emperor Constantine the Great, whose name it still bears.

HESSE-CASSEL and HESSE-DARMSTAT cities. See under the heads of CASSEL and DARMSTAT.

The Landgrave of Hesse-cassel is on absolute Prince. His revenues are computed at 120,000 l. per annum; and he has generally a good body of forces on foot, which are so far from being a charge to him, that they are a great addition to his revenue, by the subsidies they bring him in from foreign powers. The 12,000 Hessians in British pay, for five years, were computed to be worth above a million sterling to him; and it is not to be doubted, but he has made a great deal by French subsidies. As there are four branches of this family, viz. Hesse-cassel, Homberg, Darmstat, and Rhinefield, they are of different persuasions in point of religion. The subjects of Hesse-cassel are Calvinists, as their late sovereign was till he mounted the throne of Sweden; but he was compelled to turn Lutheran then, and abjure Calvinism. Prince Frederic, the present Landgrave, has embraced Popery. The Landgrave of Hesse-Homberg is a Calvinist, Darmstat is a Lutheran, and the Landgrave of Hesse-Rhinefield, is a Papist. Some part of Hesse produces corn and wine, especially near the rivers Rhine and Lohn, and they feed numerous flocks of sheep in their plains, whose wool is said to equal that of England; but great part of the country is forest, especially on the N. In their mountains are mines of copper and lead, which yield them considerable profit. This country is held to be the ancient seat of the Catti, mentioned by Tacitus.

HOTTENTOTS COUNTRY, sit. between 15 and 35 degrees of E. lon. and between 23 and 35 degrees of S. lat. being the most southern promontory of Africa, comprehending the Cape of Good Hope, and the rest of the Dutch settlements there. It is a mountainous, but exceeding fruitful country, abounding in corn, wine, pasture, fruits, cattle, fish, fowl, and whatever is produced in the other quarters of the world, in the greatest perfection, where it is cultivated by the Dutch; but the natives neither plow nor plant the ground, but live chiefly by grazing of cattle, and what they take in hunting or fishing. The Hottentot nations, who inhabit this southern promontory, are 16 in number; the Dutch suffer the natives to be governed by their own laws and customs, being very useful to their settlements, in furnishing them with cattle, and serving them in their husbandry, &c. for which they give them tobacco, wine, and brandy, and such provisions as they desire, in return. The Hottentot men are of a moderate stature; the women small, their complexion black; and in their thick lips, flat noses, and short hair, they resemble the negroes, tho' they are not so black when they are born, but take a great deal of pains to make their children so with grease and soot. The women have a callous flap or skin, which hangs over the pudenda; and in this they differ from all other women in the known world. The men have a cap of grease, soot, and cow-dung, mixed together, on their heads in summer, and in winter have flat caps of half-dried skins; and they wear mantles, consisting of undressed sheep-skins, tied with thongs about their necks, which serve them for beds at night, and winding-sheets when they die; Their chiefs wear tiger skins. They conceal their audities with a square piece of raw leather, of two hands breadth; their breasts, legs, and thighs have no covering. The women wear caps of raw leather, the crown a little raised, and a sheep-skin mantle, like the men: their apron something longer, and about their legs they wrap thongs of raw hides, to the bigness of a jack-boot, and a pouch, with provision, always hangs about their necks. They adorn themselves with rings, and thin plates of brass, tinzel, glass, and beads, and make their bodies shine with melted grease and fat, instead of oil. They chuse the guts of animals rather than other meat, which they eat half raw, without washing. They seldom kill their cattle living chiefly on their milk, with roots, herbs, and fruits, unless at festivals, and then only on such as die of themselves. Their drink was milk and water, or butter-milk, till the Dutch introduced strong liquors, which they are very fond of. Their houses are round huts, consisting of one room, covered with hides, or mats, where all ages and sexes lie promiscuously, though every man has his own wives, seldom above three. A circle of these huts upon a common, is called a kraal, or Hottentots town, but looks more like a camp; and, like our tents, they remove them from one part of the country to another, when they want fresh pasture for their cattle. Every nation has a sovereign Prince, whose title is hereditary, but then he has a great council, which consists of the chiefs of every kraal or town, of his nation, without whose concurrence he does nothing of consequence; and the chief of every kraal has an hereditary right to his command; but neither their Kings or Chiefs have any revenue, but subsist on their own stock of cattle, and what they take in hunting. Their arms are a spear, or half pike, a bow and bearded arrows, and a dart of a foot long. They never fight on horse-back, but discipline their bulls to run at, and disorder an enemy.

They expose their fathers in the fields to be devoured by wild-beasts, when they become infirm and useless, as they do their female children when they have more than one at a birth. As to their religion, they believe a God who created the heaven and earth, and that he is good, but they build him no temples, nor worship him, or have any images, or representations of him; but, at the appearance of the new moon, and at the full moons, they assemble, dance in circles, and make great rejoicings, throwing themselves into surprising distortions of body, stare widely, at the heavens, crossing their foreheads with a red stone, and invoking the moon to be propitious, and send them seasonable weather, and pasture for their cattle. They continue dancing, singing, and prostrating themselves on the earth the whole night, and part of the next day, with some short intervals, resting only when they are quite spent with the violence of the action. They also worship their departed heroes, and consecrate woods, mountains, and rivers to their memory, which, when they pass by, they put up a short prayer to the deity of the place, and sometimes dance about it. They have one rite peculiar to these people, which is the depriving the males of the left testicle at 8 or 9 years of age; at the performance whereof a sheep is sacrificed, and eaten by the company invited to it. They sacrifice also, and have festivals on a victory, and other joyful occasions; and upon the removal of their kraal, or town (as they always do upon the death of any person in it) they sacrifice a sheep. 'Tis evident they believe a future state, and the immortality of the soul, by the worship they pay to their departed heroes, and by the fears they entertain of their friends appearing to them after death; which is the reason of removing their camp, believing the dead never haunt any place but where they died.

HOUDEN, a market town of the E. riding of Yorkshire, sit. 19 miles S. E. of York.

HOVINGHAM, a market town of the E. riding of Yorkshire, sit. 17 m. N. E. of York.

HOYE, E. lon. 9. lat. 53. 5. a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, cap. of the co. of Hoyer, sit. on the river Weser, 43 miles N. W. of Zell; sub. to the Elector of Hanover.

HRADISH, E. lon. 37. 53. lat. 49. 10. a town of Germany, in Moravia, seated on an island in the river Morau, 30 m. S. of Olmutz.

HUELT ST. E. lon. 5. 25. lat. 50. 5. a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in the pr. of Luxemburg, sit. 30 miles S. E. of Namur.

HUDSON'S BAY, W. lon. 80. N. lat. between 51 and 63. sit. in the N. part of Canada, in North America, where the English Hudson's Bay Company have several forts and settlements, and traffic with the natives for beaver-skins, and other skins and furs, to a very great value, being one of the most gainful trades our merchants have. But if the French in the neighbourhood should attack their settlements, neither their garrisons or fortifications would be able to make long resistance.

HUDSON'S RIVER, rises near the lake Champlain, in Canada, in North America, and running S. passes by the English fort of Albany, and from thence continues its course the whole length of New York, falling into the sea near the W. end of Long-island, a little below the town of New-York.

HUDSON'S STRAITS, in North America, lie between 65 and 75 degrees of W. lon. and between 60 and 64 degrees of N. lat. being the passage out of the Atlantic ocean into Hudson's Bay.

HUGLEY, E. lon. 87. 55. lat. 23. a town in the East Indies, in Asia, sit. on an island, in the most westerly branch of the river Ganges, in the pr. of Bengal, sit. about 100 miles up the mouth of the river. It is a large town, inhabited by Indians and Portuguese, and here the English, and other Europeans, lately had factories, but the English are removed 50 miles lower down the river to Fort William.

HUSCA, W. lon. 45 min. lat. 42. 6. a town of Spain, in the pr. Arragon, sit. 35 miles N. E. of Saragossa.

HUETTE, W. lon. 2. 15. lat. 40. 35. a town of Spain, sit. in the pr. of New Castile, 67 miles E. of Madrid.

HULL, or Kingston-upon-Hull, a port town in the East-riding of Yorkshire, sit. on the river Hull, near the mouth of the Humber, 176 miles N. of London, and 41 N. of Lincoln; naturally strong, as the adjacent country may be overflowed, and has some old fortifications. It is a place of good trade, and has a yard for building men of war, and other vessels; sends two members to parl.

HULPEN, E. lon. 4. lat. 51. 20. a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in the pr. of Brabant, sit. 9 miles S. E. of Brussels, and as many E. of Hall.

HULST, E. lon. 3. 56. lat. 52. 20. a town of Dutch Flanders, capital of the co. of Waes, sit. 17 miles N. E. of Ghent; esteemed a strong place.

HUMBER, a river formed by the Trent, the Ouse, the Derwent, and several other streams, divides Yorkshire from Lincolnshire, and falls into the German sea at Holderness; the counties N. of this river constituted the K. of Northumberland anciently.

HUNGARY, a kingdom of Europe, sit. between 16 and 23 degrees of E. lon. and between 45 and 49 degrees of N. lat. bounded by the Carpathian mountains, which divide it from Poland on the N. by Transilvania and Walachia on the E. by the river Drave, which separates it from Slavonia on the S. and by Austria and Moravia on the W. It is one continued plain of 300 m. and upwards from Presburgh, the

the cap. to Belgrade, divided by the river Danube into the Upper and Lower Hungary.

There are no hills but the Carpathian mountains, which divide it from Poland, and in these are abundance of rich mines of gold, silver, copper, iron, vitriol, sulphur, and salt; the rest of the country is exceeding fruitful, abounding in corn, wine, and rich pastures, replenished with herds of cattle; and their numerous lakes and rivers afford them plenty of fish and fowl; but the country is very unhealthy, occasioned by a boggy, sulphureous soil, and the sudden changes of the weather: a kind of pestilence visits this country once in three or four years, and it is called the grave of the Germans on another account, many thousands of them having perished here by the sword as well as sickness, while they contended for the dominion of it with the Turks the last 200 years.

The constitution of the government was a limited monarchy, and the crown elective, until the house of Austria found means to influence the States, so far as to render the Sovereign absolute, and the crown hereditary, which is now possessed by the Empress Queen.

The established religion is Popery, but half the people are Protestants, who have suffered a very long and severe persecution from the house of Austria, and have been thereby frequently provoked to join the Turks, the French, and other enemies of that house; but in the late wars they have been the principal support of the Empress.

Their troopers are called Hussars, and their foot Heydukes; and the Insurgents are a militia that are raised on the last necessity.

No country is better furnished with baths and mineral waters, and the buildings of those at Buda were esteemed the most magnificent of any baths in Europe, while that city was under the dominion of the Turks.

H U

Game is so plentiful here, that it is the common food of the peasants; but, with all these advantages, the common people are in a state of vassalage to their respective lords, and the gentry have lost their ancient privileges. The principal rivers are, the Danube, the Sava, the Drave, the Tressa, the Maros, the Raab, the Waag, the Gran, and the Zarwiese. They all abound with plenty of fish, but the waters are all unwholesome except that of the Danube.

HUNGERSFORD, W. lon. 1. 35. lat. 51. 26. a market town, sit. on the river Kennet, where it divides Berkshire from Wiltshire, 64 miles from London, on the Bath road.

HUNNINGHEN, E. lon. 11. 35. lat. 47. 37. a town of Germany, in the lan. of Alsace, sit. on the river Rhine, 3 miles N. of Basil, and 50 m. S. of Strasburg, once a strong fortress, but the fortifications now demolished; subject to the house of Austria.

HUNNONBY, or Hunmanby, a market town in the East-riding of Yorkshire, sit. 9 miles S. of Scarborough.

HUNTINGDON, the cap. of Huntingdonshire, sit. on the river Ouse, 57 miles N. by W. of London; sends two members to parliament; and gives title of Earl to the family of Hastings.

HUNTINGDONSHIRE, an English co. 25 miles in length, 17 in breadth, and is bounded by Cambridgeshire on the E. by Northamptonshire on the W. by Lincolnshire on the N. and Bedfordshire on the S. It contains 79 parishes, 6 market towns, and sends 4 members to parl.

HUCUAM, a pr. of Asia, in China, lying between 25 and 30 degrees of N. lat. bounded by the pr. of Honan on the N. by Chekiam and Kiamsi on the E. by Quiamsi and Canton on the S. and by Queichou on the W. the cap. city Uncham.

JALOFFE, a country and people of Africa, lying on the N. side of the river Gambia, or Niger, near its mouth, W. lon. 14. lat. 13. 40.

JAMAGOROB, E. lon. 20. 25. lat. 59. 15. a town of the pr. of Ingria, in Russia, sit. 12 m. S. E. of Narva.

JAMAICA, an island of America, sit. in the Atlantic ocean, or N. sea, between between 75 and 79 degrees of W. lon. and between 17 and 18 degrees odd min. N. lat. near 5000 miles S. W. of England, 100 miles S. of the island of Cuba, and 70 m. W. of Hispaniola, and 350 m. N. of Terra Firma, in South America; the island lying E. and W. being about 140 m. long, and 60 broad, a chain of mountains running through the middle of it from E. to W. consisting of rocks, or stiff clay, but covered with good timber. On the S. side of the island are savannahs, or level meadow grounds, cleared of wood, and fit for pasture. There are an hundred rivers, or rather torrents, descending precipitately from the mountains, and carrying down with them stones and timber; none of them navigable. The wind sets on the shore almost all day, in every part of the island, and off the shore in the night. Earthquakes sometimes happen here; the town of Port Royal was almost swallowed up by one in the year 1692. In the mountains it rains and thunders almost every day; it sometimes hails here, but they never see frost or snow. Their rainy seasons, in the flat country, are in May and October, when they continue a fortnight; and these are the seasons for planting. The English inhabitants are much decreased of late years: there are four negroes to one white man. Of the blacks there may be an 100,000, and there is a mixed breed of Malatoes and Mestises. The English eat much the same food as in England, and some other sorts, as yams, potatoes, rice, bread of Indian corn, and cassavi root, turtle or tortoise, and the tropical fruits, such as guavas, plantains, cocoa nuts, and pineapples; their wheat flour is all imported. Their liquors are water, Madeira wine, rum punch, and some liquors made of plantains and other fruits. The produce of the island is chiefly sugar and rum, but they have plantations of coffee, of the cocos, or chocolate nut, indico and tobacco, Jamaica pepper, cotton, woods for dying, and the mahogany and manchineel wood, salt, ginger, medicinal drugs and gums. The water is unwholesome near the sea coasts, and has destroyed thousands of English seamen at Port Royal. The common distempers of the country are fevers, fluxes, and the dry gripes. This island was first discovered by Columbus, anno 1493; and the Spaniards continued possessed of it above 150 years, in which time they destroyed most of the natives. The English made themselves masters of it with very little opposition, in the year 1656, under the command of Pen and Venables, after they had been disappointed in their attempt upon Hispaniola. This island is of an oval figure, almost resembling an egg, growing narrower from the middle, till it terminates in two points at the extremities. The government of Jamaica is one of the richest and most important places, next to Ireland, in the disposal of the crown, the standing salary, perquisites, and what the assembly vote the Governor, making the whole little inferior to 10,000 l. per ann. The religion is universally of the Church of England; though they have no bishop, the bishop of London's commissary being the chief religious magistrate.

JAMANA, a pr. of Arabia in Asia, sit. about the middle of it, the chief town Jamana, E. lon. 47. 15. lat. 25. sit. 110 miles S.W. of Elcatif, and the gulph of Persia.

JAPAN islands, which together form what is called the Empire of Japan, are sit. between 130 and 147
deg. of E. lon. and between 30 and 41
deg. of N. lat. the largest whereof,
called Japan, (sometimes Nippon)
gives its name to all the rest, and is about 600 miles long, and from 100
to 250 broad; the chief town whereof is Jeddo. The largest island next, is Secock, parted by a very narrow channel from Japan, lying S. of it, and is about 500 miles round, the cap. city Bongo. The third island in magnitude is Tonsa, divided from Japan and Secock, by narrow channels, and is near 400 miles in circumference,

the capital city Tonsa; besides these,
are a great many lesser islands about them subject to Japan. These islands are all subject to one Sovereign, or Emperor, who has 50 or 60 vassal
Princes, or Kings, as they are called,
under his dominion, and can depose or punish them as he sees fit. They are obliged to attend the court one half of the year, and have each of them a house, within the verge of the King's palace, at Jeddo. The eldest sons of the nobility also, have their education at court, where they are kept till they are preferred to some post. This Prince is attended by 5 or 6000 of his guards when he goes out, and keeps up an army of 20,000 horse, and 200,000 foot, tho'
to what purpose is not easy to conceive, having no enemies to contend with, unless he suspects his vassals
may prove malcontents. His revenues are immense, but notwithstanding the various and extravagant accounts we have received, it is not certainly known what they are. The Portuguese, who first trafficked with this country, and the English who since traded there, have been banished Japan
these last 100 years, on pretence of a conspiracy the Portuguese and their Japan proselytes had formed against the state. The Dutch only were admitted to trade thither afterwards;
and they were permitted this privilege, 'tis said, on declaring they were no Christians, and then trampling
upon the cross to confirm the Japanese in this opinion. And the Japanese are so suspicious even of the Dutch, that when any of their ships
arrive, they take away their guns, sails, and helm, and carry them on shore till they are ready to sail; and the Dutch factors, who are shut up in a little peninsula, during the 8 months their shipping is absent annually, are not suffered to have so much as a lighted candle in their houses, in the night-time. The goods the Dutch carry to Japan, are spices, sugars, silks, woollen and linnen cloth, elephants teeth, and haberdashery wares; for which they receive in return, gold, silver, fine copper, cabinets, and other Japan and lacquered wares. The Japanese use neither tables, beds, or chairs, but sit and lie upon carpets and mats, as the Turks do. Notwithstanding their gross idolatry and superstition, they are a most industrious, penetrating people, and excel the Chinese themselves in the manufactures that are common to both countries, and at least equal them in husbandry and the arts of life. The sciences are esteemed amongst them, and they have several capital schools at different places; particularly at Mecaco, which have 4000 scholars each.

JAVA, an island of the East Indies, in Asia, sit. between 105 and 116 degrees of E. lon. and between 5 and 8 degrees of S. lat. being about 700 miles long from E. to W. and 100 broad, the island of Bernao lying on the N. the straits of Bally on the E. the Indian ocean on the S. and the straits of Sunda and Sumatra on the W. the chief town Batavia, or Jacatra. This island is most part of it under the dominion of the Dutch, and besides the native Javans, is inhabited by Chinese, Malaysans, (natives of Malacca, or their descendants) Amboynese Topasses, (a mixed breed) Bugasies (whose ancestors came from the island of Macassar) Tymoreans, and many other people, who have been brought from distant countries and islands by the Dutch; out of which several nations, the Dutch have formed a body of 10 or 12,000 regular troops, besides their European forces, to keep their subjects in awe. By transplanting such numbers, they peopled their colonies in Java, and secured the countries they had subdued, against any insurrections, or conspiracies, that might be formed against them in those islands and countries; for having the most considerable families in their power, which they had spared from those massacres they had committed in the Spice islands and elsewhere, it was presumed the remaindes would not have the spirit, or power, to attempt any thing against their tyrants. Besides land forces, the Dutch have such a fleet of men of war in their ports in Java, that they command all the coast of Asia and Africa, and give laws to the Europeans who trade in those seas, as well as to the natives, not suffering the Europeans to trade with any of the Indian nations but those they see fit. They have actually excluded the English and all other nations, from those countries where the fine spices grow, and from all commerce with the great islands of Java and Macassar, or Celebes, and the continent of Malacca. And by their fleets and garrisons near the straits of Malacca

The island of Java is mountainous in the middle, but near the shore it is a level country, and incumbered with bogs and morasses pretty much, except near Batavia, Bantam, and other Dutch colonies, where the lands are well drained and cultivated. The only corn almost that grows in the country is rice. They have also plantations of sugar, coffee, and tobacco; and their kitchen gardens produce, peas, beans roots, salads, mellons, &c. They have also abundance of grapes, but the climate is too hot for wine. They have cocoas, mangoes, oranges, and such other fruits
as grow between the Tropics, and a great deal of good oak, cedar, redwood, and other timber. The Dutch levy what taxes they please on the inhabitants, but the Chinese, who were some of the expertest merchants on that side of the world, brought them in the most considerable revenue, by the duties and customs they paid, and yet grew vastly rich and powerful as the Dutch gave out, and entered into conspiracies to dispossess them of the island, and that they, the Dutch, had no way to secure themselves but by a general massacre of the Chinese, which they put in execution,
in the year 1740, and barbarously
massacred 30,000, which, however,
was not one half of them, it being supposed that the number residing in the island, amounted to 100,000. But the Dutch in Europe pretended to be alarmed at the barbarity of the action,
and sent orders to Batavia, to try the Governor for the fact, who has never been heard of since. And indeed it seems strange, that when the Dutch had a fortified town, and the Chinese had delivered up all their arms, that the Governor should still apprehend himself in danger from naked unarmed men; it is reported, that not only the Governor, but many of the soldiers and others, who were concerned
in this terrible massacre, grew immensely rich by the plunder of the Chinese, which made it suspected that the wealth of that colony was the grand inducement the Dutch had to fall upon them. The citadel, where the Governor has a palace, commands

the city and suburbs of Batavia, and is a most agreeable residence. The government here, is a mixture of Eastern magnificence and European police, and is admirably well calculated to prevent the independency
either of the civil or military power;
and even England itself would find it difficult to shake this republican Empire.

JAVA THE LESS, or Bally, is a small island on the E. of Java Major,
and separated from it by a narrow channel. See BALI.

JAWER, E. lon. 16. 22. lat. 51. 8.
a town of Silesia, cap. of the pr. of Jawer, sit. 25 miles W. of Breslaw.
The pr. of Jawer is bounded on the

ICELAND, an island of Denmark, is sit. between 10 and 26 degrees of W. lon. and between 63 and 68 degrees of N. lat. 500 miles W. of the coast of Norway, and almost as many miles N. of Scotland, being about 300 m. in length from E. to W. and 150 in breadth from N. to S. the Viceroy, or Governor, residing in the fort of Beseide, in the S. W. part of the island. The natives live in little huts covered with skins, or the bark of trees. The air is extremely cold, and yet the soil is not so barren

as that of Norway, under the same parallel, but affords pasture for horses, cows, and other cattle, and the natives are very long lived, a strong hardy race, who clothe themselves with the skins of beasts; whales and other fish are very plentiful on the coast, which makes the Dutch come and fish here sometimes; though the Danes claim the sole dominion of these seas. Their mountains are always covered with snow, and yet there are 3 volcanos on them, from whence there continually issue flames and smoke. The largest of them is upon mount Hecla, which cannot be approached without danger. The Danes have several colonies on the coasts of this island, and have persuaded some of the natives, who are an honest tractable people, to profess Christianity, but those who live at a distance from their settlements, are still Pagans. The Danes and some other nations, trade with the natives for their hides, tallow, butter, whale-oil and bone, dried fish, and sea-horse teeth, which are esteemed equal to ivory. As Iceland affords no great bait for avarice or ambition, the inhabitants depend intirely on the King of Denmark for protection; for which he draws a revenue of almost 30,000 crowns annually.

IXEWORTH, a town of Suffolk, sit. 6 m. E. of Bury.

JEDBURGH, W. lon. 2. 15. lat. 55. 25. a town of Scotland, cap. of Tiviotdale, or Roxburgh, sit. 36 miles S. of Edinburgh.

JEJUDO, E. lon. 121. lat. 36. the capital city of the islands of Japan, in Asia, sit. on a bay in the Pacific ocean, on the E. side of the island of Japan Proper, or Nippon, 300 miles N. E. of Sacrai. The splendor and magnificence of the royal palace and public buildings in this Imperial city, are not to be equalled, in the opinion of those Europeans that have seen it, who relate that the roofs of some of them are of gold plates. The Emperor's palace and gardens in the middle of the city, are 5 miles in circumference. The Japanese build upon one floor, and their rooms are parted by a kind of folding screens, so that they can enlarge or contract their rooms and apartments as they see fit. A fire happened here in 1658 which

In the space of 48 hours, burnt down 100,000 houses, besides the Emperor's palace; but they are all rebuilt again.

JANVI, a small island of North America, at the mouth of the river Alatamaha in Georgia, a British colony, fortified by Mr. Oglethorpe.

JENKOPING, E. lon. 14. 20. lat. 57. 20. a town of Sweden, in the pr. of Gothland, and ter. of Smaland, sit. at the S. end of the Weter Lake, 90 mi S. E. of Oottenburg.

JENOE, or Gono, E. lon. 21. 45. lat. 46. 50. a town of Upper Hungary, sit. 26 mi S. of Great Warradin, and 48 N. E. of Segedin, sub. to the house of Austria.

JERISLAP. See JARISLAW.

JERSEY, W. lon. 2. 26. lat. 49. 7. an island of the English channel, sit. 18 miles W. of the coast of Normandy, in France, and 80 miles S. of Portland, in Dorsetshire, sub. to Great Britain. It is about 30 mi in circumference, of difficult access, on account of the rocks, sands, and forts erected for its defence. It contains 22 parishes, the chief town St. Helier, in the S. of the island. There is more fruit than corn in the island, and it is well watered with rivulets. It lies extremely well for trade in time of peace, and to annoy the French with their privateers in time of war. They have a pretty woollen manufactory of stockings, caps, &c. and they are descended from French ancestors, and are still governed by the Norman laws; the courts of England having no jurisdiction here; but the whole island is in the diocese of Winchester. Jersey was known to the Romans. The language of the inhabitants is French, with which most of them intermingle English words.

JERSEY New, in North America, may be bounded by a line drawn from the river Delaware, to Hudson's river, in 41 degrees N. lat. on the N. by Hudson's river, which divides it from New York, and by the Atlantic ocean on the E. by the same ocean on the S. and by Delaware bay and river, which separate it from Pennsylvania, on the W. lying between 74 and 76 degrees of W. lon. and between 39 and 41 degrees of N. lat. being about 140 miles in length from N. to S. and 60 mi. in breadth from E. to W. and usually subdivided into E. and W. Jersey, though the whole now constitutes but one royal government, i. e. the King appoints the governor and council, and the free-men chuse the members of the representative body of the commons; and sometimes the governor of New-York is governor of New-Jersey, but by a distinct commission; the chief towns are Burlington, Perth-Amboy, and Elisabeth town. The produce of the Jerseys is wheat, Indian corn, peas, beans, barley, oats, horses, black cattle, hogs, furs, skins, and pipe-staves. To the English islands in the West Indies they send bread, corn, flour, horse corn, salted beef, pork and fish, for which they receive rum, sugar, and other produce of those islands in return. They trade to England also with their furs, skins, and other produce, taking furniture and cloathing in return. The shipping of New-York and Jersey, also take whales, and send the oil and bone to England.

JERUSALEM, E. lon. 33. lat. 32. the capital city of Judea, or Palestine, in Asiatic Turkey, sit. 43 miles E. of the Levant, or Mediterranean sea, 102 m. S. of Damascus, 300 m. S. of Aleppo, and 220 m. N. E. of Grand Cairo. It stands on a high rock, with steep ascents on every side, except on the N. surrounded with a deep valley, which is again encompassed with hills. The city is at present 3 miles in circumference, and has a little altered its situation; for mount Cavalry, appropriated to the execution of criminals, was formerly without the walls, but has now drawn the city round about it, and stands in the middle of modern Jerusalem, and mount Zion is left without the walls, which stood near the center; the walls and fortifications seem very antique however. The private buildings mean, and but thinly inhabited. The resort of pilgrims hither only renders it considerable at present; and the accommodating them with lodgings and provisions, is the chief business of the inhabitants. For the protection of the pilgrims against the Arabs, and to receive the tribute exacted of them, a Basba always resides here with a guard of Janisaries. The church of the Holy Sepulchre, which the pilgrims chiefly come to visit, stands upon mount Calvary, and is a magnificent fabric, in which every Christian nation almost has a peculiar chapel. Over the middle of the temple, there is a cupola, open in the middle, at which it receives the light, and under this open cupola stands the glorified sepulchre. There are also, in this church, 22 or 23 places consecrated on account of some particular actions done in them, relating to the death and resurrection of Christ; as the place where he was nailed to the cross, the place where the soldier stood who pierced his side, where the angels appeared to the women after the resurrection, &c. and on Good Friday annually, our Saviour's passion is solemnized in this church, and all the parts of it acted;

such as the walking of him to the cross; crowning him with thorns, taking the body down from the cross; and here is seen the cleft of the rock, which was made by the earthquake, when our Saviour expired. Ancient Jerusalem was formerly capital of Judea, after David had conquered the Jebusites. It was taken by Nebuchadnezzar, in the 11th year of Zedekiah's reign, and the Jews were led captive to Babylon. It was afterwards taken by the Romans, and ruined, together with the temple, 70 years after the birth of Christ, being one of the most remarkable sieges in history. It is now inhabited by Turks, Arabs, Jews and Christians.

INDIA PROPER, (the country first so denominated) is sit. between 66 and 109 degrees of E. lon. and between 7 and 40 degrees of N. lat. being bounded by Uiber Tartary and Thibet on the N. by another part of Thibet, the kingdoms of Asem, Ava and Pegu, on the E. the bay of Bengal and the Indian ocean on the S. and by the same ocean and Persia on the W. being about 2000 miles in length from N. to S. and 1500 m. in breadth from E. to W. where broadest, though the southern part of the peninsula is not 300 m. broad; all the countries within these limits being now subject or tributary to the Great Mogul. It is frequently called Indostan, a name supposed to be derived from the river Indus, on its western frontiers. It is also called Mogulistan, from the Imperial family now upon the throne, who derive their pedigree from Tamerlane, a Mogul, or Mogul Tartar. It was the Emperor Aurengsebe who made a conquest of Colocata, Vidapour,

and

ILOR,

And all the southern kingdoms of India, about the year 1685.

The Europeans had very little intercourse with India, till the year 1498, when the Portuguese discovered the way thither by sea, round the Cape of Good Hope, and they enjoyed that traffic without a rival till the year 1600, when the English and Dutch put in for a share of it; and these three nations have had their forts and factories on the continent of India ever since; but the Dutch have driven both the other from the Spice islands, and monopolized that trade these hundred years past. The produce of the continent of India, and what the Europeans import from thence, is chiefly chints, calicoes, muslins, some silk, and pepper, and diamonds, which are purchased by most nations with silver; but the Dutch frequently barter spices for them, which makes the India trade doubly advantageous to them. The northern part of India is a temperate, healthful climate; the southern countries too hot, especially when the hot winds blow in April and May; but they are refreshed with breezes from the sea constantly about noon; for in the night, and early in the morning, the winds set off the shore, and blows on the shore the rest of the day. The periodical rains visit them in June, and continue till October, which is the season for planting and sowing their lands towards the S. where they have scarce any grain but rice. In the northern countries they have good wheat, and almost all manner of grain; and in one part or other of the Mogul's dominions every thing is produced that can render life desirable, except liberty; for though the subjects that are at a distance from court live as easily as under most monarchies, yet the Mogul is an absolute Prince, and can command their lives and fortunes at pleasure. The Blacks inhabit the southern part of India, and are a people lately conquered; the complexion of those in the northern provinces is either white or olive; these are the governing part of the nation, and of the Mahometan religion; the rest are Pagans, and worship idols of various shapes, some very monstrous, part human, and part beast or fish, and scarce any living animal but they adore, particularly the ox and the monkey. The Mogul's forces are computed to amount to 300,000 horse, some have called them a million, besides the forces of the Rajas, or tributary Princes, who are obliged to attend the Mogul with their respective troops. In the fair season, the Mogul usually takes the field, and makes a tour about part of his dominions, and all manner of tradesmen, merchants, and mechanics follow the camp, scarce any body is left in the great towns; there are markets of all kinds in the camp, as in the best regulated court, and when the time of the rains approaches, they return into the towns again. The Mogul's annual revenue is computed to amount to between 40 and 50 millions sterling, arising by the produce of the soil (of which he is proprietor, as well as sovereign, and every one obliged to pay such a rent as is required by his commissaries) by duties and customs on merchandises, by confiscures and escheats, being heir to all his great officers, and by presents, which are expected from all his governors, and those who have a dependance on him; and lastly, by the produce of the diamond mines of Golconda, which is not inconsiderable.

India beyond Ganges, lies between 22 and 26 degrees of N. lat. and between the Equator and 30 degrees of N. lat. bounded by Thibet and Boutan on the N. by China, Tonquin, and Cochinchina, on the E. by the Indian ocean on the S. and by the Hither India, the bay of Bengal, and the straits of Malacca, on the W. being near 2000 miles in length from N. to S. but of a very unequal breadth; in which limits are comprehended the Kingdoms of Afem, Ava, Pegu, Laos, Siam, Cambodia,

India, and Malacca, governed by as many several Indian princes; only the Dutch have usurped the domi- nion of Malacca. The government in these countries is monarchical; but what the revenues or forces of the respective princes may be, is un- certain; we having but very little intercourse with most of them, ex- cept near the coast. Great part of this country lying so near the Equa- tor, would be intolerably hot, if it were not for the periodical rains which overflow the country when the sun is vertical; and they were not re- freshed every day by the sea breezes. But then they have this inconveni- ency, that they are forced to build their houses upon high wooden pil- lars, and live in their upper rooms during the flood, which lasts four or five months, and can have no com- munication with one another but by boats, in the flat country. The com- plexion of the natives of all the Further India, is an olive colour; their religion Paganism, of various sects. There is no country where there are such numbers of elephants as in the Further India, and con- sequently they must have a great deal of ivory. Here also our merchants meet with gold and precious stones, canes, opium, and such other articles as are usually found in countries within the Tropics. But there is no other corn than rice, which they plant in the beginning of the rains, and the flood increasing as it grows, they have no occasion to water their fields, and when the waters retire, it is the time of their harvest.

INDIES West, so called at first, on a presumption they extended, and even joined, to the East Indies, tho' distant from them, in reality, half the cir- cumference of the globe.

the longest day is 16 hours, 30 min. and the 24th parallel, or the end of the 10th clime, where the longest day is 17 hours, 30 min. being bounded by the Northern ocean on the N. by St. George's channel, which divides it from Great Britain, on the E. and by the Atlantic and Western ocean on the S. and W. being 283 miles long, and 160 m. broad, distant from Holy-head, in North Wales 50 m. and from Galloway 110, 25 m. It is divided into large provinces, viz. Ulster on the N. Leinster on the E. Munster on the S. and Connaught on the W. which 4 provinces contain 38 counties. It is a fruitful, level country, well watered with lakes and rivers, too much incumbered with bogs and morasses, but where these are drained they make very good meadow ground; and there is this convenience in the softness of the soil, that they may cut canals, and open a communication by water, from one part of the kingdom to the other, by lakes, rivers, and canals, as they do in Holland. The soil seems to be richer in Ireland than in England, and produces corn, pasture, hemp, and flax in abundance. Their cattle abound to that degree, that they furnish France, Flanders, Spain, Portugal, and the West Indies, with their beef and butter, and English ships are frequently victualled here. They abound also in excellent wool, which would bring them in treasure enough if they were suffered to manufacture it, and export their cloth. And whether the English have done themselves any service by suppressing this manufacture in Ireland, and suffering the French to undersell us, and run away with the woollen trade in foreign markets, is a question that may be easily answered. Their linen manufacture indeed is come to great perfection, and vastly increased. This country is exceedingly well situated for trade, and has a great many secure and commodious harbours. They want only a little countenance and encouragement from England to make them a great and wealthy people. Their laws differ but little from those of England, any more than their courts of justice. Their laws must be approved by the K. of Great Britain in council. And no act of the English parliament will repeal or alter any of their laws. They can appeal also from a sentence of their courts to the courts of law, and to the house of Peers in Great Britain. The members of the Commons kept their seats in parliament for life, unless there happened a demise of the crown; but in 1768, an act passed for a new parliament to be chosen every 8 years. The Viceroy, or Lord Lieutenant, and council, are appointed from time to time by the King; and there is usually a body of 12,000 men kept in pay on the Irish establishment, but scarce any of the natives of that country amongst them. They usually live in barracks in that country, and are not quartered on the public houses, as in England. As to the religion of the country, six parts in seven of them are Papists, and tolerated: there are also a multitude of Dissenters in the N. of Ireland; the established church is the same as in England, governed by archbishops and bishops, and their clergy are generally better provided for than in England. Dublin is the only university in the kingdom, and that consists only of one college. The nobility, and men of fortune, used formerly to reside more in London than they do at present, to the great injury of the kingdom in general; but the establishment of public amusements, has, in some measure, contributed to remedy this evil. And the encouragement shewn to the arts, manufactures and agriculture, has been the means of rendering the situations of the common people much more comfortable than heretofore; who have been obliged to migrate to other countries, in search of those means of support which they were unable to procure at home. The spirit of industry, has prevailed greatly of late, and has enabled the Irish to know

know their own strength and importance, to which some accidental circumstances have concurred. The number of houses in the whole kingdom, in 1753, were computed to be 595,439; it contains 2293 parishes, 260 baronies, and 118 boroughs. It has 4 archbishoprics, and 18 bishoprics. The constitution of the Irish government, as it stands at present, with regard to distributive justice, is nearly the same with that of England. The parliament here, as well as in England, is the supreme court, which is convened by the King's writ; and generally sits once every 2d year. It consists, as in England, of a house of Lords and Commons. They can make laws which bind the kingdom, raise taxes for the support of government, and the maintenance of an army of 16,000 men. The revenue of Ireland is supposed, at present, to exceed half a million sterling, 70,000*l.* of which is granted in pensions, and a great part to absentee, of which the Irish complain greatly. Dublin is the capital city.

IRISTOWN. See KENY'S ST.

IRON-GATE MOUNTAINS, in Transilvania, make part of the boundary between Christendom and Turkey.

ISOQUOIS, or the Five Indian nations in N. America, in alliance with the English are bounded by Canada, on the N. by the English plantations of New York and Pennsylvania on the E. and S. and by the lake Ontario, or Frontenac, on the W. They had long served as a barrier to the northern British colonies against the French, and their Indians of Canada, when in possession of that country.

IRISS, a great river which runs from S. to N. through Russia, falls into the river Ob, and makes part of the boundary between Asia and Europe.

ISPAHAN, or Spahawn, E. lon. 53. lat. 32. 30. the cap. city of Eyraç Agem, and of all the kingdom of Persia, is sit. in a fine plain, almost surrounded with mountains, which lie 2 or 3 leagues distant from it. The city is of an oval form, 24 miles in circumference, and stands 200 miles N. of the gulph of Persia, or Boffora, 300 m. S. of the Caspian sea, 1400 m. S. E. of Constantinople, and 1600 m. N. W. of Delly, the capital of the Hither India. The streets of Ispahan are several of them arched over, with openings to let in the light. The English East India Company had a factory here, and their factors lived like Princes, in the greatest splendor till the civil wars; but the court, and consequently the trade, seems to be removing from this city to Meshed, in the pr. of Chorassan, near the Caspian sea, the usual residence of Shah Nadir, and his court. Shah Nadir is dead, and there have been several usurpers since.

ISSEL, a river of the United Netherlands, which rising in Westphalia, runs N. by Doesburg, and afterwards by Zutphen and Deventer, dividing Guelderland from the provinces of Overysel and Zutphen, and discharges itself into the Zuider sea near Camper.

ISSEL THE LESS, a river of the United Provinces, running W. thro' the provinces of Utrecht and Holland, and passing by Gouda, turns S. and falls into the Lech. E.

ISSOIRE, E. lon. 3. 28. lat. 45. 27. a town of France, in the pr. of Lyons, and ter. of the Lower Auvergne, sit. 15 miles S. of Clermont.

ISSOUDON, E. lon. 2. 5. lat. 47. a town of France, in the pr. of Orleans, and D. of Berry, sit. 20 m. S.W. of Bourges.

ISSUS, now Ajazzo, E. lon. 36. 30. lat. 36. 56. a port town of the Lesser Asia, in the pr. of Cilicia, sit. on the Levant, or Mediterranean sea, a little N. of Scanderoon, and 100 miles W.

of Aleppo, near which place, viz. in a difficult pass between the mountains and the sea, Alexander fought the second battle with Darius.

ISTRIA, a peninsula, sit. on the N. part of the gulph of Venice, bounded by Carniola on the N. and on the E. and S. and W. by the sea. The chief town Cabo de Istria; subject to Venice, except a small part subject to Austria.

ITALY, is sit. between 7 and 19 degrees of E. lon. and between 38 and 74 degrees of N. lat. bounded by Switzerland and the Alps, which separate it from Germany, on the N. by another part of Germany, and the gulph of Venice on the E. by the Mediterranean sea on the S. and by the same sea and the Alps which separate it from France, on the W. and if we include Savoy, which lies, indeed, on the W. side of the Alps, between Italy and France, we must extend it a degree further W. This is usually described, however, with Italy, as it is contiguous to Piedmont, and has the same sovereign, being a pr. of the K. of Sardinia's dominions. Italy is said to resemble a boot, and is in length, from the N. W. to the S. E. 600 miles and upwards, the breadth is very unequal; in the N. which may be called the boot-top, it is 400 m. broad from E. to W. in the calf of the leg, or middle, it is about 120 broad, and towards the S. about the instep, 80 broad, and comprehends the following countries, or sub-divisions, 1. In the N. of Italy are the duchies of Savoy, Piedmont, and part of Montferrat, subject to the King of Sardinia; the ter. of Genoa, sub. to the Genoese; the duchies of Milan, Mantua, and the rest of the D. of Montferrat, sub. to the house of Austria; the D. of Parma, sub. now to the Infant Duke; the D. of Modena, sub. to its own Duke, and the large territories of Venice, sub. to that republic. 2. In the middle of Italy are the D. of Tuscany, subject to the Emperor's brother; the Pope's dominions, which almost surround Tus-

any, and the state of Lucer. 9. In the S. division is the K. of Naples, sub. to the King of the Two Sicilies. Italy is the most celebrated country in Europe having been formerly the seat of the Roman Empire; but, at present, of the Pope. It is a fine fruitful country, producing the comforts and luxuries of life in great abundance; and, with great justice, is called the Garden of Europe. The religion of the Italians is Roman Catholic; but persons of all religions are unmolested in Italy, provided no gross insult is offered to their worship. Italy has produced some very great men, in literature, and the fine arts, but, at present, the genius of Italy, with respect to arts and sciences, seems to have migrated to other countries.

ITALIAN ISLANDS lie in the Mediterranean sea, the chief whereof are Sicily, subject to the King of the Two Sicilies, or Naples; Sardinia, subject to that King; and Corsica, subject formerly to the Genoeve; but by them lately ceded to France. The chief produce of Italy is raw and wrought silks, velvet, wine, and oil; and the principal ports with which we traffic, are Genoa, Leghorn, Naples, Venice, and Messina.

ITSCHOA, E. lon. 9. 8. lat. 54. 40. a town of Germany, in the circle of Lower Saxony, and D. of Holstein, sit. on the river Stoor, 12 miles N. E. of Gluckstadt.

JUCATAN, or Yucatan, a peninsula of Mexico, in North America, sit. between 89 and 94 degrees of W. lon. and between 16 and 21 degrees of N. lat. It is generally a flat level country, except towards the Isthmus, very unhealthful, and thinly inhabited, the air excessive hot, and the land near the coast usually flooded; the chief town Campeachy. It is in the bays of Honduras and Campeachy, the one on the E. and the other on the W. of Jucatan, that the English cut their logwood; they have been driven indeed from the bay of Campeachy by the Spaniards; but still continue in great numbers at the bay of Honduras, and the Spaniards have not yet been able to dispossess them, tho' they frequently take the ships that traffic with them.

JULIENS CITY, E. lon. 6. 35. lat. 50. 45; cap. of the P. of Juliers, in Westphalia; is sit. on the river Roer, 27 m. E. of Maestricht, and as many W. of Cologne.

JULPHA OLD, E. lon. 46. lat. 39. once the capital of Armenia, now in ruins, the inhabitants being transplanted to Isphahan, within a mile of which city they have a town called New Julpha; here they are encouraged and assisted by the Persians to carry on a foreign trade with all the countries of Asia, and are the most considerable merchants in the world. They suffer them also to profess the Christian religion; they have several churches in New Julpha, and come the nearest to the Greek church of any denomination of Christians. ASA.

IVREA, or Jura, E. lon. 7. 36. lat. 45. 22. a strong episcopal city in Italy, in the pr. of Piedmont, sit. on the river Doria, 25 m. N. of Turin; subject to the King of Sardinia; see of a bishop.

JUTES, the ancient inhabitants of Jutland in Denmark.

JUTLAND; a peninsula of Denmark, anciently called the Cimbric Chersonese, sit. between 8 and 11 degrees of E. lon. and between 55 and 58 degrees of N. lat. bounded by the Categate sea, which separates it from Norway, on the N. by the same sea, which divides it from the Danish islands and Sweden, on the E; by Holstein on the S. and by the German ocean on the W. and is divided into N. and S. Jutland, the S. usually called Sleswic; the whole about 180 miles in length, from N. to S. and 90 miles in breadth, from E. to W. The soil of N. Jutland is not very fruitful; however, they have corn enough for themselves, and abound in cattle, which they sell lean in Germany, and the Netherlands, where they thrive extremely. Sleswic is more fruitful in corn, horses, and other cattle, with which they furnish the countries to the southward of them. The country is well situated for a foreign trade, and has excellent harbours, but they want stock to traffic with. N. Jutland is entirely under the dominion of the K. of Denmark, but the D. of Holstein has the joint dominion of part of Sleswic with him, and in some great towns and territories of Sleswic each of them has a distinct dominion. The Duke of Holstein's capital in Sleswic is the city of Gottorp, which was the residence of Tycho Brahe, the celebrated astronomer. From this country came the Anglo-Saxons, who conquered England in the 5th century.

LADRONE ISLANDS, called also the Marian Isles, E. lon. 144. and between 8 and 28 degrees of N. lat. These lie in the Pacific ocean, about 8000 miles W. of Acapulco, in North America, and about 1800 miles E. of Canton, in China. They were first discovered by Ferdinand Magellan, or Maglianes, a Portuguese gentleman, (employed by Charles V. Emperor of Germany, and King of Spain, to find a way to the East Indies by the W.) on the 6th of March, 1520; he touched at the island of Guam, one of the most southerly of these islands, for water and fresh provisions, where the natives pilfering some of his goods, he gave them the name of the Ladrone, or Thievish Islands. This island of Guam lying in the road to the Philippine islands and the East Indies, is still most frequented by Europeans; and here the Spaniards have a little fort and garrison of 30 men. It is about 40 miles long, and 12 broad; the fruits are the same here as in the other countries within the Tropics; one sort of fruit we meet with no where else, which Dampier calls Bread-fruit, that grows on a tree like an apple-tree, as big as a foot-ball, within the rind is a white substance like the crumb of a panny-leaf, without stone or seed in it.

The produce of the adjacent country is wine, oil, corn, rice, leather, and tobacco; the wine esteemed equal to any in Greece. The ancient name of this town was Naupactus. Near this place the Venetians, under Don John of Austria, obtained a signal victory over the Turks, anno 1571. This city is inhabited by Grecian Christians, as well as Turks, and is the see of a bishop; but subject to Turkey.

LERENA. See ELLERENA.

LERIA, or Leira, W. lon. 7. 50. lat. 39. 40. a town of Portugal, in the pr. of Estremadura, sit. 60 miles N. of Lisbon, and 12 E. of the ocean; the see of a bishop; formerly the Kings of Portugal resided here.

LEZACA, E. lon. 35 min. lat. 41. 30. a town of Spain, in the pr. of Catalonia, sit. on the river Segra, 100 miles W. of Barcelona. This place declared for King Charles, on the reduction of Barcelona, anno 1705, but was taken by storm by the Duke of Orleans, after the battle of Almanza, anno 1707; the garrison, which consisted chiefly of English, retired into the castle, and surrendered upon honourable terms, on the 12th of November. It is an university, and the see of a bishop, suffragan of Tarragona.

LERINS, two islands on the coast of Provence, in S. of France, 5 or 6 miles S. of Antibes; the one called St. Margaret, and the other St. Honorat.

LESSES, or Metelin, E. lon. 16. 30. lat. 38. 30. an island of the Archipelago, in Asiatic Turkey, sit. 60 miles N. W. of Smyrna, in the Lesser Asia. It is 50 m. long, and 25 broad, and produces corn, wine, figs, and oil. Its wines were much admired by Aristotle, Horace, and Strabo. Arion, who charmed the Dolphin with his music, is said to be a native of this island; Epicurus and Aristotle read lectures here; and Pittacus, one of the seven wise men, and Sappho the poetess, were natives of this island. Castro, the antient Metelin, is the chief town, where a Cad., or Turkish ecclesiastic, has the administration of the civil government, and an Aga of the Janizaries commands the soldiers. There are upwards of 100 villages in the island, one of them called Erissos, supposed to be the Erissus of the ancients.

LEZ, W. lon. 35 min. lat. 43. 26. a town of France, in the pr. of Gascony, and ter. of Bearn, sit. 42 miles S. E. of Bayonne; the see of a bishop.

LEWARDEN, E. lon. 5. 35. lat. 53. 20. a city of the United Provinces, capital of the pr. of West-Friesland, sit. 66 miles N. E. of Amsterdam. It is an elegant city, was the usual residence of the Stadtholder the Prince of Orange, and here the States of the pr. assemble. There are navigable canals from this city to the sea, and to almost every considerable town in the pr. whereby it has a brisk trade.

LAWES, a very considerable borough town of Sussex, sit. on the river Ouse, 5 miles N. of the English channel, and 30 m. S. of London; sends two members to parl.

LEWIS. See FORT LEWIS.

LEWISBOURG, W. lon. 61. 30. lat. 46. 50. cap. of the island of Cape Breton, in North America, sit. 160 miles N. E. of Annapolis in Acadie, and 240 m. S. W. of Placentia, in Newfoundland, taken from the French by the English, in 1745, restored to France by the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, in 1748, and retaken July 26, 1758, by the English, who demolished all the fortifications (except on the land side) and are now in possession of it, being ceded to them by the treaty of 1763.

LEWIS ISLAND, W. lon. 8 degrees odd min. and between 58 and 59 degrees odd min. N. lat. lying 70 miles

W. of the main land of Scotland, and 20 m. N. W. of the isle of Sky, and is about 80 m. in length, and 41 in breadth. This island is exceedingly well fit. both for the herring and cod fishery.

LEWIS PORT. See PORT LEWIS.

LEYDEN, E. lon. 4. 25. lat. 52. 22. a city of the United Provinces, in the pr. of Holland, sit. on the old channel of the Rhine, near the S. end of the lake called Harlem-meer, 4 miles E. of the ocean, and 20 m. S. W. of Amsterdam. It is one of the most elegant cities in Holland, and the largest next to Amsterdam and Rotterdam; but the air is bad, occasioned by the stagnation of the waters of the Rhine, part whereof form Harlem-meer, and the rest have found new channels, which go under the names of the Waal and the Lech. Those who have viewed this island nicely, observe, that there are in it 30 islands, 24 canals, 180 streets, and 95 bridges. There are several great hospitals, and an university, consisting of 2000 students; but there are only two colleges, most of the lads boarding in the town, and wearing no distinguishing habits; and as they have no exhibitions while they are scholars, so neither do they expect fellowships when they have taken their degrees. The schools consist of a large pile of brick building, three stories high; in the uppermost whereof the ingenious Elzvir had his printing-room. Adjoining to the schools, is a physic garden, where the professor of botany reads lectures. Their professors never wear gowns but at lectures, and when they preside at public disputations. Their library is in great esteem for its MSS. and their theatre for anatomy, is said to exceed that of Padua and Surgeons-hall in London, having a greater variety of skeletons and mummies of all kinds. There is a considerable woollen manufacture in Leyden.

LEYNA, a river of Germany, which rises on the confines of Hesse, and runs N. thro' the D. of Brunswick, passes

by Göttingen, Calenberg, and Hannover, and discharges itself into the river Aller, at Hameln.

LICHTENAU, E. lon. 10. 45. lat. 49. 18. a town of Germany, in the circle of Franconia, and mar. of Anspach, sit. 17 miles S. E. of Nuremberg, and subject to the city of Nuremberg.

LIEFKINSTOCK, or Liefkenstock, E. lon. 4. 5. lat. 51. 25. a fortress of Dutch Flanders, sit. on the W. side of the river Scheld, opposite to fort Lillo, 7 m. N. W. of Antwerp.

LIEGE bishopric, a ter. of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, (though by some reckoned a pr. of the Netherlands, being, in a manner, surrounded by the Netherlands) is bounded by Bibrant on the N. and W. By the pr. of Limburg on the E. and by the pr. of Luxemburg and Namur on the S. The river Maes, or Mues, running along the S. E. confines of the bish. and dividing it from the pr. of Limburg. It is 70 miles in length from N. to S. and 25 in breadth from E. to W. and in some places 50 miles broad. A pleasant, fruitful country, having extensive fields of corn, and a great deal of rich pasture and meadow ground. There are also some mines of lead and iron, and quarries of marble; but it is most considerable for the great quantities of brimstone and vitriol which the country produces, as well as mineral waters, particularly near the Spa, or Spaw.

LIEGE CITY, E. lon. 5. 40. lat. 50. 36. the capital of the bish. of Liege, in Germany, sit. on the river Maes, 22 miles S. of Maestricht, 30 m. N. E. of Namur, and 50 m. E. of Brussels, being about 4 m. in circumference; a populous, wealthy city; two branches of the river Maes, and other rivelets or canals, running thro' several of the streets, and forming little islands. No city in Germany or France can equal it in fine churches and convents; there are not less than 100 churches of all sorts, and a very numerous clergy belonging to the churches and monasteries, which are so pleasantly sit. and have such endowments, that the city is sometimes called the paradise of the ecclesiastics; and, among other religious houses, here is one of English nuns, and they have an university of great fame. The fortifications of the town are not very strong, being commanded by the neighbouring hills, but the citadel is capable of making a good defence. The late bishop, who was also Elector of Cologne, put it into the hands of the French at the beginning of Queen Anne's war, but the Duke of Marlborough took it from them, anno 1702, and the French besieging it again, anno 1705, they were obliged to raise the siege by the same General, on his return from the Moselle. The magistrates of Liege pretend that it is an imperial city, or sovereign state; but they have suffered very severely for disputing the authority of their bishop, who is, in fact, absolute sovereign of the city, as well as the bishopric. He is chosen by the 60 major canons, who are most of them of noble extraction. This bishop is one of the most considerable ecclesiastical Princes of Germany, having within his diocese 52 baronies, 18 walled towns, and 400 villages full of people, with a revenue of 300,000 ducats, or nobles, per ann. and is able to maintain a body of 8000 men, without oppressing his subjects, who are generally Roman Catholics.

LIEBES, E. lon. 4. 30. lat. 51. 15. a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in the pr. of Brabant, sit. on the river Nethe, 9 m. N. of Mechlin or Malines, and 12 m. S. E. of Antwerp.

LIEGE, E. lon. 5. 50. lat. 50. 42. a village of the bishopric of Liege, in the cir. of Westphalia, in Germany, sit. 4 miles N. of Liege, and 16 m. S. of Maastricht, where a battle was fought between the Allies commanded by Prince Charles of Lorraine, and the French, commanded by Count Saxe, Oct. 1746.

LIFFRY, a river of Ireland, which rises in the co. of Wicklow, runs W. thro' that co. into Kildare, and then turning N. E. runs thro' the co. of Dublin, and having passed by the city of Dublin, falls into the Irish channel a little below it.

LIFROD, W. lon. 5. 45. lat. 54. 47. a town of Ireland, in the co. of Donnegal, and pr. of Ulster, sit. 24 m. N. E. of Donnegal; sends two members to parl.

LIGNE, E. lon. 3. 35. lat. 50. 45. a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in the pr. of Hainault, sit. on the river Dender, 12 miles N. W. of Mons.

LIGNITZ, E. lon. 16. 18. lat. 51. 26. a town of Bohemia, in the pr. of Silesia, sit. 28 m. N. W. of Breslaw; ceded to the Prussians in 1741. The Austrians seized it in 1757, but were driven out of it again in the latter end of that year. And near this place the King of Prussia defeated the Austrians under General Laudon, twice, viz. August 15, 1760, and August 15, 1761.

LIGNY, E. lon. 5. 27. lat. 48. 38. a town of Lorraine, in the ter. of Bar, 7 m. S. E. of Bar-le-duc, and 30 m. W. of Nancy.

LIERS, E. lon. 2. 32. lat. 50. 38. a town of the French Netherlands, in the pr. of Artois, 18 m. N. W. of Arras.

LILLE, E. lon. 4. 17. lat. 51. 15. a fortress of the Netherlands in Dutch Brabant, sit. on the E. side of the river Scheld, 8 miles N. of Antwerp, and commands the navigation of that river.

LIMA, a pr. of Peru, in S. America, bounded by that of Quito on the N. by the co. of the Amazons on the E. by the pr. of Los Charcas on the S. and by the Pacific ocean on the W. being about 800 miles in length from N. to S. but not 400 broad in any place.

LIMA CITY, or Los Reyes, W. lon. 78. S. lat. 12. 15. is the cap. of the pr. of Lima, and of the whole Empire of Peru; and is sit. on the banks of the river Lima, 6 miles E. of the Pacific ocean, in a fruitful plain, 50 m. W. of Cusco, which was the capital in the reigns of the Incas, or Indian sovereigns. The city is 2 m. in length, and 1 and a quarter in breadth, exceeding rich and plentifully supplied with all manner of provisions, and with European as well as Indian fruits. This being the only country between the Tropics, where grapes come to perfection, and make good wine; for here it never rains, but their vineyards and fields are watered by rivulets, which descend from the mountains of the Andes, and will ripen at any time of the year, if the waters are turned into them; whereas, in other countries between the Tropics, the periodical rains happening at the time the grapes are ripe, they burst, and will not make good wine. The buildings of this city are very low, seldom more than one story, and extremely slight, scarce ever covered with any thing heavier than reeds or matting; for, if they were more substantial, they would be in danger of being buried in the ruins of their houses by the frequent earthquakes that happen here; and they have no occasion to provide against rain or stormy weather, there being neither rain or storms to disturb them on this coast; but their earthquakes are very terrible; the city was almost overturned by them in the years 1586 and 1687, and almost destroyed again again.

again by an earthquake in Oct. 1746. They would be too happy if it were not for such shocks; for the adjacent country is a perfect paradise, producing plenty of corn, wine, oil, sugar, flax, and fruits; and the heat of the climate is constantly moderated by cool sea breezes, or the land winds from the mountains of the Andes. This city was founded by Pizarro, the Spanish General, who conquered Peru in the year 1534, giving it the name of Ciudad de los Reyes, or the City of the Kings, because he laid the foundation on that day of the year when the Kings of the East made their presents to our Saviour; but it has changed this name for that of the valley in which it stands, viz. LIMA.

LIMALE, E. lon. 4. 30. lat. 50. 45. a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in the pr. of Brabant, sit. on the river Dyle, 23 miles S. E. of Brussels.

LIMBURG DUCHY, a province of the Austrian Netherland, bounded by the D. of Julliers on the N. and E. by Luxemburg on the S. and by the bishopric of Liege on the W. being about 30 miles long, and 25 broad; consisting of good arable and pasture land, with plenty of wood, and some of the best iron mines in the Netherlands.

LIMBURG, E. lon. 6. 9. lat. 50. 37. the capital of the Duchy of Limburg, sit. on the river Vesle, 20 miles S. E. of Liege, and 18 S. of Aken, or Aix-la-Chapelle. It is strongly situated on a rock, almost inaccessible. His is sub. to the house of Austria; but the rest of the strong towns, viz. Dalum, Rolduc, and Fauquemont, or Fauconberg, are in the possession of the Dutch.

LIMERICK, W. lon. 8. 30. lat. 51. 35. a city of Ireland, in the co. of Limerick, and pr. of Munster, sit. on the river Shannon, 31 m. N. of Cork, and 100 m. S. W. of Dublin; the strongest fortress in the kingdom. It was besieged by King William III. in the year 1690, and though there was no army to relieve it, the garrison compelled the King to raise the siege. The English and Dutch forces invested Limerick again on the 21st of September 1691. and lost abundance of men before it; and when the town capitulated on the 13th of October following, the garrison obtained very honourable and advantageous conditions, being permitted to retire wherever they saw fit; and all the Roman Catholics in the kingdom were tolerated in the free exercise of their religion by these articles; it sends two members to parl. gives title of Viscount to James Hamilton, Earl of Clanbrasil, and is the see of a bishop, in conjunction with Ardfoort and Aghadoe.

LIMERICK, a co. of Ireland, in the pr. of Munster, 48 miles in length and 23 in breadth, bounded on the N. by the Shannon, on the W. by the ocean, on the S. by the counties of Cork and Kerry, and on the E. by that of Tipperary. LISBON, W. lon. 9. 25. lat. 38. 45. the capital of the kingdom of Portugal, sit. on the N. bank of the river Tagus, about 10 miles from the mouth of it; 80 m. W. of the frontiers of Spain, 300 m. W. of Madrid; and 850 m. S. W. of London. It is about 6 m. long, winding with the river from which it rises with an easy ascent. It is surrounded only by a single wall, on which are 77 antique towers, of no great strength. There are 26 gates on the river side, and 17 on the land side; and it is computed there are 30,000 houses, and 200,000 inhabitants. The streets are narrow and steep, the town standing on seven hills, which makes it inconvenient for coaches, and, therefore, litters are much used. The houses of the citizens are very mean, with lattice windows; but those of the nobility are elegantly built with stone, and have large gardens belonging to them. There are 40 parish churches, besides the cathedral, and 40 convents of both sexes. There are several handsome squares; the finest of them has the King's palace on one side, and on another side the river, from whence they may see large fleets of ships at anchor, and others perpetually going in and out of that spacious harbour; which will contain several 1000 sail of ships, which may ride in the greatest security; and the city being viewed from the river, or the southern shore, affords a fine prospect, the buildings rising gradually from the river up the hills, on which it stands. Nor is the prospect less entertaining, if we look from the town, where we see a river 3 miles over, underneath, and ships of every nation of Europe almost riding in it; and beyond, a beautiful country, intermixed with towns and villages. The ships ride in 18 fathom water in the harbour; but the entrance is difficult, and cannot be passed without a pilot, which is indeed the case of most great rivers. There is no port town of Europe that has a more extensive foreign trade, except London and Amsterdam. It is the see of an archbishop, has an university, and an inquisition, the ceremonies and cruelties of which are too absurd, and too barbarous to deserve a description in this work. Such was Lisbon; but it was almost totally destroyed by an earthquake on Nov. 1, 1755, and is not yet wholly rebuilt.

LISBURN, W. lon. 6. 20. lat. 54. 21. a town of Ireland, sit. on the river Laggan, in the co. of Antrim, and pr. of Ulster, 7 miles S. W. of Belfast; sends two members to parl. and gives title of Viscount to the family of Vaughan.

LISIEUX, E. lon. 10 min. lat. 49. 11. a large town of France in the pr. of Normandy, sit. on the river Tonque, 38 m. S. W. of Rouen, and 27 m. E. of Caen. The see of a bishop.

LISLEZ, or Ryffel, in the French Netherlands, (called the island, from its standing in a kind of lake formerly; but the waters are now drained off,) is sit. in E. lon. 3. 9. lat. 50. 38. on the river Deule, 25 miles N. of Arras, and 14 m. W. of Tournay; a large populous city, cap. of French Flanders, beautifully built, and strongly fortified, as the English and their confederates found, when they took it in the year 1708. They lost a great many thousand men before it, and it was by great good fortune they took it at last, after a siege of near 3 months. It was yielded to the French again at the peace of Utrecht, anno 1723, in consideration of their demolishing Dunkirk. The silk manufacture, and that of fine linen or cambric, are in great perfection here; and their camblets are much admired.

LISMORE, a borough in the co. of Waterford, in Ireland; sends two members to parl.

LITCHFIELD, W. lon. 1. 40. lat. 53. 48. a city of Staffordshire, sit. 119 miles N. W. of London, on the Chester road. This city and Coventry have one bishop; it sends two members to parl. and gives title of Earl to the family of Lee.

LITHUANIA, a pr. of Europe, which now makes part of Poland, is bounded by Samogitia, Livonia, and part of Russia on the N. by another part of Russia on the E. by Volhinia and Polesia on the S. and by Prussia and Polachia on the W. being of a circular form, pretty near 250 m. over either way, and contains 3 palatinates or counties. It is called the Great Duchy of Lithuania; and may, in some respects, be looked upon as an independent state, in alliance with Poland, being governed by its own peculiar laws and magistrates, though united under one sovereign, who is the titular head of both nations; for they are, in reality, both of them republics, and each of them sends their representatives to the Diet, or General Assembly of the States; and each of them has its distinct provincial diet, or assembly of the States; which enact laws for their respective subjects.

LIVADIA, a province of European Turkey, the ancient Achaia, is bounded by Thessaly on the N. by the Archipelago, or the Egean sea, on the E. by the Morea, or Peloponnesus, on the S. from which it is separated by the gulphs of Lepanto and Engia, and the isthmus of Corinth; and by Epirus, or Janna, on the W. the capital city now Setines, once Athens.

LIVINGTON, a market town of Wiltshire, 87 miles W. by S. of London.

LIVONIA, anciently a pr. of Poland, since of Sweden, now of Russia, is bounded by the gulph of Finland on the N. by Ingria and Great Novogorod on the E. by Lithuania and Courland on the S. and by the Baltic, or Livonian sea, on the W. being about 250 miles long from N. to S. and 150 broad, and is usually subdivided into two parts; that on the N. called East sia, or Eastland; and that on the S. Lettenland, or Letticia; the chief towns whereof are Narva, Revel, and Riga; all of them good harbours. It is a country fruitful in corn, with which it supplies Sweden, Germany, and many other countries. And as it is extremely well situated for a foreign trade, and abounds with commodious harbours, it has been contended for many hundred years by the neighbouring nations, and sometimes possessed by one, and sometimes by others, so that the inhabitants are a mixture of Germans, Danes, Poles, Swedes, and Russians. Terrible were the calamities which this country suffered in the beginning of this century; for, while the Russians and Swedes were contending for the dominion of it, the Czar Peter the Great, doubting whether he should be able to maintain the possession of that part of the country he had taken from the Swedes, permitted the Calmucks, and other Tartars of his army, to commit unheard-of barbarities. And at length, when the Czar had made an entire conquest of the country, observing the natives to be more inclined to their old masters the Swedes than to Russia, he compelled the natives to abandon their country, and drove multitudes of them in chains as far as the confines of the Caspian sea; though the Czarina Catharine prevailed on the Czar afterwards to recall them, the

being a native of the country; but most of them perished before that edict was published. The Livonians also were afflicted by plague and famine, and their country miserably harraided and laid waste before they were driven from it, and other Russian nations being introduced here, the Cearina now remains in the quiet possession of all Livonia.

LOIRE, the finest river of France, rises in the mountains of the Cevennes, and running N. and N. W. thro' Lionnois and Orleans, passes by Nevers and Orleans, after which it runs due W. by Tours, Angers, and Nants in Britany, falling into the bay of Biscay, 40 m. below Nants. The whole course of the river is computed to be about 500 miles.

LOMBARDY, Kingdom, comprehended almost all the N. of Italy, viz. Piedmont, Milan, most of the ter. of Venice, Mantua, Parma, Modena, and some other provinces. It was erected by the Longobards, or Lombards, a German nation, on the decline of the Roman Empire. Their first King Alboin, began his reign anno 568, and was succeeded by 21 Princes of his family, who remained masters of it near 200 years; but Astolphus, the last king, being at war with the Pope, and laying siege to Rome, Pepin, king of France, came to the assistance of his Holiness, and raised the siege; and Charlemain, the son of Pepin, put an end to the kingdom of the Lombards about the year 760, and laid the foundation of a new Empire, which comprehended Germany, France, Italy, and part of Spain.

LONDON, the metropolis of Great Britain, where the first meridian is fixed in the present maps, lies in 51 deg. 30 min. N. lat. 400 m. S. by E. of Edinburgh, and 225 m. N. W. of Paris; 100 m. W. S. W. of Amsterdam, and 500 S. W. of Copenhagen.

660 N. W. of Vienna; 1360 N. W. of Constantinople; 690 N. W. of Madrid; 750 N. W. of Rome, and 334 S. E. of Dublin. The form of London, including Westminster and Southwark, comes pretty near an oblong square, 5 miles long, if measured in a direct line from Hyde-park to the end of Lime-house, and 6 m. if we follow the winding of the streets; and the greatest breadth is 2 m. and a half. The circumference of the whole 16 or 17 m. but impracticable almost to measure it exactly on account of its irregular form, and daily increase of buildings.

Much the greatest part of the town lies on the North side of the river Thames; the body of it rising gradually from the river, and standing, for the most part, on an eminence; but the S. E. and S. W. parts of the town, and that part of it which lies on the S. side of the river, lies low, and, at spring tides, is subject to floods. There are no hills in the town, except that from the river, that to Holborn, and that to the cathedral of St. Paul from the bottom of Holborn and Fleet-street. The principal streets are generally level, exceedingly well built, and extended to a very great length. These are inhabited by tradesmen, whose houses and shops make a much better figure than those of any other tradesmen in Europe. People of distinction usually reside in large elegant squares, of which there are great numbers at the W. end of the town, near the court. And here stands the Royal Palace, which makes no great figure, but is situated in a pleasant park, where great numbers of people of the first quality resort in fine weather; but what contributes most to the riches and glory of this town is the port, whither several thousand ships of burden annually resort from all countries; and where the greatest fleets never fail to meet with wealthy merchants ready to take off the richest cargoes. The number of people in the whole town are computed to be about about one million. In the city of London, properly so called, which is about 3 miles in circumference, there are 12,000 houses. In the parishes without the walls, but within the liberties, 36,320. In the parishes, which lie in Middlesex and Surrey, and are a part of the town, 46,300 houses. And in the city and liberties of Westminster, 28,330 houses. And as to the number of souls in each of these grand divisions, if we multiply the number of houses in the city of London by 8 and a half, we shall find there are 102,000. By the same rule, there will be found 308,720 in the 16 parishes without the walls; 393,550 in the 20 out-parishes of Middlesex and Surrey; and 240,805 in the city and liberties of Westminster. All which added together, make 1,045,075 people in the whole town. Which calculation possibly may be something of the largest, but not much. London has scarce any wall about it which is visible. Its strength consists in the number of its inhabitants, which are computed to be one seventh of all the people of England.

LONDONDERRY, W. lon. 7. 40. lat. 54. 52. an episcopal city in Ireland, in the pr. of Ulster, and co. of Londonderry, sit. on the river Mourne near its mouth, 5 miles S. of the lake or bay of Loughswyle, 104 N. W. of Dublin, and 50 W. of Carrickfergus, the capital of the pr. of Ulster, and co. of Londonderry; rendered memorable by the long siege it sustained against the forces of King James II. anno 1689, when he was in possession of almost all the rest of the kingdom; sends two members to p. rl.

LONDONDERRY, a co. of Ireland, 32 miles in length, and 30 in breadth, bounded by Donnegal on the W. by the ocean on the N. by Tyrone on the S. and S. W. and by Antrim on the E. It contains 38 parishes, 4 baronies, 3 boroughs, and sends 8 members to parl.

LONDON-NEW, a sea port town of considerable trade in the province of Connecticut, one of the four provinces of New England.

LONDON-TOWN, a small inconsiderable place near Annapolis in Maryland.

LONGFORD, a co. of Ireland, in the pr. of Leinster, bounded by the co. of Letrim and Cavan on the N. by Meath on the E. and S. and by the co. of Roscommon on the W.

LONGFORD, the principal town in the co. of Longford; sends two members to parl. and gives the title of Baron to the family of Parkenham.

LONG ISLAND, belonging to the pr. of New York, in North America, lying between 71 and 74 degrees of W. lon. and in 41 deg. 30 min. N. lat. is separated from the continent of New-York and Connecticut by a narrow channel; and is about 100 miles in length, and 12 in breadth, containing the 3 counties of Queen's County, Suffolk County, and Richmond County. Here is a fine plain in the middle of this island to which they have given the name of Salisbury-pl in; and having an excellent breed of horses, have races here, to which the gentlemen of New England and the neighbouring colonies resort, as the gentlemen of Old England do to Newmarket. The produce of this island is chiefly provision, such as British and Indian corn, salted beef, pork, fish, and strong beer, which they send to the sugar colonies, and receive sugar, rum, cotton, and indigo in return. They have also a whale fishery, sending their oil and bone to England, and taking cloths and furniture in return. And their other fisheries are very considerable.

LONGINICO, E. lon. 22. lat. 37. 30. a town of the Morea in Europe in Turkey, sit. on the river Alpheus, 50 miles S. of Lepanto. This was the ancient Olympia, where Hercules instituted the Olympic games, held every four years; from whence the Greeks measured their time by Olympiads, which began A. M. 3228, ante Chr. 776.

LONGTOWN, a market town of Cumberland, on the borders of Scotland; 12 miles N. of Carlisle.

LONGUEVILLE, E. lon. 1. 10. lat. 49. 50. a town of France, in the pr. of Normandy, 20 m. N. of Rouen.

LONGWY, E. lon. 5. 51. lat. 49. 38. a town of the D. of Lorraine, sit. 15 miles S. W. of Luxemburg; sub. to France.

LONSDALE, or Kirby-Lonsdale, a market town of Westmoreland, sit. 25 m. S. of Appleby; gave title of Viscount to the family of Lowther, which title is extinct.

LOO, E. lon. 5. 50. lat. 52. 18. a town of the United Provinces, in the pr. of Guelderland, sit. 8 miles W. of Deventer. Here the Prince of Grange has a fine palace.

LOOTS, or Borchloen, E. lon. 5. 12. lat. 50. 52. a town of the bishopric of Liege, in Germany, sit. 16 m. W. of Maestricht.

LOQUAXEN, or Lochabar, a co. of Scotland, bounded by Inverness on the N. by Badenoch and Athol on the E. by Lorn on the S. and the western ocean on the W.

LORA, W. lon. 4. 5. lat. 37. a town of Spain, in the pr. of Granada, sit. 15 m. N. of Malaga.

LORA, W. lon. 5. 20. lat. 37. 40. a town of Spain, in the pr. of Andalusia, sit. on the river Guadalquivir, 28 m. N. E. of Seville.

LORAN, E. lon. 10. 45. lat. 51. 30. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Upper Saxony, and co. of Hoenstein, sit. 30 m. N. of Saxe-Cotha.

LORCA, W. lon. 1. 5. lat. 37. 25. a town of Spain, in the pr. of Murcia, 33 m. W. of Carthagena.

LORENDO, E. lon. 12. 50. lat. 45. 5. a town of Italy, in the Polesine de Rovigo, and ter. of Venice, sit. on the river Adige, 20 miles E. of Rovigo.

LORETTO, E. lon. 13. lat. 43. 25. a city of Italy, in the mar. of Ancona, the Pope's ter. sit. 15 miles S. of Ancona, 3 m. W. of the gulph of Venice, and 115 E. of Rome. It is a small fortified town, consisting of one street within the gate, and another without, but the richest in the world; for according to Catholic tradition, the chamber of the Blessed Virgin, (in which she was born, and was saluted by the Angel, and brought up her son Jesus till he was 12 years of age) was brought by Angels into Dalmatia, on the East side of the gulph of Venice, in the year 1391; but the people of that country not expressing a due veneration for it, it was, about three years afterwards, transported over the gulph into Italy, and, at length, after various other removals, fixed at Loretto, and a magnificent church, the present cathedral, built over it, in the middle whereof it now remains, under the cupola. They also erected four walls of the whitest Carrara marble to surround the holy chamber, half a foot distant from it. The chamber is 31 feet 9 inches long, 13 feet 3 inches broad, and 18 feet 9 inches high. In it is an image of the Blessed Virgin with a little Jesus in her arms, and a triple crown on her head, her whole person covered almost with diamonds and pearls, and round the statue is a kind of rainbow of precious stones, of various colours, all the ornaments, altars, and utensils in the place, being inexpressibly rich. The gallery, in which the treasures are lodged, is filled with gold, jewels, vessels and ornaments more precious than gold; the votive donations of Emperors, Kings, Popes, and Princes, for many hundred years past; silver works are hardly thought worthy to be admitted here. There formerly resorted annually to this holy house near 200,000 pilgrims; but their number is now greatly diminished. The time of the greatest concourse at Loretto, is from the beginning of May, till the middle of July; and in September, the 8th of that month being kept as the birth-day of the virgin Mary. None of these pilgrims come empty-handed, but contribute something to increase the treasure. Pope Sextus V. first made Loretto a city and bishopric, and it is esteemed the

LOAN, the N. part of Argyleshire in Scotland, bounded by Lochabar on the N. by Broadalbin on the E. by the rest of Argyleshire on the S. and by the sea on the W.

LORRAIN DUCHY, once a sovereign state of Europe, which once made part of the cir. of the Upper Rhine in Germany, is bounded by the D. of Luxemburg on the N. by Alsatis, the D. of Deuxponts, and the pal. of the Rhine on the E. by the county of Burgundy or French Comte on the S. and by Champaign, a pr. of France, on the W. being of a round form almost, and upwards of 100 m. over either way. The E. and S. parts of it are mountainous; the mountains of Vague separating it from Alsace and Burgundy; and on the N. W. are some uncultivated forests. The rest of the country has a fruitful soil, producing plenty of corn, wine, and excellent pasture. In their hills, are mines of silver, copper, lead and iron; and their salt springs are so numerous, that they have yielded 200,000 l. per annum. The chief rivers are, the Maas, the Moselle, and the Sarre, which rise in the S. of Lorrain, and run N. through this country. It is subdivided into three parts, viz. 1. Lorrain Proper. 2. The Duchy of Bar, or Bar-le-Duc. And 3. French Lorrain, consisting of the bishoprics of Metz, Toul, and Verdun; the last of which was confirmed to France by the treaty of Munster, anno 1648. The rest of Lorrain, which the French had possessed themselves of, was restored to the Duke, and confirmed to him by the Pyrenean treaty, anno 1660; but the French reserved a liberty of garrisoning some towns, and marching through Lorrain into Alsace when they pleased. And in the year 1670, Lewis XIV. seized on all Lorrain again, and kept it till the peace of Ryfwic, anno 1698, when it was restored to the Duke except a few small towns. And it was agreed, that the fortifications of Nancy, the capital city of Lorrain, should be demolished. The French King making himself master of Lorrain again, in the war with the confederates, anno 1702, was obliged to restore it to the Duke by the treaty of Utrecht, or rather Rastat, anno 1714. In the last war between France and the Emperor Charles VI. which ended in a peace concluded in the year 1735, one of the articles was, that the Duke of Lorrain should yield his country to France; at least that King Stanislaus, father of the Queen of France, should have the dominion of Lorrain, with the title of Duke during his life; and that after his decease, Lorrain should be united to the crown of France; and that the Duke of Lorrain, in consideration thereof, should be constituted Grand Duke of Tuscany, in Italy, after the death of the then reigning Grand Duke; which happening anno 1737, the Duke of Lorrain took possession of Tuscany. And upon the death of King Stanislaus, which happened in 1766, Lorrain and Bar became entirely subject to France.

The chief towns Drogheda, Dundalk, and Carlingford. It contains 50 parishes, 5 baronies, 5 boroughs; sends 10 members to parl. is 29 m. in length, and 13 in breadth.

LOUTH, a market town in Lincolnshire, sit. 28 m. N. E. of Lincoln.

LOUVAIN, E. lon. 4. 35. lat. 51. 45. a city of the Austrian Netherlands, in the pr. of Brabant, sit. on the river Dyle, 15 miles N. E. of Brussels, and 12 S. E. of Mechlin. The walls of this town are between 6 and 7 miles in circumference, but of no great strength, it being generally forced to submit to the army that is master of the field, without waiting to be besieged. It has been very considerable for its manufactures, and has still a good trade in fine linen. Its univ. is esteemed the most considerable in the Netherlands, having in it 43 colleges with ample privileges.

LOUVSTEIN, E. lon. 5. lat. 52. 45. a fortress of the United Provinces, sit. in the pr. of Holland, at the confluences of the rivers Waal and Maas, 16 m. of Dort.

LOUVO, E. lon. 101. 10. lat. 13. a city of Siam, in the Further India, in Asia, sit. 30 miles N. of the city of Siam.

LOUVRE, a magnificent palace of the French King's, in Paris, now running to ruin, the court not having resided there many years.

LOWOSCHUTZ, E. lon. 14. 10. lat. 50. 30. a village of Bohemia, sit. on the E. side of the river Elbe, and famous for an obstinate engagement between the Austrians and Prussians in 1756.

LOXA, W. lon. 67. S. lat. 5. a city of Peru, in S. America, sit. 200 m. E. of Payta.

LUBANER SEA, a lake in the S. of Livonia, near the confines of Poland.

LUBEK, E. lon. 10. 51. lat. 54. 6. city and port town of Germany, in the cir. of Lower Saxony, and duchy of Holstein, sit. on the river Trave, 10 miles S. W. of the Baltic sea, 40 m. N. E. of Hamburg, and 36 W. of Wisnar. It is one of the Hans-towns, and is a rich, populous city, pleasantly sit. and elegantly built, in which are 20 parochial churches, besides the cathedral. It is an imperial city, or sovereign state, governed by its own magistrates. The bishopric, or rather the lands of the bishop, has been enjoyed by Protestant Princes, ever since the year 1561, when the Lutheran religion was established here; and devolves as an appendage, or inheritance, on a younger son of the Duke of Holstein-Gottorp, who is stiled Duke of Holstein-Eutin, from the place where he usually resides, 4 miles from this city. The present bishop is brother to the King of Sweden.

den. The form of their government is aristocratical, none having any share in it but the nobility and persons of fortune, and their territories, which lie about the city, are about 60 miles in circumference, containing several towns and villages. During the flourishing state of the Hans-towns, the friendship of this city, their capital, was much courted by the powers of Europe, for they were able to fit out 100 ships of war, and could turn the scale to which side they pleased, in the wars between the Northern Princes and States. They have still a great foreign trade, but ships of burden come up no higher than the town of Travemund, which lies at the mouth of the river Trave.

LUTZOW, E. lon. 14. 25. lat. 52. a town of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, and mar. of Lusatia, sit. on the river Spree, 37 miles S. of Berlin; subject to the Elector of Saxony.

LUTZOW, E. lon. 12. 30. lat. 51. 24. a town of Bohemia, in the pr. of Silesia, sit. 23 miles N. E. of Breslaw, seized by the King of Prussia.

LUBLIN, E. lon. 23. 15. lat. 51. 44. a town of Poland, in the pr. of Little Poland, capital of the pal. of Lublin, sit. 119 miles N. E. of Cracow. It is a trading town, much resorted to by foreign merchants; and two great courts of justice, for the whole kingdom of Poland, are annually held here.

LUTOW, E. lon. 20. 30. lat. 49. 30. a town of Poland in the pr. of Little Poland, and pal. of Cracow, sit. 30 m. S. E. of Cracow.

Luc, E. lon. 5. 15. lat. 43. 23. a town of France, in Provence, sit. 23 m. N. E. of Toulon.

Luc, E. lon. 5. 25. lat. 44. 40. a town of France, in the pr. of Dauphine, sit. on the river Drome, 32 m. S. of Grenoble.

LUCAR DE BAREMBA St. W. lon. 6. 5. lat. 36. 40. a port town of Spain, in the pr. of Andalusia, sit. at the mouth of the river Guadalquivir, 48 miles S. by W. of Seville, and 24

N. of Cadiz. This is the port town to Seville, great ships not going higher up the river, and it was the greatest port in Spain, before the galleons unloaded their treasure at the port of Cadiz.

LUCAR DE GUADIANA St. W. lon. 6. 55. lat. 37. 20. a town of Spain, in the pr. of Andalusia, sit. on the W. side of the river Guadiana, near the frontiers of Portugal, 40 m. N. E. of Faro.

LUCAR LA MAYOR St. W. lon. 5. 30. lat. 37. 25. a town of Spain, in the pr. of Andalusia, sit. on the river Guadiana, 15 miles W. of Seville.

LUGANO, E. lon. 6. 46. lat. 45. 55. a town of Italy, sit. on the lake Magior, 14 miles W. of Lugano, in the D. of Milan, but subject to Switzerland.

LUCAYA. See BAHAMA ISLANDS.

LUCCA, E. lon. 11. 36. lat. 43. 50. a city of Italy, capital of the republic of Lucca, sit. on the middle of a fruitful plain, about 15 miles wide, near the river Serchio, 10 m. N. E. of Pisa, and 12 m. E. of the Tuscan sea; it is about 3 m. in circumference, surrounded by a wall and other modern fortifications, and the town as elegantly built as other Italian cities. This republic has been established about 300 years. The legislative authority is lodged in a senate of 200 noblemen, or other merchants and tradesmen, of ample fortunes. The executive power is administered by the Gonfalonier, or Standard-bearer, the chief officer of the state, and a council of 9 members who are changed every two months. All elections of officers are made by balloting in the senate, from whence it appears, that this state is an aristocracy. The ordinary revenues of the state amount to 30,000 l. per annum, and they can raise and pay 10,000 men on any emergency; but their greatest security was in the protection they received from the house of Austria, when they were insulted.

resisted by the French and Spaniards for adhering to that house in the late wars in Italy. They oblige all travellers to leave their arms at the gate, and will not suffer any one to wear a sword in the city. It is the see of a bishop, immediately subject to the Pope, and he officiates in the robes of an archbishop. By the diligence of the natives it has acquired the name of Lucca the industrious. They have considerable manufactures of silk and gold and silver stuffs. Their olive oil is in great esteem, and they have plenty of wine, but little corn. The common people usually eat chefnuts instead of bread, as they do in other parts of Italy. Their territory is about 25 m. long, and 20 broad, bounded by Modena, on the N. Tuscany on the E. and S. and the Tuscan sea, and the ter. of Genoa on the W.

LUCCA, E. lon. 14. 24. lat. 43. 38. a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and ter. of the Capitanate, sit. 65 miles N. E. of Naples; the see of a bishop.

LUCERN, E. lon. 5. 12. lat. 47. capital of the canton of Lucern, in Switzerland, sit. on the lake Lucern, to which it gives its name, 30 miles E. W. of Zurich, and 35 m. E. of Bern. It is an elegant fortified town, and stands in a plain almost encompassed with mountains.

LUCERN CANTON is bounded by Suture on the N. by Zurich, Zug, and Unterwald on the E. and by the can. of Bern on the S. and W. being about 30 miles long, and 20 broad; its subjects are Papists.

LUCERNA, E. lon. 7. 10. lat. 44. 40. a town of Italy, is the ter. of Piedmont, sit. 15 m. S. of Turin; sub. to the King of Sardinia.

LUCEN, W. lon. 30 min; lat. 39. a town of Spain in the pr. of Valencia, 30 m. S. of Valencia city.

LUCIA (St.) ISLAND, W. lon. 51. lat. 13. 30. one of the Caribbee Islands, in America, sit. 70 m. N. W. of Barbadoes, and 21 m. S. of Martinico; being 22 m. long, and 22 broad, some part of it is hilly, but, in general, it is a rich soil, well watered with rivulets, and furnished with timber, and hath several good bays and commodious harbours. To this island the English of Barbadoes formerly resorted to cut timber, and furnish themselves with other necessaries; and the English looking upon themselves as proprietors of it, the crown of Great Britain has usually included it in the commission of the Governor of Barbadoes; and in the year 1722, King George I. made a grant of it to the Duke of Montague, to plant it, and send colonies thither; who thereupon sent several ships to make a settlement there, under convoy of one of the King's men of war; but the French raised a superior force in the island of Martinico, invaded the island of St. Lucia, and drove the English planters from thence, who were thereby ruined, and the Duke of Montague lost all the expence he had been at in this expedition, amounting to 40,000 l. However, the court of England did not think fit to resent the injury. The French, since the peace of Aix, have planted and fortified this island, which was formally ceded to them by the treaty of peace in 1763; and has since been declared a free port.

islands, and in others not so small. The country is not so hot as might be expected in this climate, being well watered by large lakes and rivers, and the periodical rains, which lay all the plains under water. There are several volcanoes in the mountains, which occasion earthquakes, and variety of hot baths. The inhabitants of the island are a mixture of Chinese, Malays, and Blacks; the last inhabiting the mountains and inland places, and supposed to be the original inhabitants. Besides these, there are great numbers of Spaniards, Portuguese, and Malays, and a mixed breed being compounded of all these. But the Blacks of these islands have long hair and good features, and do not at all resemble the Negroes of Africa; and there is one class of the inhabitants, that so little admire their native complexion, that they paint their skins, from whence they have obtained the name of Pintados or Painted, according to Martin, like to supply between the two kingdoms of the E. and W. that is, the best of the best situation in the world for a foreign traffic. For hither silver is brought from New Spain, or Mexico and Peru, diamonds from Golconda, and formerly fine spices from the Spice-islands in their neighbourhood, which the Dutch monopolize at present; silk, tea, Japan, and China ware, and gold dust from China and Japan, and two large ships sail annually to Acapulco, in Mexico, returning loaded with silver, by which they make 40 per cent. profit. And no soil in the world produces greater plenty of all things necessary for food, as appears by the multitude of inhabitants that subsist in the mountains, on what the earth produces spontaneously, or what they take in hunting; and in the sands of their rivulets they meet with plenty of gold dust. The fruits of America, particularly the cacao, or chocolate-nut, thrive as well here, as in their native soil. The Spaniards have the dominion of Luconia, and almost all the rest of the Philippine islands, and their Viceroy acts as arbitrarily here, as in any of their settlements, being at so great a distance from Spain, and it is one of the most profitable posts belonging to the Spanish monarchy. The ecclesiastical government is lodged in the archbishop of Manila, who has a great many suffragans under him; and the officers of the inquisition exercise their authority here, as in other Popish countries, only they suffer the natives, the Chinese, and Mahometans, to profess their respective religions. It was near this island of Luconia, that Mr. Anson took the rich Agapulo ship, the treasure whereof he brought to England; anno 1744. The city of Manila, and port of Cavite, were taken by the English, under Brigadier Draper and Admiral Cornish, in the year 1762; but restored to Spain by the peace of 1763.

LUANOM, a borough town of Shropshire, sit. on the river Tame, 193 miles N. W. of London, in the road to Montgomery, and 26 m. W. of Worcester; sends two members to parliament, and gives the title of Viscount to the Earl of Powis.

LUNENBURG, a town, &c. of Saxony, in the circle of Lower Saxony, including Zell, is bounded by the river Elbe, which separates it from Holstein, and Lauenburg on the N. by the river of Brandenburg on the E. By the D. of Brunswick on the S. and by the D. of Bremen and Westphalia on the W. being 280 m. long, and 70 m. broad; part of it a heathy land, & desert; another part of it is covered with woods and forests; but it has some fruitful lands near the banks of their rivers; however, it is generally a cold, uncomfortable country; and the people esteemed the greatest churls in Germany; but as it abounds in wild hogs, deer, and other venison, the German nobility frequently resort thither to hunt in the forest. The duchies of Lauenburg and Zell, on the death of George William, the last Duke, anno 1705, devolved on the Electress of Hanover, his only daughter and heiress, and are now descended to his present majesty King George III. at heir of the said Princess, and King George I.

Electress of Hanover, consent to that Princess.

LUNENBURG, E. lon. 10. 40. lat. 53. 38. capital of the D. of Lunenburg, sit. on the river Rimenow, 45 miles N. of Zell, and 35 m. S. E. of Hamburg. The figure of the town is an oblong, and the circumference about 2 miles; the streets broad, and tolerably well built. At the salt-springs near this city, great quantities of salt are made, which is the principal employment of the inhabitants, and brings a good revenue to the sovereign.

LUTERNA, E. lon. 12. 37. lat. 51. 22. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Upper Saxony, sit. 8 miles W. of Leipzig, and 8 m. S. E. of Merseburg. Here the Swedes obtained a victory over the Germans, anno 1632; but lost their King, the heroic Gustavus Adolphus, who being wounded reconnoitering, was safely dispatched by a servant of his own.

LUXEMBURG DUCHY, one of the 17 provinces of the Austrian Netherlands, bounded by the bishopric of Liege, and duchy of Limburg on the N. by the river Moselle, which divides it from the archb. of Triers, on the E. by the duchy of Lorraine on the S. and by the river Meuse, which separates it from the counties of Champagne, Hainault, and Namur, on the W. being about 70 miles long, and 60 broad. The N. part of it has a fruitful soil; but the S. is incumbered with mountains, and the forest of Ardennes; and in their mountains are some iron mines. The States, whose concurrence is necessary to the making laws and raising money, consist of the prelates, nobility, gentry, and the representatives of the towns, which are assembled annually by the Governor of the Austrian Netherlands at Brussels. The French were possessed this of duchy many years; but were compelled to restore it to the house of Austria, at the peace of Utrecht, anno 1713, except the city of Montmedy, and a little of the southern territory.

LUXEMBURG, E. lon. 16. 3. lat. 49. 45. the capital of the duchy of Luxembourg, is sit. 25 miles S. W.

of Triers, and 100 miles S. E. of Brussels, on the river Elbe, or Albis. It is a small, but strong fortress, much improved in the fortifications while it was in the hands of the French.

LYBANA, E. lon. 10. 10. lat. 45. 3. a town of Italy, in the duchy of Mantua, sit. 12 miles S. of Mantua, subject to the house of Austria. Here an obstinate battle was fought between the Germans on one side, and the French and Spaniards on the other, on the 4th of August 1702, wherein several thousand men were killed, and both sides claimed the victory.

LYBIA, was a name anciently given to all the coast of Barbary, by some; but the proper Lybia was that part of Africa which lies W. of the kingdom of Egypt.

LYCAONIA, an ancient name of a pr. in the Lesser Asia, of which Iconium, now Cogni, is the capital.

LYCHAM, or Litcham, a town of Norfolk, sit. 24 miles W. of Norwich.

LYCIA, the ancient name of a pr. in the Lesser Asia, sit. on the Mediterranean, between Caria and Pamphilia.

LYDIA, the ancient name of a pr. in the Lesser Asia, N. of Caria, in which was the city of Philadelphia.

LYZEE, E. lon. 4. lat. 50. 14. a town of the French Netherlands, in Hainault, sit. 22 m. S. of Mons, and 15 m. E. of Landrecy.

LYME, a borough and port town of Dorsetshire, sit. on the E. channel 24 miles W. of Bournemouth, and 144 W. by S. of London; sends two members to parl. Here the Duke of Monmouth landed with no more than 200 followers, in the year 1685; but, being joined by 5 or 6000 of the country people, caused himself to be proclaimed King, and attacked K. James's army at Sedgemoor near Bridgewater, in Somersetshire, where he was defeated, and afterwards made prisoner, and beheaded.

LYNH

LYNH RIVER, a port town of Norfolk, N. at the mouth of the river Ouse, on a bay of the German sea, 42 m. W. of Norwich, and 106 N. E. of London; sends two members to parl. and gives title of Baron to the Lord Viscount Townshend.

LYONS, a province of France, bounded by Orleans and Burgundy on the N. by La Bresse and Dauphiné on the E. by Languedoc and part of Guienne on the S. and by another part of Guienne and Orleans on the W.

LYONS, Lugdunum, E. lon. 4. 55. lat. 45. 30. the cap. of the Lyonnais, sit. at the confluence of the rivers Rhone and Soane, 225 miles S. E. of Paris, and 45 m. W. of Chambery, in Savoy. Lyons consists of 11 parishes, and contains about 150,000 inhabitants. Next to Paris, it is esteemed a place of the greatest trade in the kingdom, being advantageously situated, and in the neighbourhood of Switzerland, Italy, and Germany; though some are of opinion, that Rouen has a more extensive foreign trade. It is a town of great antiquity, having been the seat of the Roman government in Gaul; and here are visible ruins of some Roman palaces.

MACAEO, or Makaw, E. lon. 112. lat. 23. an island of China, in Asia, in the pr. of Canton, sit. at the mouth of the Ta, 70 miles S. of Canton. The Portuguese took possession of this island, and left a colony here, when they first visited this coast; and they have still a large town on Macaw, but are obliged to submit to the Chinese, though the Emperor of China permits them to be governed by their own laws and magistrates.

MACASSAR, a large island, which results of Bonao, in the East Indies. See CARACAS.

MACLESFELD, a market town in Cheshire, sit. 35 m. E. of Chester, from whence the family of Parke take the title of Earl.

MACEDONIA, a pr. of European Turkey, is bounded by Serbia and Romania on the N. and E. by the gulphs of Salonichi, Costoffa, and Thessaly, on the S. and by Albania, and Epirus on the W.

MACONARA, E. lon. 13. 37. lat. 43. 15. a city of Italy, in the mar. of Ancona, in the Pope's territories, sit. 24 m. S. W. of Ancona.

MACOSAN, E. lon. 125. (being under the equator) a small island of the Moluccas, sit. 40 miles S. of the town of Gtito, and 200 miles N. of Amboyna. It produces the best cloves; but the Dutch have usurped the dominion of this and the rest of the Clove islands which lie near it, and have 3 forts here, built upon inaccessible rocks, to defend their possession.

MACHWERTH, a market town of Montgomeryshire, in North Wales, sit. 25 m. W. of Montgomery.

MACKAN, or Machan, a pr. of Persia, bounded by the pr. of Sigistan on the N. the pr. of Tata in India on the E. the Indian ocean on the S. and the pr. of Kherman on the W.

MACKAN, E. lon. 66. lat. 16. capital of the pr. of Mackan, sit. 100 miles N. W. of Tata.

MACRO, or Macronissa, an island of the Archipelago, near the coast of Achais, sit. 20 m. E. of Athens.

The country is divided amongst a great many petty sovereigns, to whom the English have granted the title of Kings and Princes; while, making war on each other, as they do on the continent, sell their prisoners for slaves to the shipping which call there, raising cloathing, diamonds, and other securities in return. European pirates frequently have their stations in the harbours of this island, among whom was Every, the Avery, to which pirates of about 70 years ago, and to suppress whom an English fleet of war vessels sent Giffier. But these pirates seem to be superseded as yet of the Princes of Madagascar, and still defiant to their dominion, who come to wreck ships, either by sea or land. It was conjectured, the pirates would have found a safe refuge in this island, having a great number of ships with them, on the W. E. side of Madagascar, whither they retreated in the prizes they made in the Indian sea, and fortified the avenues to the harbour, where they caught them; but what becomes of them (whether they remain there, or have left the island) is uncertain. It was first discovered by the Portuguese, in the year 1598. The French have attempted to settle here several times, but have always been driven from

MEMORANDUM, not furnished to the Director of FBI, and not to be used

There is a large quantity of the same wine, for half of the family drink, and the other of brandy, in the houses of Mahomet Ali. Among the larger of them, called Madras, or rehab houses, by the Portuguese, there are wine stored up in great quantities, and it is not till the year of jubilee, that it is first discovered by the Mahometans, and is afterwards by the Portuguese, in 1747. The wine being burnt down, the Mahometans pretend by the smoke it is infused with some of their, and produce incredible quantities of wine, which has the peculiar good quality, that it keeps well in the hottest climates, and in the hottest countries, where some wine they buy, and this is the reason they drink more of it, than any other wine in Jamaica and the Caribbean islands. Toumal, or Tanthal, is the capital town. The other towns are extending them, and producing wine. They are within seven Portuguese leagues, and are all subject to that crown.

MADEIRA DE VOSES, W. Ion. 76
 Feb. 11. A town and convent of the Terra Firma, in the Umeric, At. on the river Grande, about E. of Cartagena, about as much inland towards the Caribbees, pillars of America,
 as the Church of Corinto, is by the situation of Maricao, the mountains and hills are said to have been originally by the blessed Virgin, in favour of the Spanish fleet, and sea-faring independent, which makes them very beneficial to their offerings to her shrine.

MADRID, the largest and most magnificent in that of a Plaza Mayor, surrounded by a lofty, uniform house, 5 stories high, with balconies to every story; the whole supported by a cloister of columns with arches; here their chief market is held, and here they celebrate their victories and feasts; but their finest houses have only lattice windows. The nobility have no courts or yards before their houses, but they stand even with the street. There are 3 royal palaces at Madrid, called the Palace Royal, the Casa del Campo, and the Mon. Real. This city is seated in a large plain, and it contains upwards of 100 towers and churches, which contribute greatly to the embellishment of it; notwithstanding which, it is a very uncomfortable place to live in, especially for strangers; and by no means answers the extravagant accounts of the Spaniards, who blazon its grandeur with great pomp. Provisions of every kind are remarkably cheap; but it is said, neither tavern, coffee-house, nor newspaper, except the Madrid gazette, are to be found in the whole city.

MADAGASCAR, W. lon. 75. 35. N. lat. 30 min. a town of S. America, in the pr. of Popayan, 220 m. S. of the city of Popayan; sub. to Spain.

MADURA, a pr. of the Higher India, in Asia, founded by Tapjers, on the N. E. by the Indian sea, which separates it from the island of Ceylon, on the S. E. and by the mountains of Pegu, which divide it from Malabar on the W. The Prince of this country is subject, or at least tributary, to the Mogul. The inhabitants are Gentoos.

MADURA, a city, capital of the pr. of Madura, E. lon. 78. 23. lat. 10. 5. Et. 130 miles N. of Cape Comorin, the most southern promontory of the Higher India, 200 m. S. W. of Port St. George, and 150 S. E. of Calicut. The natives are most of them Blacks. This city was besieged and taken by the English for the Nabob of the Carnatic, in Oct. 1756; being recovered

MARSLAND, AMSTERDAM, E. lon. 4. lat. 52. a town of Holland, in the pr. of Delfland, Et. 5 m. S. of Delft.

MARSTADT, E. lon. 5. 45. lat. 50. 50. Et. on the river Meuse, 15 m. E. of Liege, and 35 E. of Louvain. The town, which lies on the W. side of the river, is in Liege; but the wycke and suburb, which is on the E. side of the river, is in Limburg; the whole is garrisoned by the Dutch; who have also the civil government of that part of Maastricht called the town, which is about 4 m. in circumference, and strongly fortified. There are 3 Dutch churches, but most of the Roman Catholics, who are most numerous. The Dutch took this town from the Spaniards, anno 1632; but it was taken from them by the French King, in person, anno 1673, who restored it again to the Dutch by the treaty of Nimwegen, anno 1679; in whose possession it remains.

MAGELLAN STRAITS, sit. between 56 and 74 degrees of W. lon. and between 53 and 54 degrees of S. lat. being upwards of 300 miles in length from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean, but of a very unequal breadth, being in some places several leagues over, and in others not half a league; the land on both sides mountainous. These were discovered and passed by Ferdinand Magellan, a Portuguese, in the service of Spain, anno 1520, in his attempt to find a way to the East Indies by the W. which he effected; but being killed in the Molucca islands, his ship returned to the Cape of Good Hope, round Africa, and was the first that ever surrounded the globe. Admiral Drake passed them also in his voyage round the world; but ships that have gone to the S. sea of late years, have found them fewer inconveniences than in passing the straits.

and is neither very large nor well built; this is considerable on account of its trade, its harbour, and the strength of its fortifications. Near this city, the English, and their allies, the Dutch, commanded by Sir George Rook, obtained a victory over the French fleet, since from which the French have never attempted to dispute the mastery of the sea with them; the victory had been more complete, if the English had not spent most of their ammunition in taking Gibraltar, and the Dutch had not lost away part of their squadron in chasing their mutual ships.

MALBA, E. Ion. 52. 30. lat. 23. 30. a town of India, in the pr. of Bengal, in Ass. St. on the river Ganges. Here some European nations have their factors; St. about 20 m. N. of Hooghly.

MALDIVIA, or Maldiva Islands (St. in the Indian ocean, 250 miles S. W. of the continent of the British India, and the island of Ceylon) are a great number of small islands, extending themselves from the 4th degree of S. lat. to the 7th degree of N. lat. They are generally flat, low land, surrounded by rocks and sands, and probably were planted by the Arabians, the people being of the same complexion, and of the Mahometan religion, governed by one sovereign. The channels between the islands are very narrow, and some of them fordable. They do not produce either rice, corn, or herbs; but the natives live upon coco-nuts, and other fruits, roots, and fish; they have little or nothing to borrow with other nations, unless those shells called cowries, or blackmoor's teeth, with which they abound; and these serve instead of small coin in many parts of India. These islands are very numerous, and so near each other, that their exact number was never known; but they are by some thought to exceed 1000.

MALDEN, a port town of Essex, St. at the mouth of the river Chelmer, near a bay of the sea, 12 m. E. of Chelmsford; sends two members to parli. and gives title of Viscount to the Earl of Essex. This is a place of great antiquity; for there are still to be seen some of the intrenchments thrown up by the Danes. Here Cromwell held his head-quarters, and several battles were fought near it.

Mass. Oct. 20, 1840. In the year 1619, in a degree 30 min. W. Lon. and between 53. 30. and 54. 15. N. lat. 30 min. W. of the coast of Sumatra, and 43 mi. N. of Annapolis in Walcott's Bay, S. of the coast of Galloway in Scotland, and 12 E. of the north of Down in Ireland, there was the destruction of England's fleet, and Ireland may be easily seen at death. It is near 30. 20. min. and 53. 15. N. broad, containing 17 counties & the chief towns, Dublin, Drogheda, and Beal. The soil is good, containing arable and pasture, more than is sufficient for the subsistence of the natives; and the air is extremely healthy, the people living long, great numbers. Shomero's mixture of English blood, and that of a King or Prince of their own, the last was the Duke of Ashby, who was so united to the crown of England. Their staple commodities are wool, hides, and tallow; and sheep, pigs, and cows, and horses, and some more for the raising of such, which is not practiced, was the raising of bringing them under the form, laws, and usage in relation to the customs. There is a bishop suffragan to York, styled bishop of Sedon and Mass., but he has no seat or voice in the British house of peers, but performs every other office like a bishop, by ordaining priests and deacons. Salford Town is the metropolis of this diocese, and the seat of civil government. This island was very lately belonged to the Duke of Athol. Resists of that rendering is necessary for the crown of Great Britain to purchase the customs and the island from the Athol family, the bargain was completed in the reign of his present Majesty, by 95,000 l. being paid to the Duke in 1766. The Duke, however, against his testament

MANORBY, a market town of Nottinghamshire, sit. 24 miles N. of Nottingham; given title of Baron to one of the family of Manners, now the chief justice of the court of King's Bench.

MANTE, E. lon. 1. 45. lat. 49. a town of France, in the pr. of the ile of France, sit. on the river Seine, 27 m. N. W. of Paris.

MANTUA DUCHY, in Italy, is bounded by the Breiskin and Veronesi on the N. by another part of the Venetian territories and the Ferrarese on the E. by the duchies of Modena and Mirandola on the S. and by the Cremonese on the W. being about 30 m. long, and from 10 to 50 broad; a fruitful country, abounding in corn, wine, silk, flax, pasture, and excellent fruit. The revenues of the sovereign computed to be 300,000 crowns per annum. This duchy was enjoyed by the family of Gonzaga, till the reign of the late Queen Anne, when the last Duke adhering to the French and Spaniards, the Emperor Charles VI. placed on the duchy as a forfeited fee, and the Duke dying, anno 1738, the house of Austria still kept possession of it.

MANTUA CITY, E. lon. 10. 47. lat. 45. 10. cap. of the duchy, is sit. in the middle of a lake formed by the river Mincio, 30 m. S. W. of Venice, and 70 W. of Milan. It has a communication with the continent by three cutways, defended by forts on them, and is about 5 miles in circumference, containing 500,000 inhabitants. The streets and squares are spacious and elegantly built; and there are in it 18 parish churches, besides the cathedral, and 40 convents. They have an excellent manufacture of silk, from thence called Mantua silk. Tasso, the poet, was born here, and Virgil at the village of Andet, about 3 miles from it. This archbishopric is immediately subject to the Pope, and has no other superior.

MAON, or MALIN PORT, E. lon. 4. 6. lat. 35. 51. a port town of the island of Minorca, sit. in the Mediterranean, on a fine bay, at the E. end of the island of the same name, being a commodious harbour, where the largest fleets may ride secure from tempest or enemies, the entrance being defended by platforms of guns, and forts strongly fortified. The English made a conquest of it, in the year 1708; and the late Emperor and King of Spain, Charles, as well as Philip the last King, ceded and confirmed it to Great Britain, at the peace of Utrecht, and the harbour has been of infinite service to the English of late, for here they repair their ships, and here the merchant-ships lie in safety, till they can meet with convoy. St. Philip's Castle surrendered to the French on June 29, 1756, after a siege of two months, having been bravely defended by General (late Lord) Blakeney, the Lieutenant-governor. The whole island was ordered to England by the terms of peace in 1763.

wa

MARTINICO, sit. in St. Sigeon
W. Ion. and between 74 and 75 degrees N. lat. 42. 0 m. N. W. of Barbadoes; being 60 m. long, but scarce
so broad in any place. The island part is mountainous, from whence fall numerous rivulets into the sea;
and there are several safe and commodious harbours on the coast, well fortified. The island produces sugar, cotton, ginger, indigo, cane, shoes,
pimento, cocon, plantains, and other tropical fruits; and it is much larger and better peopled than Barbadoes;
it produces a great deal more sugar;
it is now the chief of all the French Caribbee islands, and the seat of their Governor-general. Martinico was reduced in the beginning of the year 1762, by the English, under the command of General Monkton, and Admiral Rodney; but restored by the peace of 1763.

MARTINICO, one of the British plantations in North America, is sit.
between 74 and 78 degrees of W. lon.
and between 28 and 30 degrees of N. lat.
The chief part of the island is a peninsula, divided by a river into two parts,
called the eastern and western sides.
It is bounded by Pennsylvania on the N. by another part of Pennsylvania and the Atlantic ocean on the E. by Virginia on the S. and by the Appalachian mountains on the W. both about 120 miles long, and nearly as many broad. The lands next the sea are low, but they rise gradually,
till they terminate in the Appalachian mountains: they were covered with wood, till cleared by the planters;
intermixed, however, with swamps
and meadow ground, and watered with many fine rivers and springs. Their chief produce at present is tobacco, as in Virginia. And the planters live in farms, dispersed about the country, and not in towns; and they have the like convenience of shipping coming up almost to their doors, by the bay of Chesapeake, and navigable rivers: it is a proprietary government; the late Lord Baltimore was both governor and proprietor; the council appointed by him, and the house of representatives chosen by the freeholders. But while this noble family were Catholics, the crown took the government into its hands after the revolution; and it was then a royal government; but when
that family changed their religion,
they obtained the power as well as the jurisdiction. There were more Roman Catholics here than in any of the placations; their first proprietors and governors having been such; but presently the Protestants are most numerous,
and have not only excluded the Catholics
from all offices of trust and power, but have even had the influence to adopt the penal laws of England against them. Maryland is divided into two parts, by the bay of Chesapeake,

MASSACHUSETTS COLONY, the principal sub-division of New England, is bounded by New Hampshire on the N. by the Atlantic ocean on the E. and S. and by Connecticut and New-York on the W. being about 100 miles long, and 40 broad. This country produces plenty of Indian wheat, but they have little other grain; they have also plenty of mutton, beef, pork, fish and fowl; the country also produces flax and hemp, and they have manufactures of leather, linen, and woollen. They build a great many ships, having timber and other materials for that purpose, and sell them both to the English and foreigners. They have mines both of copper and iron, and manufacture some of their iron, but their manufactures of wool, iron, and leather, as well as that of hats, are discouraged by Old England. They traffic with the sugar islands, furnishing them with salt meat, fish, and other provisions, and take sugar and molasses in return, and have set up still-houses for making rum; there are also some sugar bakers amongst them. Their government has a mixture of the royal and the charter government; for though the King appoints a governor, the assembly of representatives appoint the council, or upper house, nor will they fix a salary on their governor, that they may have the greater influence on him. This is much the most powerful colony we have, both by sea and land; and they have mariners enough to man a large fleet, and can raise 20,000 landmen, in case of necessity. As to their religion, the bulk of the people are independents, but abundance of them have of late come over to the church of England.

MEATH, E. lon. 21. lat. 53. a co. of Ireland, in the pr. of Leinster, bounded by Longford on the N. by Eastmeath on the E. by King's County on the S. and by Roscommon on the W. It is one of the most fertile and populous counties in the K. It contains 62 parishes, 12 baronies, 4 boroughs, sends 10 members to parl. and gives title of Earl to the family of Nugent.

MESE, E. lon. 3. lat. 45. a town of France, in Champagne, sit. on the river Marne, 23 m. N. E. of Paris; the seat of a bishop.

MECCA, E. lon. 41. lat. 21. 45. the cap. of the ter. of Mecca, and of all Arabia Felix, in Asia, and the place of Mahomet's nativity, sit. 30 m. E. of Sidra, the port town to it, on the Red Sea, 220 m. S. E. of Medina. It is a large, well-built city, in the middle whereof stands the Kaaba, or House of God, which the Arabs believe was built by Abraham, and to which Mahomet obliged all his disciples to go in pilgrimage, once in their lives. This temple is but 15 feet long and 12 broad, and 30 feet high; and there is a large court about it encompassed with a piazza, in which the pilgrims perform their devotions, seldom entering the Kaaba, which is too small to admit many.

MECHLIN, or Malines, a pr. of the Austrian Netherlands, surrounded by that of Brabant, being about 10 miles long, and 5 broad, and called the Lordship of Mechlin.

MECHLIN, or Malines City, E. lon. 4. 30. lat. 51. 2. capital of the Lordship of Mechlin, sit. on the rivers Dyle and Demer, which unite before they reach this city, which stands 12 m. N. E. of Brussels, 11 m. N. W. of Louvain, and 13 m. S. E. of Antwerp. It is a large well-built city, consisting of several islands, made by the branches of the Dyle, or artificial canals, over which they have built a great many bridges. It is a fortified town, but of no great strength; the see of an archbishop, who is Primate of the Netherlands; and the concurrence of this little state is necessary to the making laws and raising money, tho' subject to the house of Austria. The principal manufacture at present, is that of lace, the finest in Europe. They are remarkable also in the Low Countries for their old strong beer, with which they serve the other provinces.

MEXCACAN, a pr. of Mexico, in N. America, bounded by Panuco on the N. by Mexico Proper on the E. by the Pacific ocean on the S. and by Guadalupe, or New Galicia, on the W. In this pr. are mines of silver and copper, and it produces the cacao or chocolate-nut; and being well watered with springs and rivers, affords both corn and pasture, being one of the pleasantest and most fruitful provinces of Mexico. Valladolid is the capital town.

MECKLENBURG DUCHY, a pr. of Germany, in the circle of Lower Saxony, is bounded by the Baltic sea on the N. by Pomerania on the E. by Brandenburg on the S. and by the duchies of Holstein, Lunenburg, and Lauenburg, on the W. being about 100 miles long, and 60 broad. It is a fruitful country, but unhealthy, and excessive cold in winter; it is however, well watered with lakes and rivers, and extremely well situated on the Baltic for a foreign trade, some of the principal Hans-towns lying in this pr. viz. Rostock, Wismar, Swerin, &c. This duchy is subject to two branches of the house of Mecklenburg, distinguished by addition of Schwerin and Strelitz; from the latter of which the present Queen of Great Britain is descended. That part of the duchy called Mecklenburg Proper, belongs to the branch of Schwerin.

MACON, a great river, which rises in the N. of Further India, in Asia, runs S. through the kingdoms of Laos and Cambodia, falling into the Indian ocean, in 10 degrees N. lat. opposite to the island of Pulo Candor.

MEDLIN, W. lon. 4. 52. lat. 53. 46. a town of Spain, in the pr. of Estramadura, sit. on the river Guadiana, 20 m. E. of Merida.

MEDLAPADIA, a small province of Sweden, bounded by Jemterland on the N. by the Bothnic gulph on the E. and Halsingia on the S. and W.

MEDANBLICK, E. lon. 5. lat. 53. 50. a port town of the Netherlands, sit. on the Zuyder sea, in the pr. of Holland, 10 m. N. of Hoorn.

MEDRA, the N. E. part of the Modern Persia, in which the pr. of Aderbeizan, and some of Gilan and Lyrac Agem, were comprehended; the cap. city whereof was Ecbatana, which some take to be the present Tauris, and others Casbin. It is bounded by Hircania and Parthia on the E. by Proper Persia and Susiana on the S. by Assyria and Armenia on the W. and by the Caspian sea on the N.

MEDINA-CELLI, W. lon. 2. 9. lat. 41. 15. a town of Spain, in the pr. of Old Castile, and ter. of Sigüenza, sit. 23. m. N. E. of Sigüenza.

MEDINA-DEL-CAMPO, W. lon. 4. 25. lat. 41. 22. a town of Spain, in the pr. of Leon, 50 miles N. E. of Salamanca.

MEDINA-DEL-RIO-SECCO, W. lon. 4. 33. lat. 42. 8. a town of Spain, in the pr. of Leon, sit. 52 m. S. E. of Leon.

MEDINA-BIDONIA, W. lon. 5. 15. lat. 36. 25. a town of Spain, in the pr. of Andalusia, 25 m. E. of Cadiz.

MEDINA-TALNABI, E. lon. 40. lat. 25. a city of Arabia Deserta, sit.

220 miles N. W. of Mecca, called the City of the Prophet. For here Mahomet was received and protected by the inhabitants, when he was driven from Mecca, and here he was first invested with regal power, and here is a magnificent mosque or temple, in which is Mahomet's tomb, surrounded by a silver gate or palliade; but the story of his coffin being hung up to the roof by a loadstone is a vulgar error. On Mahomet's flight from Mecca to this city, the Mahometan era commences, viz. 16 July, A. D. 622; but he died in 637.

MEDITERRANEAN SEA, extends from the straits of Gibraltar to the coasts of Syria and Palestine, being upwards of 2000 m. in length, but of a very unequal breadth. The W. part of it separating Europe from Africa; and the Levant or E. part of it dividing Asia from Africa, Spain, France, Italy, Turkey in Europe, and Sicily, or the Lesser Asia, bounding it on the N. and the Empire of Morocco, Algiers, Tunis, Tripoli, Barbary, and Egypt, bounding it on the S. The strait of Gibraltar, between Europe and Africa, being about 16 miles over, a strong current sits thro' it, out of the Atlan is ocean into the Mediterranean constantly, which requires a good gale of wind to stem it; but whether these waters run, or whether there be any subterraneous passage to carry them off, is uncertain; some imagine they evaporate, or are attracted by the sun, which is the reason they never rise higher at one time than another; they do not observe a tide, but in some few places of the Mediterranean, viz. at Tunis, Messina, Venice, and Negropont; and they are the most irregular in the world at Negropont; flowing at some times of the moon, 6 or 7 times in 24 hours.

MEDNICK, or Mediki, E. lon. 23. 25. lat. 56. 40. a town of Poland, in the pr. of Samogitia, sit. 40 m. E. of Memel. The see of a bishop.

Mexico, which 290 years ago was a potent and extensive Empire in America, is now a pr. of Spain, and has obtained the name of New Spain.

It is divided into Old and New Mexico.

Old Mexico, is sit. between 83 and 116 degrees of W. lon. and between 8 and 28 degrees of N. lat. bounded by New Mexico or Granada on the N. by the gulph of Mexico on the N. E. by Terra Firma on the S. E. and by the Pacific ocean on the S. W. being upwards of 2000 m. long, and from 60 to 600 broad.

It is generally a mountainous country, high hills running thro' it from the S. E. to the N. W. The highest mountains are near the coast of the Pacific ocean; many of them Vulcanos. The eastern shore is a flat level country, abounding in bogs and morasses, and overflowed in the rainy season, but is covered with thickets of bambou, cane, mangroves, and bushes, that the logwood cutters are forced to make their way through it with their hatchets. twice the mountains and the flat country, are best inhabited, and there the air is most temperate. Within the tropic of Cancer they have their annual periodical rains, and when the sun is vertical, in their coolest season, the sun being obscured by clouds, and the flat country under water; their fair weather is when the sun is in the southern sign, at the greatest distance from them.

The time of planting India corn and rice, is in May and June, when the rains begin, and they reap in October or November, when the fair season commences: the springs and rivers are very low in March and April, and the beginning of May; the country then is void neither grass or herbage, unless it is watered, but the trees are always green, and their fruit-trees blossom, and bear almost all the year round.

Their fruit-trees are the cabbage-tree, the cacao, or chocolate-nut, vanilla, plantain, glass-apple, cotton, sapodilla, mango, pear, guava, orange and lemon, &c. with a great variety of game and drugs. Their forest-trees are cedar, logwood, guaiacum, bamboo, mangrove, mahoe, white-wood, &c.

There were neither horses, goat, cattle, camels, elephants, sheep, hogs, geese, swans, or dogs, except some little dumb dogs, until the Europeans imported them; but they had lions, tigers, bears, elk-deer, moose, peacocks, warrens, beavers, opossums, armadillos, guanoes, and flying squirrels, racoons, crocodiles, manatee monkeys, parrots, macaws, pelicans, cormorants, and a variety of snakes, scorpions, and insects, among which the cochineal is the most valuable.

The present inhabitants of Mexico are, 1. native Indians, 2. Spaniards, 3. Creols, the descendants of Spaniards, 4. Mestices, 5. Negroes, and 6. Mulattoes.

Mexico is governed by a Spanish Viceroy, who acts as despotically as any Prince in Europe. It is divided into 3 audiences, where their supreme courts of judicature are held, viz. 1. The audience of Guadalajara, or New Galicia, the most northern division. 2. The audience of Mexico Proper, which is the middle division; and, 3. The audience of Guatemala, the most southern division; and each of these audiences is again subdivided into several provinces, which will be found under their respective heads. Their forces by sea or land are not formidable, and they have but few fortified towns; their best sea ports have been taken and plundered by an inconsiderable number of Buccaneers, and their territories are too extensive to be defended in every part.

The revenues of the crown are vastly great, arising from the King's fifth of gold and silver, from the excise and other duties, and customs, and from the rents and services, by which all the lands are held of the crown.

The ancient Mexicans worshipped one supreme God, the planets, and departed heroes, and, according to the Spaniards, deified men.

The present inhabitants are obliged to profess Popery, on pain of the inquisition, and the Spanish clergy are very numerous, as well as monks and nuns; but the chief dignities in church and state, are conferred on native Spaniards, and not given to the Creols, descended from them. These are hardly used by the Spaniards, and very little trusted, and would scarce oppose any European power that should invade their country.

Mexico CITY, W. lon. 102. 35. lat. 20. the metropolis of New Spain, at present, and anciently, of the Empire of Mexico, is sit. in the middle of a spacious salt water lake, and cannot be approached but by causeways of a great length; it is of a square figure, about 6 miles in circumference, and vastly populous; admired for its spacious streets and squares, the beauty of its buildings, the coolness of the situation in this hot climate, and its natural strength. It is an archbishopric, and contains 29 monasteries, 22 nunneries, and a great number of parochial churches; but the Spaniards and Crioli do not make a tenth part of the inhabitants, the other nine are either Negroes or Mulattos that have obtained their freedom, or a mixed breed of Spaniards and Indians. It has a royal audience, a tribunal of the inquisition, an university, and a printing-house, sit. 200 miles N. by E. of Acapulco, on the N. sea. This place was overflowed by an inundation in 1629, by which 40,000 persons were drowned.

MEXICO NEW, including California, is sit. between 104 and 136 degrees of W. lon. and between the tropic of Cancer and 26 degrees of N. lat. bounded by unknown lands on the N. by Florida on the E. by Old Mexico on the S. and by the Pacific ocean on the W. a temperate fruitful country, and abounds in rich silver mines, of which the chief are those of St. Barbara, the capital city, Santa Fe. California was discovered by Cortes, the great conqueror of Mexico. In the year 1578, Sir Francis Drake took possession of it, and his right was confirmed by the principal King, or chief of the whole country; but the government of Great Britain have not attempted to vindicate that right, though California is admirably sit. for trade.

MEXICO NEW, E. lon. 4. lat. 46. a town of France, in the pr. of Champagne, sit. on the river Maas, 12 m. N. W. of Sedan.

MICHEL (St.) or Mitchel, a mean borough, 7 m. E. of Truro, in Cornwall; sends two members to parl.

MIDDLEBURG, E. lon. 3. 18. lat. 51. 17. a castle of Austrian Flanders, sit. 8 m. N. E. of Bruges.

MIDDLEBURG, E. lon. 3. 43. lat. 51. 30. the cap. town of the island of Wacherin, and of the pr. of Zeland, in the United Provinces, sit. 26 miles N. E. of Bruges. It is a large well-built place, and, having a communication with the sea, by a navigable canal, has a great foreign trade.

MIDDLEHAM, or Midham, a market town of the N. riding of Yorkshire, sit. 22 m. N. of London, and 10 m. S. of Richmond.

MIDDLESEX, a co. of England, in which London, the metropolis, stands, is bounded by Hertfordshire, on the N. by the river Lea, which divides it from Essex, on the E. by the river Thames, which separates it from Surry on the N. and by the brook Coln, which divides it from Bucks, on the W. being 24 miles long, and 14 broad, one of the least counties, but the richest, and pays more taxes than any 10 counties in England, if we comprehend London. It contains 126 parishes, besides those of London, 4 market towns, and sends 3 members to parl. viz. 2 for the county, 1 for Westminster, and 4 for London.

MIDDLEWICH, a market town of Cheshire, sit. 9 m. N. of Nantwich, and 18 m. E. of Chester.

MIDWATER, a borough town of Suffolk, sit. 43 m. W. by S. of London, and 11 N. by E. of Chelmsford, sends two members to parl.

MIDWORTH, a borough in the co. of Cork, in Ireland; sends two members to parl. and gives title of Viscount to the family of Broderick.

MINIS, a French settlement on the coast of Malabar, in the East Indies, taken by the English on the 20th of Feb. 1761; but restored by the peace of 1763.

MILAN DUCHY, in Italy, bounded by Switzerland on the N. by the r. of Venice and the duchies of Mantua and Parma on the E. by the Appennine mountains, which separate it from Genoa, on the S. and by Piedmont on the W. being about 120 miles in length, and 80 in breadth, well watered with lakes and rivers, a temperate air, and the whole country one fruitful plain, almost, abounding with corn, wine, and delicious fruits, intermixed with great numbers of fine towns and villages, and subject to the house of Austria.

in Italy, sit. on the river Olona and Lombro, 250 miles N. W. of Rome, and 100 m. N. E. of Turin. The city is of a round form, 10 m. in circumference, containing about 30,000 inhabitants; it is surrounded by a wall, and other modern fortifications,
which would require an army to defend them; but the citadel is one of the strongest fortresses in Italy, and the town contains a great many spacious streets and squares, elegantly built.
Their manufactures are chiefly silk,
brocade, and other rich stuffs; their works of steel and crystal are much admired, and their artificers such excellent artists, that they seem to have monopolized the trade of that part of Italy, and are accordingly esteemed a rich and thriving people. The Mi-lanese are sub. to the house of Austria,
who have a Vicar-general, or Viceroy, in this city; and the revenues of this duchy are computed to amount to 300,000 l. per annum. The civil government is lodged in a senate, but subject to the control of the Viceroy;
and the several cities and districts of Milan are governed by their own magistrates, subject to the like control.
Milan is the see of an archbishop.
Some territories of the Milanese were ceded by the Empress to the King of Sardinia, for his services in the late wars. See Moll's maps. The city of Milan, is said to contain 230 churches, 96 parishes, 90 religious houses, 100 fraternities, 120 schools,
and 10 hospitals. The cathedral,
which is a most magnificent structure, dedicated to the Virgin Mary,
and St. Thakley, contains, amongst innumerable ornaments, 600 statues.
The college of St. Ambrose, has 16 professors, who read lectures every day; its superb gallery is adorned with a collection of rich paintings,
and the library contains upwards of 45,000 printed books, besides a prodigious number of valuable manuscripts.

London, near the road to Exeter; sends
two members to parli.

MILDENHALL, a market town of Suffolk, sit. near Barton Mills, 70
m. from London, and in the road to Lynn.

MILFORD HAVEN, the most secure and commodious harbour in Great-Britain, sit on a bay of the Irish sea,
in the S. W. part of Pembroke shire,
in Wales, at the N. entrance of Bristol
channel; for the fortification whereof 10,000 l. was voted by parliament
in 1757.

MILLAND, or Milhand, E. lon. 2.

little E. of Sittingbourn.

MINCIO, or Menao, a river of Italy, rising in the lake de la Garda,
runs S. thro' the duchy of Mantua, discharging itself into the Po, at Borgo-forte.

MINDANAO, the largest of the Philippine islands, in the Pacific ocean, except Luconia, is sit. between 117 and 124 degrees of E. lon.
and between 5 and 10 degrees of N.
lat. having the rest of the Philippine islands on the N. and Celebes, or Macassar, and the Molucca islands on the
S. This island is not subject to the Spaniards, as the rest of the Philippines

hippines are, but most of the people are Mahometans; and subject to a Mahometan Prince, called the Sultan of Mindanao. Those who inhabit the middle of the country are Pagans, and under another government, being called Hilanons. And there is a third nation on the N. W. part of the island, called Sologues. There are good harbours in the island, and the natives build ships and trade to Berneo and Manilla with the Dutch, exchanging their gold, rice, sago, beeswax, and tobacco, for calicoes, muslin, and China filks. The sago is the pith of a tree, which the natives eat instead of bread; they have also plantains, cocones, and other tropical fruits; and Dampier assures us, he saw nutmegs and cloves grow in the island. This island is 180 miles in length, and 120 in breadth.

MINDELHEIM, E. lon. 10. 40. lat. 48. 5. a town of Germany, cap. of the pr. of Mindelheim, in the cir. of Suabia; sit. 33 m. S. E. of Ulm.

MINDELHEIM PRINCIPATE, is sit. in Suabia, between the bishopric of Augsbourg and the abbacy of Kempten, being 20 m. long, and 16 broad, and was conferred on the Duke of Marlborough by the Emperor, for delivering the Empire from their enemies, the French and Bavarians, by the victory obtained over them at Hochstet, anno 1704.

MINDEN, E. lon. 9. 5. lat. 52. 22. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Westphalia; capital of the duchy of Minden, sit. 37 m. W. of Hanover, which, with the ter. about it, is sub. to the King of Prussia, who has secularized the bishopric. Near this place, the French were totally defeated by the allied army, under Prince Ferdinand, on the 1st of August, 1759.

MINDOZA, one of the Philippine islands in Asia, lies S. W. of the island of Luconia, from which it is separated by a narrow channel, and is subject to Spain. It is 50 m. in circumference.

MINEHEAD, a borough and port town of Somersetshire; sit. on Bristol channel, 24 miles W. of Bridgewater; sends two members to parl.

MINORELLA. See MANGRELLA.

MINHO, a great river of Spain, rises in the N. E. of the pr. of Galicia, and running S. W. through that pr. passes by Lugo, Ortense, and Tay; then dividing Galicia from Portugal, falls into the Atlantic ocean at Caminha, to the northward of Viana.

MINIATO, E. lon. 11. 40. lat. 43. 50. an episcopal town of Italy, in the duchy of Tuscany, sit. on the river Arno, 15 m. W. of Florence.

MINORCA, an island in the Mediterranean sea, sit. almost 100 miles S. of the coast of Catalonia, in Spain, and about 20 m. E. of the island of Majorca, and is 30 m. long, and 12 broad; only valuable for its secure and capacious harbour of Port Mahon. The only town of any consequence is that of Ciudadella, at the W. end of the island, and Port Mahon at the E. It was reduced by the English during their war with Spain, anno 1708; and confirmed to them by the peace of Utrecht, anno 1713. In April 1756, the island was invaded by 13,000 French under the Duke de Richelieu, who became masters of the whole by the surrender of St. Philip's castle, the 29th of June following, after a siege of two months; but the whole island was restored to England by the peace of 1763. See PORT-MAON, or MAHON.

MISSISSIPPI, a country of North America, bounded by Canada on the N, the British plantations on the E. the gulph of Mexico on the S. and the pr. of New Mexico on the W.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER, which gives the name to the country, rises in Canada, and runs to the southward, till it falls into the gulph of Mexico. It is a large navigable river, said to run above 3000 miles, to which, as well as the adjacent country, the French laid claim, and possessed themselves of part of the country ever since the year 1712, giving the river the name of St. Louis, and the country the name of Louisiana, and made great efforts towards planting it, as it is a most fruitful and desirable country of vast extent; though the E. part of it, in reality, belonged to Great Britain, and the W. to the Spaniards, who have planted part of these countries long since, and are every day extending their settlements into it. The French raised the expectations of their people so high, in relation to the immense riches that were to be acquired by planting it, in the year 1719, that every one was ready to throw his money into the stocks, which the company sold at upwards of 2000 per cent. but the government seized most of the money, which ruined as many families in France, as the South Sea bubble did in England, in 1729. In the late war, the French were not only driven from Canada, and its dependencies, but obliged to relinquish all that part of Louisiana lying on the E. side of the Mississippi; by which, the British colonies were preserved, secured, and extended. The particulars of our late American conquest, ended by the peace of 1763, may be seen in the royal proclamation, published Oct. 7, 1763.

METTAN, E. lon. 24. 20. lat. 56. 40. the cap. town of the D. of Courland, in the Ks. of Poland; sub. to the D. of Courland.

MOBILE, a tolerable, but unhealthy town in West Florida; sub. to Great Britain.

Moco, or Mokha, E. lon. 44. 25. lat. 14. a great city and port town of Arabia Felix, in Asia; sit. near the straits of Babelmandel, at the entrance of the Red sea, 500 m. S. of Mecca. It is the capital of a kingdom, and tolerably well built. Hither merchants resort from all parts of the world, to purchase their coffee; which is of late planted in several other countries.

Mocomago, an English factory on the island of Sumatra, 100 miles N. W. of Bencoolen.

MODBURY, a market town of Devon, sit. 36 m. S. W. of Exeter.

MODENA DUCHY, sit. in Italy, being bounded by Mantua on the N. by Romania on the E. by Tuscany and Lucca on the S. and by Parma and the ter. of Genoa on the W. It is 50 miles long, and 40 broad and is a pleasant fruitful country, abounding in silk, corn, wine, rich pastures, and delicious fruits; and subject to the D. of Modena. His revenues are computed to amount to 100,000 l. per ann. James Duke of York, afterwards King of England, married the Princess Mary, sister of the Duke of Modena, anno 1673; to which match the misfortunes of that monarch are frequently ascribed. The Chevalier was her son.

MODENA CITY, E. lon. 11. 20. lat. 44. 34. the capital of the D. of Modena, sit. 40 m. S. of Mantua, and 22 N.W. of Bologna, sit. in a pleasant fruitful country, but the city is not well built; the Duke resides here in a most magnificent palace, and lives in as great state, 'tis said, as any monarch in Europe. The cathedral, several of the churches, and some of the monasteries are very handsome structures.

MODICA, E. lon. 15. 59. lat. 37. a town of Sicily, in the pr. of Noto, 25 m. S. of Syracuse.

MODON, E. lon. 21. 45. lat. 37. a port town of European Turkey, in the pr. of Morea, sit. 20 m. W. of Coron; see of a bishop.

MOLDAVIA, a pr. of European Turkey, bounded by the river Niefter, which divides it from Poland, on the N. E. by Bassarabia on the E. by the Danube, which sep rates it from Bulgaria, on the S. and by Walachia, and Transilvania on the W. being 270 m. long, and 210 broad; sit. in a good air and fruitful soil, producing corn, wine, rich pastures, a good breed of horses, oxen and sheep, plenty of venison, game, fish and fowl, and all European fruits; and is well watered with the rivers Danube, Pruth, Niefter, &c. the capital city Jassy. The inhabitants are Christians of the Greek church, and have been tributary to the Turk ever since the year 1574. The Turk appoints them a Prince, who is a native of the country, but has no regard to any particular line or family; but very often chuses some worthless creature, whom he makes his tool, to squeeze and oppress the people. Besides the yearly tribute, which is very large, he obliges them to raise a great body of troops, at their own expence, whenever he takes the field.

MOLE, a river near Dorking, in Surry, whch obtained its name from running under ground, which part of it does, from near the foot of Boxhill, 'till it almost reaches Leatherhead.

They produce neither corn, rice, or cattle, except goats. They have, however, sugar bread, oranges, lemons, and some other fruits; but what is peculiar to these islands, and in return for which, they are furnished with the produce of every other country, is their cloves, which grow upon trees resembling bay-trees, the fruit growing in clusters, like bunches of grapes. The Portuguese and Spaniards were the first Europeans that found the way to these islands; the Portuguese by the E. and the Spaniards by the W. The English and Dutch afterwards traded with the natives; but the Dutch, in the reign of King James I. drove every other nation from thence, erected fortresses upon them, and eradicated the cloves there, planting them in the adjacent island of Amboyna, where they have made themselves too strong to be attacked by any power with success.

MOLWITZ, E. lon. 16. 45. lat. 50. 26. a town of Silesia, in the K. of Bohemia, and pr. of Grotzka, sit. 40 m. S. of Bräun, where the Prussians obtained a victory over the Austrians, March 30, 1741.

W. of Avignon, near the bay of Maguelon and the Mediterranean sea, and 180 m. S. by W. of Paris. It is computed there are between 15 and 2000 inhabitants, among whom are a great number of physicians, and apothecaries, who get a good livelihood by their numerous composition, viz. Hungary-water, oil of Spike, Capillary syrups, essences, perfumes, &c. which they distribute all over Europe. The delightfulness of the situation, and healthful air, that will, it is said, restore broken constitutions, occasions foreigners to resort thither from all parts of Europe. People do not only practice physic here, but study it, here being an university designed chiefly for students in that science. It has also a citadel, a royal academy of sciences, and a mint. The see of a bishop. The churches and convents were very numerous before the civil wars, in 1562, but they were then demolished, except 3 churches, the principal of which is the church of Notre Dame, remarkable for its high steeple, steeple, and chapel of the Virgin Mary.

MOROCCO, a very considerable Empire of Africa, in the western part of Barbary. Morocco Proper, is a part of the ancient Mauritania Tingitana, and is bounded on the N. by the kingdom of Fes, on the S. and E. by Biledulgerid, and on the W. by the ocean. It is about 250 miles in length along the sea coast, and 140 in breadth. The land is mountainous and barren, nor is it populous. The Empire of Morocco comprehends the kingdoms of Morocco and Fes; with the provinces of Tafilet, Sus, Gafela, and Dara, which, though they form no part of the States of Barbary, are said to be united to the Empire, and the Emperor claims the sovereignty of them. When the whole Empire is considered, it extends upwards of 600 miles in length, from N. to S. and near 700 m. from E. to W. It is bounded on the N. by the Mediterranean sea; on the S. by Tafilet, and on the E. by Agelmessa, and the kingdom of Algiers. The air of this country is mild and pure, particularly to the N. of Mount Atlas, excepting in the months of July and August. The soil, though dry and sandy in many places, is very fertile in others, and produces good fruit and pasture, and appears only to want better cultivation, to render it both profitable and delightful; but this will never be the case while the oppression and barbarity of the constitution continues. The fruits of this country are dates, figs, almonds, lemons, oranges, pomegranates, and many others, with plenty of roots and herbs. They have a great plenty of excellent hemp and flax on their plains, but very little timber. The inhabitants are robust, of a tawney complexion, and are active and ingenious; but they are unpolished, superstitious, fraudulent and disposed to cruelty. The Arabs dwell in adours and moveable villages, composed of a great number of tents, and should be distinguished from the Berberies, who are the ancient inhabitants of the country, and who reside in the towns and cities. The Mahometan religion was anciently professed, but numbers now follow the tenets of one Hamed, a modern sectarist, who was a great opposer of the ancient doctrine of the Califs. And those that do profess the Mahometan religion, seem to have adopted the worst parts of it, and appear to have retained only as much of it, as authorises them to be vicious and villainous.

l'ious. Besides these, there are some Christian merchants, and a great number of Christian slaves on the coast, and a multitude of Jews. The misery and poverty of the lower class of people, in Morocco, who are not immediately in the Emperor's service, exceeds all description; but those who inhabit the inland parts of the country live better, and are an hospitable, inoffensive people, which, in a great measure, is owing to their remoteness from the seat of government. Neither the elephant nor the rhinoceros is to be found in Morocco, nor indeed in any of the States of Barbary, but they have lions, tygers, leopards, serpents, bears, porcupines, foxes, and all kinds of reptiles, in the desert parts. The ancient breed of their horses, once equal to those of Arabia, is now said to be decayed, yet some very fine ones have been lately imported into England. They have also camels, dromedaries, asses, mules, and other mungrel beasts of burden. They have cows, which are small, and barren of milk; but their sheep and goats are large, though the fleeces of the former are very indifferent. Their feathered tribe is numerous, and their seas and bays abound with the finest and most delicious fish of every kind.

The inhabitants carry on a considerable trade, by caravans, to Mecca, Medina, and some of the inland parts of Africa, from whence they bring back vast numbers of negroes, who serve in the army, and are slaves in their houses and fields. But almost all their commercial affairs are conducted by the Jews and Christians settled among them; and the latter have established silk and linen works, which supply the higher ranks of their own subjects. They have no ships that, properly speaking, are employed in commerce, so that the French and English carry on the greatest part of their trade. Their exports are too numerous to be specified, but the principal are, Morocco leather, indigo, cochineal, ostrich-feathers, silk, copper, hides, raisons, almonds, honey, wax, gum-arabic, and sandrac; in return for which, the Europeans furnish them with timber, artillery of all kinds, gunpowder, and whatever they may want in their public or private capacities. The duties paid by the English in the ports of Morocco, are but half those paid by other Europeans. This country produces wine, but only the Jews plant the vine; tho' the great people find means to evade the sobriety prescribed by the Mahometan law, and make free with wines and spirits, and, indeed, with whatever else can contribute to the pleasures of life.

The ancient African language is still spoken in some of the inland countries, and, indeed, by some of the inhabitants of the city of Morocco. In the sea port towns, and maritime countries, a bastard kind of Arabic is spoken, and the seafaring people are no strangers to that medley of living and dead languages, called Lingua Franca, since it is known in all the ports of the Mediterranean.

Morocco is not now so populous as it was formerly. The Emperors are successors of those sovereigns of that country who were called Xeriffs, and whose powers resembled that of the Califat. They have been, in general, a set of bloody tyrants, tho' they have had among them some able princes, particularly Muley Moluc, who defeated and killed Don Sebastian, King of Portugal. They have lived in almost a continued state of warfare with the Kings of Spain and other Christian Princes ever since; nor does the crown of Great Britain sometimes disdain to purchase their favour with presents, as was done in the year 1769. In Morocco, government cannot be said to exist. The Emperors having, for some ages, been parties, judges, and even executioners with their own hands, in all criminal matters, nor is their brutality more incredible than the submission with which their subjects bear beat it. In the absence of the Emperor, every military officer has the power of life and death in his hand; and it is seldom they mind the form of a judicial proceeding. Some vestiges, however, of the Caliphate government still continue, for in places where no military officer resides, the Mufti, or High Priest, is the fountain of all justice, and under him the Cadis, or Civil Officers, who act as justices of the peace. The crown is said to be hereditary, but, if there be more sons than one, they usually fight for the dominion, on the decease of their father, till there is but one left. This nation is disturbed by civil wars on every change, but the Prince who is in favour with the soldiers, generally succeeds. The Emperor is not immediately subject to the Porte, yet he acknowledges the Grand Signior to be his superior, and he pays him a distant allegiance as the chief representative of Mahomet. When the Grand Signior is at war with a Christian power, he requires the assistance of the Emperor, who obeys him only as he thinks proper.

The Emperor has an army under his command of an hundred thousand men, but they are poorly armed, and know but little of the art of war; so that the strength his forces consists of the cavalry mounted by the negro slaves, purchased in return for the commodities of the country. These wretches are brought young to Morocco, know no state but servitude, and no other master but the Emperor, and hence prove the firmest support of his tyranny and power; for both in his domestic and foreign wars, these have principally been relied on. — About the year 1727, all the naval force of Morocco consisted only of 3 small ships, which lay at Sallee, and, being well manned, sometimes brought in prizes.

It is almost impossible we can form any just idea of the Emperor's revenues, because none of his subjects can be said to possess any property. From the manner of his living, his attendants, and appearance, we may conclude he does not abound in riches. The ransom of Christian slaves are his perquisites; and he sometimes shares in the vessels of other states, which entitles him to part of their prizes. He claims a tenth of the goods of his Mahometan subjects, and six crowns a year from every Jew merchant; but he often breaks through these rules, and seizes what he pleases. He has likewise considerable profits in the Negroland, and other caravans, especially the slave trade towards the S. but it is generally thought that the whole of his ordinary annual revenue, in money, does not exceed 165,000*l*.

MOROCCO CITY, capital of the kingdom of Morocco, W. lon. 9. lat. 31. sit. 250 miles S. by W. of Fez. Both the city and fortifications are now in a declining state, the seat of the Empire being removed from thence to Mequinez, a city of Fez. It is seated in a very large plain, on the river Niffis. The number of houses formerly reckoned to be 200,000, all with flat roofs; but they are now said to be diminished to 25,000, and it is much to be doubted if ever it was that elegant city, which some old writers make it.

MOSAMBIQUE, a pr. of Zanguebar, in Africa, is bounded by the pr. of Quiloa on the N. by the Indian ocean, which divides it from Madagascar, on the E. by the river Zambeze on the S. and Mongemugi on the W. In the year 1497, Vaquez de Oama landed on this coast, on which the Portuguese took occasion to settle there, and possessed themselves of Mosambique, the capital of the country, which they have kept ever since.

MOSAMBIQUE CITY, E. lon. 40. 22. S. lat. 15. the capital of the pr. of Mosambique, sit. on an island at the mouth of the river Mosambique, which forms a commodious harbour, defended by a citadel, and the town itself is regularly fortified. This island is 30 miles round, and very populous; the Portuguese have built several churches and monasteries in it, and the friars assure us they make great numbers of profelytes in this part of Africa. Here also they barter their merchandize with the natives, whom they have taught to clothe themselves, for gold, ivory, and slaves; and here their shipping take in refreshment, in their voyages to the East Indies, and the country producing great herds of cattle, they salt up beef here, to send to their other plantations, or sell it to European shipping.

MOSBACH, or Morsach, E. lon. 9. lat. 49. 25. a town of Germany, in the pal. of the Rhine, sit. on the river Neckar, 16 miles E. of Heidelberg.

MOSCOW EMPIRE. See Russia.

Moscow, a pr. of Moscow, or Russia, is bounded by the pr. of Tweer on the N. by Little, or Nisse Novogorod, on the E. by Rezan on the S. and by Smolensko on the W.

Moscow CITY, E. lon. 39. 1. lat. 55. 45. the cap. of the pr. of Moscow, sit. on the river Moskwa, 460 m. S. E. of Petersburg, 300 E. of Stockholm, 1000 N. E. of Constantinople, 900 N. E. of Vienna, and 1400 N. E. of London. Peter the Great cut a canal from this city to Petersburg.

MOSCOWA RIVER, rises in the W. of the pr. of Moscow, and running E. through that pr. passes by the city of Moscow, and falls into the river Oeka at Kolumna.

MOSCUDABAD, E. lon. 88. 22. lat. 24. 5. a large town in the East Indies, the usual residence of the Subah of Bengal.

MOSELLE, a river of Germany, which, rising in the mountains of Vauge, in Lorrain, runs N. through that duchy, passing by Toul, Ments, and Thionville, to Treves, or Triers, and then running N. E. through the Electrate of Triers, falls into the Rhine at Coblenz.

MOSKITO COUNTRY, is sit. in North America, between 83 and 88 degrees of W. lon. and between 12 and 15 degrees of N. lat. having the North sea on the N. and E. Nicaragua on the S. and Honduras on the W. and indeed the Spaniards esteem it a part of the pr. of Honduras, though they have no colonies in the Moskito country. When the Spaniards first invaded this part of Mexico, they massacred the greatest part of the natives, which gave those that escaped into the inaccessible part of the country, an insuperable aversion to them; and they have always appeared ready to join any Europeans that come upon their coast against the Spaniards, and particularly the English, who frequently come hither, and the Muskito-men being excellent marksmen, the English employ them in striking the manatee-fish, and many of the Muskito Indians come to Jamaica, and sail with the English in their voyages.

MOSRUEN, or Mosburg, E. lon. 12. lat. 48. 33. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Bavaria, sit. at the confluence

MUNICH, or Munchen, E. lon. 11. 40. lat. 48. capital of the Electorate and Duchy of Bavaria, sit. on the river Isar, 60 m. S. W. of Ratibon, 200 m. W. of Vienna, and 60 m. N. of Inspruc; a large elegant city, with spacious streets, and canals running thro' many of them; and the beauty and magnificence of the Elector's palace is said to exceed any thing of the kind in Germany; and from this palace the D. of Marlborough brought away many fine pictures with him to England, after the battle of Hochstet. This city is surrounded with a wall and fortifications, but so little to be depended on, that it has ever surrendered to those who were masters of the field: it has been pundered by the Austrians several times.

MUNSTER, the most southern pr. of Ireland, containing the counties of Tipperary, Waterford, Limerick, Cork, and Kerry. It has one archbishopric, 5 bishoprics, 740 parishes, 63 baronies, and 26 boroughs. It is 135 m. in length, and 120 in breadth. Waterford is the capital.

MUNSTER BISHOPRIC, sit. in the cir. of Westphalia, in Germany, on both sides the river Ems, bounded by the counties of Bentheim and Steinfurt on the N. by the bishoprics of Osnabrug and Paderborn on the E. by the co. of Mark on the S. and by the duchies of Cleve and Zutphen on the W. being 120 m. long, and 80 broad, sub. to its bishop, the present Elector of Cologn. It is but a barren country, producing scarce corn enough for the subsistence of the inhabitants, but they have the best bacon in Europe.

MUNSTER CITY, E. lon. 7. 10. lat. 52. cap. of the bishopric of Munster, and of the cir. of Westphalia, sit. on the river Aa, in the most fruitful plain in the country, 70 m. N. by E. of Cologn, and 35 miles S. W. of Osnabrug. The town is well built of free-stone; here that treaty was concluded, anno 1648, which put an end to the civil wars of Germany, on account of religion, after a war of 30 years continuance, and settled the pretensions of the German Princes, and several other Princes and States of Europe, in relation to the limits of their respective territories; particularly the Spaniards acknowledged the Dutch to be a free, independent State, at this treaty; which, from this city, was sometimes called the treaty of Munster, and at others, the treaty of Westphalia, from the pr. where it was concluded. In the year 1533, John of Leyden, a taylor by profession, drove away the bishop and magistrates, and made himself master of this city; but it was taken from him in 1536, after a siege of 14 months, and he was tortured to death.

MUNSTER, E. lon. 7. 5. lat. 50. 15. a town of Germany, in the lan. of Alsatia, sit. 30 miles S. W. of Strasburg; sub. to France.

NAMUR, E. lon. 4. 57. lat. 50. 30. a strong town of the Austrian Netherlands, capital of the pr. of Namur, sit. at the confluence of the Sambre and the Maese, 35 m. S. E. of Brussels. It was besieged by King William in 1695, who took it in the sight of an army of 100,000 French, though the garrison was defended by 60,000 men. It is the see of a bishop.

B b NAMUR

NAMUR COUNTY, is bounded by Brabant on the N. on the E. and S. by Liege, by the pr. of Hainault on the W. being 30 miles long, and 20 broad. It is a fruitful country, and has good mines of lead and iron, and wood enough for their iron works.

NANCY, E. lon. 6. 17. lat. 48. 41. the cap. city of Lorraine, in Germany, sit. 150 m. E. of Paris, 60 m. N. W. of Strasbourg, and 70 m. S. of Triers; sub. to France.

NANRIO ISLAND, E. lon. 26. 20. lat. 35. 15. one of the islands in the Archipelago, N. of Santorini, 16 miles round, inhabited by Greeks, and sub. to the Turks. Here are still the ruins of a temple dedicated to Apollo.

NANGATAQUI, E. lon. 130. lat. 32. 30. a city on the W. side of the island of Bongo, or Sikoko, one of the Japan islands, sit. 60 m. S. of the island of Nippon or Japan Proper, near which, the Dutch factors in the island of Disnja reside, but are never suffered to come into the city, unless when their ships arrive, and then they are obliged to deliver up their guns, helms, sails, and rigging, as pledges of their good behaviour.

NANKING, a pr. of China, in Asia, bounded by the pr. of Xantum and Honan on the N. and W. by the sea or bay of Nanking on the E. and by the pr. of Huquang and Chekiam on the S.

NANKING, E. lon. 119. 25. lat. 32. 46. capital of the pr. of Nanking, and formerly of the empire of China, is sit. 600 m. S. E. of Peking, on the river Kiam. It is upwards of 17 m. in circumference, and very populous, as well as rich; all the produce and manufactures of the Empire, particularly silk, being seen here in the greatest perfection. The porcelain tower of 7 stories, 200 feet high, is esteemed one of the finest pieces of architecture now in being, if we regard the materials or workmanship. This place has lost its ancient splendor, many of the magnificent buildings being now in ruins, and near a third part of the city desolate.

NANIAMUND, a co. of Virginia in North America, S. of Isle of Wight county, through which the river of Nanfamund runs.

NANTS, W. lon. 1. 31. lat. 47. 15. a city of France, in the pr. of Britany, sit. on the river Loir, 30 m. E. of the ocean, and 37 m. S. W. of Angers, a large populous city, and has as extensive a foreign trade as any city in the K. though no ships of burden can come so high up the river, but are obliged to unload at Pambœuf, near the mouth of the river. Here Henry IV. promulgated the famous edict, from hence called the edict of Nants, in 1598, which was afterwards revoked in 1685.

NANTUCKET, W. lon. 70. lat. 41. an island on the coast of New England, in North America, sit. 80 m. S. of Boston, the people whereof apply themselves chiefly to the whale-fishery on the coast, and have lately fished for whales in Greenland, being as dextrous at it as the Dutch, though not so numerous; and, who might supply their mother-country with the produce of their fishery, and, by this means, supplant the Dutch, if they were properly encouraged.

NANTWICH, or Nantwich, a market town of Cheshire, famous for its salt-works, sit. 20 m. S. W. of Chester.

NAPLES kingdom, one of the Sicilies, is in the S. E. part of Italy, being sit. between 74 and 79 degrees of E. lon. and between 38 and 43 degrees of N. lat. bounded by the gulph of Venetie on the N. NAPLES CITY, E. lon. 15. 12. lat. 41. 6. the cap. of the kingdom of Naples, in Italy, sit. 140 m. S. E. of Rome. It is 15 m. in circumference within the walls, and as much more if the suburbs are included, and contains about 300,000 inhabitants. It stands on an eminence, rising gradually from the sea to a moderate height, on a fine bay of the sea of 30 m. diameter; and the islands which lie before it form a secure and commodious harbour. On the E. is a large plain, on the further side whereof is mount Vesuvius, and on the W. a large hill, on which stands the castle of S. Elmo, and a Carthusian monastery, from whence we are entertained with the finest prospect in the world: Here it is seldom cold in winter, and in summer the cold breezes from the mountains and the sea make the hottest part of it very tolerable; nor is the sea subject to storms; and they have so bold a shore, that large ships may lie close to the quays. Corn, wine, and oil, are excellent in their kind, and exceeding plentiful; and the air is pure, serene, and healthful. The buildings are magnificent and elegant, and inhabited by people of distinction: nor can there be, in all respects, a more desirable situation, did not the eruptions of Vesuvius, and earthquakes, sometimes disturb their quiet, as well as the frequent revolutions observed in this kingdom; for it being so desirable a country, the neighbouring powers are perpetually contending for it; Germany, France, and Spain, have alternately had the dominion of it; it seldom has the same sovereign 40 years. The dignified clergy and nobility of this kingdom are very numerous; there are, 'tis said, 25 archbishops, 125 bishops, 300 princes, dukes, marquises, and earls. The clergy possess one third of the kingdom; the crown, the nobility, and gentry the rest; the peasants have scarce any thing they can call their own; they are subjects and vassals to their respective lords, manure their lands, plant their vineyards and oliveyards, and are allowed only a subsistence sufficient to enable them to perform their daily drudgery, and receive justice in their lords courts, in cases that are not capital; inasmuch, that every lord or gentleman, who is proprietor of the soil, is sovereign of the people who live upon his estate. Though they abound in silk, that manufacture is not great; they send most of it abroad unwrought; and all the merchandise and produce of this rich soil is carried abroad in foreign shipping, they having few ships of their own, or indeed merchants, the proprietors of the lands, selling the produce of their respective estates to foreigners. The natives being many of them of Spanish extraction, they follow the Spanish modes, and clothe themselves in black, which makes the silk manufacture the less. They have a numerous militia, the nobility and gentry holding their lands by military tenures; but these are little depended on, and seldom called out, the King usually maintaining 15,000 regular troops in time of peace, and can raise twice that number in time of war: they had no men of war lately, but are beginning to build some; and they have a fleet of armed galleys. The revenues of the crown are computed to amount to one million sterling per annum, which arise from a composition with the nobility and gentry for certain sums, in lieu of their personal services, from a duty on houses, and almost a general excise. It was a tax on fruits, which the common people live upon, that occasioned the insurrection under Massinello; and it seems fruit has been exempt from taxes almost ever since; those who are most oppressed by taxes are the Genoese, and other foreigners, whose estates lie in this country, and these are pretty numerous. The crown claims a power of taxing the nobility and gentry, and raising what forces the court thinks necessary ; but 'tis dangerous, carrying these prerogatives too high, as long as the King has so powerful a competitor as the Queen of Hungary. The clergy are not taxed here, but grant a free gift, which is proportionable to the taxes on the laity at least. It is the see of an archbishop.

NAPOLI DE MALVASIA, E. lon. 23. 30. lat. 36. 54. a port town of the Morea, sit. at the entrance of the gulph of Napoli de Romania, and 40 m. S. E. of that city. Noted anciently for the temple of Æsculapias.

NAPOLI DE ROMANIA, E. lon. 22. 20. lat. 37. 30. a port town of European Turkey, in the pr. of the Morea, sit. at the bottom of a bay of the same name in the Archipelago, 60 m. S.W. of Setines or Athens, one of the strongest towns in the Morea, and said to contain 60,000 Grecian inhabitants, besides Turks. The see of an archbishop.

NARAGANSET, the ancient name of a country in New England in America, E. of the river Connecticut, now the co. of New London.

NARBARTH, a town of Pembroke-shire, in S. Wales, sit. 12 m. N. E. of Pembroke.

NARBONNE, E. lon. 2. 40. lat. 43. 18. a city of France, in the pr. of Languedoc, lying in a valley surrounded with mountains, 6 miles W. of the Mediterranean, with which it has a communication by a canal, as it has also with the royal canal, being 60 miles W. of Montpellier. 'Tis a large city, and in the time of the Romans was the capital of this part of Gaul, called from hence Gallia Narbonensis; and here are still the ruins of the capitol, a marble amphitheatre, and noble aqueducts. It is the see of an archbishop, who is president of the States of Languedoc.

NARBOROUGH ISLAND, W. lon. 204. 35. S. lat. 43. 11. an isle of S. America, in the Pacific ocean, sit. on the coast of Chili; 100 m. S. of the island of Chiloe, where Sir John Narborough refreshed his men when he was sent into the South sea, in the reign of King Charles II. to see if it was feasible to settle colonies on the coast of Chili.

NARDO, E. lon. 19. lat. 40. 33. a town of Italy, in the K. of Naples, sit. 17 m. W. of Otranto.

NARENTA, E. lon. 18. 25. lat. 42. 50. a port town of European Turkey, in the pr. of Dalmatia, sit. on a bay of the gulph of Venice, 25 m. N. of Ragusa.

NARNI, E. lon. 13. 30. lat. 42. 36. a town of Italy, in the Pope's ter. in the pr. of Umbria, sit. 45 m. N. of Rome, where there are the ruins of a marble bridge built by Augustus, one of the arches whereof was 150 feet high, and 200 broad; and also an aqueduct that brings water from a spring 15 miles.

NARRINGA, E. lon. 78. lat. 14. 15. a town of the Hither India, in the pr. of Bijnagar, or Narringa, sit. 200 m. N. W. of Fort St. George.

NARVA, E. lon. 28. 35. lat. 59. sit. on the river Narva, which divides Livonia from Russia, 100 m. S. W. of Peterburgh, a large port town of Livonia, besieged by the Russians in the year 1700, but relieved by Charles XII. King of Sweden, who gained a signal victory over the Russians with 20,000 men, tho' the Russians were 100,000 strong. But the Czar Peter the Great took Narva by storm, in 1704, and transplanted the inhabitants to Astracan; and the Russians have been in possession of Narva, and all Livonia, ever since, making it one of the stations of their fleet.

It is bounded by Zaara, or the desert, on the N. by unknown countries on the E. by Guinea on the S. and by the Atlantic ocean on the W. there being several European settlements on the branches of the river Niger, especially near its mouth. The generality of the people are black, but there are a tawny race intermixed with them; both of them of the Mahometan religion. A great many nations inhabit the banks of the river Niger, of different languages, and independent on each other. It is a fruitful country, abounding in rice, Guinea grain, and Indian corn, where it is cultivated, and does not want cattle; coco nuts, plantains, pulse, palm-trees, and tropical fruits they have in abundance. The Europeans traffic with them for slaves, gold, ivory, bees wax and drugs, particularly gum-senega, which is a profitable article.

NEGROPONT, anciently Eubœa, an island in the Egean Sea, or Archipelago, sit. N. E. of the coast of Achaia, or Livadia, from which it is separated by a narrow channel called the Euripus, or strait of Negropont. The island is 90 m. long, and from 2 to 25 broad, abounding in corn, wine, fruits, fish, flesh and fowl; but what this island has ever been remarkable for, is the variable tides, which are sometimes regular, and at others irregular, according to the age of the moon: these are regular from the three last days of the old moon, to the 8th. of the new; on the 9th day they become irregular, and continue so to the 13th inclusive, and then they flow 12, 13, or 14 times, and ebb as often, in 14 or 25 hours; but neither the regular or irregular tides rise much above a foot.

NEGROPONT, or Egripus City, E. lon. 24. 30. lat. 38. 30. capital of the island of Negropont, sit. 34 miles N. of Setines, or Athens, and 70 N. E. of Corinth, on the W. side of the island, where the strait is so narrow, that it is joined to the continent of Livadia, by a bridge. The walls of the town, in which the Turks reside, are 2 miles round; and the suburbs where the Christians inhabit, much larger. The Captain Bassa, or Admiral of the Turkish fleet, is Beglerbeg, or Viceroy of the island, and of the neighbouring continent of Greece; and a fleet of galleys generally lies in that port. This is much the largest of all the islands of the Archipelago, and with the rest; sub. to the Turks. The see of a Greek bishop.

The Dutch have a fort here, fit. at the W. end of the island, called Fort Nassau, by which they command the navigation of those seas, and defend their usurped dominion of the islands, where only mace and nutmegs grow.

NETHERLANDS, fit. between 2 and 7 degrees of E. lon. and between 50 and 51 degrees 30 min. of N. lat. bounded by the German sea on the N. by Germany on the E. by Lorrain and France on the S. and by another part of France and the British seas on the W. extending near 300 miles in length from N. to S. and 200 m. in breadth from E. to W. The ancient name of this country was Gallim Belgica, at least it was a very considerable part of it, but since denominated the Netherlands or Low Countries, from their low situation, near the mouths of several great rivers; the maritime parts whereof were a morass, 'till drained by the industry of the numerous people that retired higher from the persecutions and oppression of the Spaniards, and other bigotted powers. These provinces are in number 17, and formerly enjoyed great privileges, being governed by as many Princes, under the various titles of Dukes, Counts, or Lords, but became, at length, united by marriages, compact, or conquest, in the house of Burgundy, anno 1430; and came under the dominion of Spain, about the year 1506, by a marriage between the heiress of the house of Burgundy and Spain, and were by Charles V. Emperor of Germany, and King of Spain, constituted part of the circle of Burgundy. Philip II. King of Spain, succeeding his father the Emperor Charles V. and persecuting and oppressing his subjects in the Low Countries, either upon account of their opposing his encroachments on their liberties, or embracing the doctrines of the reformation, occasioned a civil war in these countries; and, at length, 7 of the 17 provinces, threw off the Spanish yoke, and formed an alliance at Utrecht, anno 1579, which obtained the name of the Union of Utrecht; and these provinces have ever since been called the United Provinces. The other 10 provinces were reduced to the obedience of Spain, and were subject to that crown, till conquered by the allies, and resigned to the house of Austria by the treaty of Utrecht, anno 1713; under whose dominion most of the 10 still remain, and are called the Austrian Netherlands. The Dutch possess the N. part of Brabant and Flanders, which are therefore called Dutch Brabant, and Dutch Flanders. As to the produce, constitution, and government of the Netherlands, these are treated of under the heads of the AUSTRIAN NETHERLANDS, and UNITED NETHERLANDS.

The French reduced almost all the Austrian Netherlands in the late war; except Limburg and Luxemburg.

NETHERLANDS, AUSTRIAN and FRENCH, consist of 10 provinces, viz. 1. Brabant, 2. Antwerp, 3. Mechlin, of Malines, 4. Limburg, 5. Luxemburg, 6. Namur, 7. Hainault, 8. The Cambresis, 9. Artois, and 10. Flanders.

The soil is generally fruitful, producing good corn and pasture, and their gravelly light lands are now as valuable as the rich heavy ground, by the improvements they have made with sown grass, turnips, &c. but chiefly by their plantations of flax and hemp; their manufactures of linen and lace are brought to great perfection, viz. their lawns, cambricks, Mechlin and Brussels lace; their tapestry is very rich, and they have still a good woollen manufacture, particularly camblets and light stuffs.

Flanders is a flat country, scarce a hill or a stone to be met with in it. The richest land lies between Dunkirk and Bruges, extending 40 miles in length, abounding in wheat, barley, and as good meadow and pasture as is to be met with in Europe; but between Bruges and Ghent, and Ghent and Antwerp, is a gravelly or sandy soil, and that part of Brabant which lies between Antwerp and Holland, is equally unfit for corn, but enriched with plantations of flax, hemp, and hops.

The rest of the Austrian Netherlands consists of little hills and valleys, woods, inclosed ground, and champaign fields, not unlike England; and their numerous rivers and navigable canals give them a great advantage of the carriage of the produce of the country from one part to another costing very little.

They had the greatest woollen manufacture in the world, while Bruges was the market for English wool, and the foreign trade of Antwerp exceeded that of any port in Europe, until the Dutch built forts at the mouth of the Scheldt, and turned the current of trade to Holland. No country has more great towns, or finer fortifications. It has been the seat of war these 200 years almost, the French and Spaniards, and their allies, contending perpetually for this rich country.

The legislative authority of the respective provinces is, or ought to be, vested in the sovereign, and the states of each province, which consist, 1. Of the bishops, abbots, and dignified clergy; 2. Of the nobility and gentry; and 3. The burghers of their great towns, who meet at Brussels, but assemble in separate houses, and make laws for their respective provinces. The civil and canon law are in force here, where they do not interfere with the municipal laws of the country.

By the ancient laws of the country, no foreign forces ought to be introduced; but this is not regarded now, either by the Austrians or French, any more than some of the rest of their privileges. By the treaty of Utrecht, their barrier towns were to be garrisoned by 25,000 Dutch. The religion is moderate popery, and the Inquisition does not reign here.

NEUSCHATTEL, E. lon. 6. 35. lat. 47. 10. sit. on the N. end of the lake of Neuschattel, 20 miles N. W. of Bern. A well-built town, capital of the counties of Neuschattel and Vallengin; governed by a grand, and little council. The first consists of 40 persons, with 2 masters of the keys; and the other of 24, including the mayor, who is president. These two councils assemble every month; as the ecclesiastics do to settle the affairs of the church. They are commanders with the cant. of Bern, their only protector, and umpire of all their differences between them and their sovereigns.

NEUSCHATTEL, and Vallengin counties, are bounded by the bishopric of Basil on the N. by the lake of Neuschattel on the E. by the canton of Bern on the S. and by Franche-compte in France on the W. being about 40 miles long, and 20 broad, subject to the same princes, and form together one little state; for they are a free independent people, tho' they have a prince at their head. No laws made but by the three estates; no taxes raised, or magistrates appointed, but by the states. The whole country is of the reformed religion, except two Roman Catholic villages. Upon the death of the Dukes of Nemours, sovereigns of Neuschattel anno 1707, there were many competitors, but the states made choice of the King of Prussia to succeed her, who derives his title from the houses of Orange and Chalons, and is represented here by a Governor appointed by himself.

NEW FOREST, a part of Hampshire, sit. on the English channel, opposite to the isle of Wight, appropriated for the growth of oaks to build the royal navy, by act of parliament. It was made by William the Conqueror, who caused 36 churches, and all the houses belonging to them, to be pulled down, to prevent obstruction in hunting.

NEUFUNDLAND, an island sit. in the Atlantic ocean, in North America, between 52 and 58 degrees of W. lon. and between 47 and 52 degrees of N. lat. separated from New Britain, or Eskimaux, by the narrow strait of Belleisle on the N. bounded by the ocean on the E. and S. and by the bay of St. Laurence on the W. lying about 40 miles N. E. of Cape Breton. This island is of a triangular form, 550 m. in length, from N. to S. and 400 m. breadth at the base, from E. to W. where broadest. It is a much cooler country than England, the ground being covered with snow 5 months in winter; but it is much hotter in summer. It is a mountainous, barren country, but well supplied with wood and water, and has several commodious bays and harbours. The fishing banks on this coast are frequented by most European nations; seldom less than 5 or 600 sail of ships are loaded here with cod-fish annually, the season continuing from the spring till autumn. The French had once some settlements here, but the property of the island was yielded to the English by the treaty of Utrecht; only the French are allowed the liberty of curing their fish on the northern coast of the island; but it is so cold and uncomfortable a country, that there are not above 2 or 300 families of English remain here all the year, besides the garrisons of St. John's, Placentia, and other forts; but in the fishing season there are 10,000 people more here. There are but few native Indians on the island, but in the winter the Indians of New-Britain pass the straits of Belleisle, and come over to hunt here. The English had no clergymen among them till lately, but now the society for propagation of the gospel, send a missionary thither, who usually resides at Bonavista, but is a kind of itinerant preacher, visiting Trinity harbour, Placentia, and other settlements, as he has opportunity. There is plenty of venison, fish and fowl, in the island, but very little corn, fruit, or cattle: the inhabitants receive most of their provisions, as well as cloathing and furniture, annually from England, at the return of the shipping.

It was taken by Sir William Johnson, on the 25th of July 1759.

NIMANO, E. lon. 10. lat. 45. 5. a town of Italy, in the D. of Parma, sit. 37 m. W. of Parma.

NIOARAGUA, a pr. of Mexico, in America, is bounded by the pr. of Honduras on the N. by the N. sea on the E. by the pr. of Costarica on the S. E. and by the S. sea on the S. W. being 400 m. in length, from E. to W. and 120 m. broad from N. to S. It is one of the pleasantest and most fruitful provinces in Mexico, lying on the N. and S. seas, and well watered with lakes and rivers; so that it is much cooler than could be expected in a country that lies within 13 degrees of the equator. The chief cities in this pr. are Leon, Lila, Lejo, and Guanajuato.

NICARAGUA LAKE and RIVER, runs thro' the middle of the pr. the W. end lying within 5 leagues of the S. sea, and the river which runs from it, falls into the N. sea: but there are such terrible cataracts, or waterfalls, in the river, that it is not navigable in many places.

NICARIA, E. lon. 26. 5. lat. 37. one of the islands of the Archipelago, in Asiatic Turkey, sit. W. of Samos, one of the least and barrenest of the Grecian islands, being only 50 m. in circumference.

NICASTRO, E. lon. 16. 49. lat. 39. 15. an episcopal town of Italy, in the K. of Naples, and ter. of the Further Calabria, sit. 16 miles S. of Cassano.

NICE, a co. and pr. of Italy, in the ter. of Piedmont, bounded by the mar. of Salusse on the N. by the co. of Tende, and the ter. of Genoa on the E. by the Mediterranean on the S. and by the co. of Boglio, and Provence in France, on the W. from which it is separated by the river Var. It is a mountainous country, produces wine and oil, but little corn.

NICE CITY, E. lon. 6. 25. lat. 43. 42. cap. of the co. of Nice, sit. on the Mediterranean, at the mouth of the river Var, 80 m. S. by W. of Turin, 40 S. of Coni, and 20 N. of Antibes in France. It is a well fortified town, and said to be defended by a strong castle, but has been often taken by the French, with very little trouble; sub. to the King of Sardinia. It is the see of a bishop, and has a senate.

NICE, E. lon. 30. 5. lat. 41. a town of Asiatic Turkey, sit. in the Lesser Asia, 50 m. S. E. of Constantinople. It was anciently a large, populous, and well-built city, and is still a considerable town. Here Constantine the Great assembled the first general council, anno 325, to suppress the Arian heresy; and here the Greek Emperors resided after Constantinople was taken by the Turks.

NICOLAS St. E. lon. 6. 25. lat. 48. 36. a town of Germany, in the duchy of Lorraine, sit. 10 miles S. E. of Nancy.

NICHOLAS St. E. lon. 41. lat. 64. a port town of Russia, in the pr. of Dwina, sit. on the White sea, at the mouth of the river Dwina, 6 miles below the city of Archangel, the White sea being sometimes called the bay of St. Nicholas.

NICOBAR ISLANDS, sit. in the Indian ocean, in Asia, N. of the island of Sumatra, at the entrance of the bay of Bengal, 300 miles W. of the farther peninsula of India, between 92. and 94 degrees of E. lon. and between 7. and 10 degrees of N. lat; the largest of these islands which gives name to the rest, and lies farthest S. is 40 miles long, and 15 m. broad.

The natives are of a tawny complexion; and live in little huts, having no towns, and go almost naked. Their country is almost covered with wood, and produces no corn, but they have a fruit which they boil, and serves them instead of bread; they have also coco-nuts, plantains, and other tropical fruits, out which they live; with the fish they take, but seem to fight fish, though they have hogs and poultry enough, with which they supply the ships that touch here: and yet these people, as well as their neighbors of the Andaman islands, were reported to be cannibals, when the Europeans first visited them. The natives, in return for the provisions they furnish ships with, take iron, tobacco, and linen, and don't seem to have any commerce with the nations on the adjacent continent; nor to be of any of the sects of religion we meet with there, having no images or temples; but seem to worship the moon. Some of the Danish missionaries have lately extended their labours to these islands, where a fortress has been erected for their protection.

Nicomedia, E. lon. 30. lat. 41. 46. A town of Asiatic Turkey, in the Lesser Asia; sit. at the bottom of a bay of the sea of Propontis, 50 miles S. E. of Constantinople; once the cap. of Bithynia, and still a populous, trading town, pleasantly sit. in a fruitful country; the inhabitants consisting of Jews, Christians, and Turks, whose manufactures are chiefly silk, cotton, glass, and earthenware. It is now called Ischlmit, or Schmit, and is the see of a Greek archbishop.

Nicomedeis, E. lon. 25. lat. 43. A city of European Turkey, in the pr. of Bulgaria, sit. on the river Danube, 200 m. N. W. of Adrianople.

Nicorping, E. lon. 16. 30. lat. 58. 30. A town of Sweden, in the pr. of Södermanland, or Sudermania, sit. W. of the Baltic sea, and 50 m. S. W. of Stockholm.

Nicosia, W. lon. 4. 53. lat. 35. capital of the island of Malacca, in the Baltic sea, 48 miles S. W. of Copenhagen; sub. to Denmark.

Nicosia, E. lon. 33. 33. lat. 33. capital of the island of Cyprus, in Asiatic Turkey, sit. 100 miles W. of Tripoli, in Syria, and 160 m. S. W. of Aleppo.

Nicotera, E. lon. 18. 24. lat. 38. 35. a port town of Italy, in the K. of Naples, and ter. of the Forth of Calabria, sit. on the Tuscan sea, 30 m. N. E. of Reggio.

Nicoya, or St. Lucas, W. lon. 89. lat. 10. 15. a port town of Mexico, in N. America, in the pr. of Costa Rica, sit. on a bay of the South sea, 45 m. S. W. of Nicaragua.

Nizmen, or Bessina, a river of Poland, which rises in Lithuania, and runs W. by Novogorod, and then turning N. passes by Gredno and Kowna, where it joins the Wilia, and then running W. falls into a bay of the Baltic sea, near Memel.

Niznauis, E. lon. 8. 25. lat. 51. 40. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Westphalia, and bish. of Paderborn, sit. on the river Dieppe, 20 m. E. of Lippstadt.

Nizna, or Boristhenes, a large river which rises in the middle of Muscovy, runs W. by Smolensko, then running S. through Poland, passes by Mogiloff, or Mohilow, then enters the Russian Ukraïn, passing by Kiof and Circassia, and continuing its course S. E. separates Little Tartary from Budziac Tartary, falling into the Black sea, near Ucsakow. On that river the old Cossacks inhabit, who frequently cross the Black sea, and plunder the maritime places on the coast of Turkey.

Nizze. See NETZE.

Niztat, E. lon. 11. 16. lat. 53. 40. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Lower Saxony, and D. of Mecklenburg, 16 m. S. of Schwerin.

Niztat, E. lon. 13. 15. lat. 52. 46. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Upper Saxony, and mar. of Brandenburg, 25 m. N. E. of Berlin.

CC NISTER,

NIEZETZ, a river that rises near Lemberg in Poland, and running S. E. divides Podolia in Poland, from Moldavia in Turkey, and afterwards dividing Bessarabia from Boudziac Tartary, falls into the Black sea, near Belgorod.

NIGER, a great river of Africa, whose source is uncertain, runs from E. to W. through the middle of Negroland, discharging itself into the Atlantic ocean, by three channels, the most southerly called Rio Grande, that in the middle the Gambia, and then on the N. the river Senega. It being 300 miles between the northern and southern channels, and all the low country between them is annually overflowed, at the latter end of the summer, as Egypt is by the river Nile, much about the same time, both proceeding from the periodical rains, which fall within the tropics. But that all the three branches proceed from one river, is mere conjecture; they may be three different rivers: however, near the mouth of them the Portuguese, English and French, have several factories and settlements, where they traffic with the natives for slaves, gold, ivory, gum senega, wax, and other drugs.

NIGATTIA. See NIGROLAND, in Africa.

NILE, the great river of Egypt, in Africa, has its source in Abyssinia, or the Upper Ethiopia, in 12 degrees of N. lat. It runs generally from S. to N. thro' Abyssinia into Egypt, and then continues its course N. in one stream, till it comes below Cairo, to the Delta, where it divides; one branch discharging itself into the Mediterranean at Damietta, and the other 100 miles to the westward of it, at Rosetta. In the upper part of the stream, we have been told, there are dreadful cataracts, where the water falls in sheets from high precipices; but later travellers of credit, of our own nation, assure us there are no such cataracts, only some rocks, which indeed hinder navigation; but the water does not fall in sheets, from high hills, or precipices, as was currently reported by the ancients and moderns, till very lately. It runs, it is observed, through the hilly country of Upper Egypt, with greater rapidity than it does through Delta, or Lower Egypt, where the country is level; which is the case of many other rivers. There are great rejoicings every year when the Nile rises to a certain height, their future harvest depending on it. The just height of the inundation, according to Pliny, is 16 cubits; when it rises but to 12 or 13, a famine is expected; and when it exceeds 16, there is danger apprehended: the moderns do not agree exactly with the ancients, about the height of the inundation; but there is no great difference in their accounts. The river begins to rise usually in May, or June; and there stands a pillar on an island opposite to Old Cairo, divided into picks, a measure of about two feet, to observe how much it rises; and when it is high enough, the khais, or great canal, is cut, from whence it is conveyed into other reservoirs and cisterns, to be distributed to their fields and gardens, as they want it. As to the Delta, or Lower Egypt, that is all overflowed; there needs no art to carry it into their fields. This part of their country is always sowed with rice therefore, which grows in water. Their towns standing on little eminences, during the flood, appear like so many islands. This overflowing of the Nile, is occasioned by the periodical rains, which annually fall within the tropics, where the source of the Nile is; and that which makes the flood the greater is, that Ethiopia, or Abyssinia, where it rises, is full of high mountains, from whence the waters shoot in torrents, and swell the river beyond its usual bounds.

NIMEGUA, E. lon. 3. 50. lat. 51. 55. a town of the United Netherlands, sit. on the river Wahal, in the pr. of Dutch Guelderland, 10 miles S. of Arnheim, and 51 m. S. E. of Amster-

The air of Norway is excessive cold, especially within the polar circle, where their winter continues 8 or 9 months, and the ground all that time covered with snow. A high chain of mountains runs from S. to N. between Norway and Sweden, called the Dofrine Hills; and the rest of country is incumbered with rocks and mountains, which produce but little food. However, the country produces excellent oak and fit timber, pitch and tar; and in their hills are mines of copper and iron, and some silver. They have also a very great fishery, and dry their stock-fish upon upon the rocks, without salting them; furnishing the salt of Europe with fish salt, and these make part of the food of our seamen in their voyages. Norway had its own Kings till the year 1387, when it was united to Denmark, and in 1525 embraced the Lutheran religion; since when, its interests are the same with those of Denmark. It has a Viceroy, whose power is absolute, and his residence at Berghen. The royal annual revenue amounts to about 300,000*l*. See DENMARK.

NOVA SCOTIA. See ACADIE.

NOVA ZEMBLA, or Newland, which the Dutch call the island of Weygata, is sit. in the North, or Frozen ocean, between 50 and 60 degrees of E. lon. and between 70 degrees of N. lat. and the N. pole, separated from the pr. of Samojeda, in Russia, by a narrow strait, called the straits of Weygata. Whether it be an island, or part of some great continent, is uncertain; no ships having ever passed to the northward of it, though many attempts have been made to find out a N. E. passage to China that way. The Dutch, indeed, passed the straits of Weygata, S. of Nova Zembla, and wintered on the E. side of it, anno 1596, but did not find it practicable to sail farther for the fields of ice they met with. There are no constant inhabitants here, but the Samojeds, and Ostiaks climb over the mountains of ice in the straits, when they are frozen over, and hunt elks and rein-deer, here at the proper season.

NAMANTIA RUINE, W. lat. 1.
166. lat. 42. anciently one of the most considerable towns in Spain, sit. in the pr. of Old Castile, near the source of the Duero, 200 miles N. W. of Saragossa, and 75 m. S. E. of Burgos.

Here the Spaniards assembled their forces against the Romans, when they were opposed by them, and were suffered a victory of 30 years against them,
which, from this story, obtained the name of the Numantian war. It was described by Scipio Africanus in the year of Rome 620.

NUMANATA, a city of Germany,
in the circle of Rhenonia, capital of the ter. of Nusenburg, S. lat. 50. 10.
lat. 49. 20. sit. near the confluence
of the rivers Regnitz and Pegnitz, 55 miles N. W. of Ratisbon, and 40
m. S. of Bamberg. It is famous in circumference, defended by a wall,
a castle, and other works, but of no great strength. It is very populous, and has the best inland trade of any town in Europe; their clock-work
and manufactures in iron, steel, spy-
wood, and alabaster, are much admired, and afforded exceeding cheapness, and from hence come most of those toys we call Dutch toys. It is nothing but the genius and industry of this people, that procure them the flourishing trade and plenty they live in; for it is a barren country, and produces scarce any thing to traffic with, but what receives the greatest part of the value from their labour and
art. It is an imperial city, of independent state, the governors and magistrates elected out of the nobility,
and the Burgher-master, or chief magistrate, changed every month; the legislative authority being lodged in council, or diet, of 40000 the principal burghers. In this city are kept the medals used at the Emperor's coronation. The established religion is the Lutheran; the Calvinists are forced to go 3 miles out of town to church, and the Papists are allowed to perform divine service only in one church when the Lutherans have done with it. The antient city of Numaburg

large are about 30 miles in length, and 20 broad, in which they have a great many good towns and villages. The river of Neuenburg is divided into several districts, which are sold to the Princes of the house of Brandenburg. See Mail's map of Germany.

ORLEANS CITY, E. lon. 2. lat. 47. 55. a city of France, capital of Orleans, sit. on the river Loire, 70 miles S. of Paris, consisting of 22 parishes, and is about 4 m. in circumference. It has a very great trade, considering it is an inland town, having a communication with W. France and the ocean, by the river Loire, as well as with the provinces in the S. and by the canal of Orleans it has a communication with the rivers Seine, Paris, Rouen, and the English channel. It is a bishop's see, and university; and here French is spoken with the greatest purity. They still commemorate that heroine, Joan of Arc, who restored the French affairs after the conquest of their country by Henry V. King of England; they have her statue in complete armour on the great bridge here: her obliging the English to raise the siege of this city, being the first exploit she performed.

ORLEANS FOREST, in the neighbourhood of this city, consists of 100,000 acres, well planted with oak, elm, and other valuable timber.

ORMUS, E. lon. 56. lat. 27. 36. an island at the entrance of the gulph of Persia, in Asia, sit. opposite to Gombroon on the continent, 240 m. S. E. of Schiras, 370 m. S. E. of Ispahan. This island is 30 miles in circumference: while the Portuguese possessed it, it was the richest magazine in the world; they made it the center of trade between Europe and Asia: here the fine spices, and other merchandise of the East, were laid up, and afterwards distributed to the rest of the world; and here the Portuguese built one of the most elegant cities in Asia. But something above an hundred years ago, the Dutch dispossessed the Portuguese of most of their settlements in India; and, in the year 1622, the Persians, by the assistance of the English, expelled the Portuguese from Ormus; for which the English East-India Company were allowed great advantages in the Persian trade, and even suffered to share the revenues of the customs, on that side, with the Persians; and, till the late civil wars, received 3 or 4000 l. per annum, in lieu of them. As to the island of Ormus itself, it never produced any thing but salt, which grows in a solid crust, two inches deep upon the surface of the earth; and the hills appear, at a distance, as if they were covered with snow: nor is there a drop of fresh water on the island, but what is preserved in cisterns, in OSTEND, E. lon. 2. 48. lat. 51.

17. a city and port town of the Netherlands in Austrian Flanders, sit.
10 miles W. of Bruges. It stands in a perfect marsh, surrounded by the wide trenches, which are filled with the sea water, and is fortified
according to art, so that it may be effected one of the strongest towns
in Flanders, and is the best harbour on that coast, though the town is not large; nor was it much taken notice of 'till the year 1601, when it was defended three years against all the power of Spain, by the English and Dutch; the Spaniards losing 70,000 men before the place. The French seized it on the death of Charles II. King of Spain, anno 1700, but the confederates recovered
it after the battle of Ramillies, anno 1706. The late Emperor Charles VI. was about to establish an East-India Company here, but was forced to drop
the design by the English and Dutch,
which provoked that Prince to enter into an alliance with France. Ostend was taken by the French, 1745; but was ceded to the house of Austria
by the peace of Aix-la-Chapelle, in 1748.

PACIFIC OCEAN, or South Sea, separates Asia from America, being 30,000 m. wide, in the broadest part.
It was called Pacific from the moderate weather mariners met with on the coast of Peru, and generally between the tropics in that sea; though

it appears, it is no less stormy than other seas without the tropics, towards either pole. It was called the South Sea, because the Spaniards passed
the isthmus of Darien from N. to S.
when they first discovered it; tho' it is properly the western ocean, with regard to America.

Prince of the Empire, and sovereign
both of the city and country, are 32
m. long, and 20 broad; in which are
a variety of salt springs, and others of a remarkable nature; one, particularly, which is lost twice in 24 hours,
and returns with such violence, that
it turns several mills near its source.
But the ter. is a barren soil, more considerable for its bacon and venison
than any thing else.

PADIS. See BAPIS, in Livonia.

PADRON, W. lon. 9. lat. 42. 40.
a town of Spain, in the pr. of Galicia,
sit. 12 m. S. of Compostella.

PADSTOW, a market town of Cornwall, sit. on a bay of the Irish channel, 36 m. W. of Launceston.

PADUA, E. lon. 12. lat. 45. 24.
capital of the pr. of Paduan, sit. 22
miles W. of Venice, in a fine plain, watered by the rivers Brenta and Baciglione. The form of the city is circular, and about 7 miles in circumference; but the ground within the walls is not half built at present,
and great part of the houses are tumbling down; though it has been one of the most flourishing cities in Italy.
In the time of the Romans, the inhabitants amounted to 100,000; but at present, they are not 30,000; and the university, which might have vied with the best, is reduced to one college; however, here is still a manufacture of woollen cloth; and the adjacent country abounds with oil and wine, and the most delicious fruits. The people, however, are generally miserable, through the tyranny and oppression of the Venetian republic. There is an image of the Blessed Virgin here, which, according to their traditions, flew hither from Constantinople, when that city was taken by the Turks; and they have another of equal probability, viz. that this city was founded by Antenor, and a colony of Trojans.

PADVAN, a pr. of Italy, in the Venetian ter. bounded by the Trevisane on the N. by the Dogado, or D. of Venice on the E. by the Polcin de Rovigo on the S. and by the Vicentin on the W. being 35 miles in length, and almost as much in breadth.

PAGO, E. lon. 16. 12. lat. 45. an island in the gulph of Venice, separated from the continent of Morlachia by a narrow channel, being 40 m. long and 12 broad; sub. to Venice.

PAGODA, the name of an Indian gold coin, of the value of 9 s. on one side whereof are three Pagodas, or Indian temples, engraved. The description whereof may be seen in the Universal Traveller, 2 vols. folio, published by the author of this Gazetteer.

PAGODE, the idols worshipped in the Indian temples.

PAIS RECONQUE, is a part of Picardy, in France, which was conquered by Edward III. King of England, and remained in possession of the English above 200 years; but was lost in the reign of Queen Mary, anno 1558, being the last of the territories on the continent of France that the English were masters of. The chief towns in this re-conquered country, are Calais, Guisnes, Andres, and Oye.

PAITA, W. lon. 81. S. lat. 5. 15. a port town of Peru, in S. America, sit. 300 m. N. W. of Lima; sub. to Spain, frequently plundered by the Buccaneers. It was plundered and burnt by Commodore Anson, the governor refusing to ransom it, 1741.

PAIX, W. lon. 71. 36. lat. 200 a port town, sit. on the N. side of the island of Hispaniola, in America, built by the French, and subject to France, sit. 75 miles N. E. of Petit Guavas.

PALACIOS, W. lon. 4. 49. lat. 37. 4. a town of Spain, in the pr. of Andalusia, sit. 15 m. S. of Seville.

PALAIS St. W. lon. 1. 8. lat. 43. 21. a town of France, in the pr. of Gascony, cap. of the Lower Navarre, sit. 12 m. S. E. of Bayonne. Also the name of the capital of the island of Belleisle.

PALAMBOANG, or Palambang, E. lon. 114. S. lat. 7. 30. the capital of a kingdom at the E. end of the island of Java, in the East-Indies, in Asia, sit. on the straits of Bally, and separated from the island of Bally by a narrow strait; subject to its own Prince.

PALAMOS, E. lon. 2. 48. lat. 41. 50. a port town of Spain, in the pr. of Catalonia, sit. on the Mediterranean, 12 m. S. E. of Girona.

PALANKA, E. lon. 19. 23. lat. 48. 12. a town of Upper Hungary, sit. 37 m. N. of Buda; sub. to the house of Austria.

PALATINATE of Bavaria, or the Upper Palatinate, in the circle of Bavaria, in Germany, sometimes called the Nortgow, from its northern situation, in respect of the Elector of Bavaria's other dominions. It is bounded by Voigtland, in the circle of Upper Saxony, on the N. by Bohemia and Austria, on the E. by the river Danube, which separates it from the D. of Bavaria on the S. and by Suabia, and part of Franconia on the W. being about 70 m. long, and 40 broad; a mountainous, rocky country; but in some places their valleys produce good corn and pasture. They have also some vineyards; but their wine has a sharp, sharp, unpleasant taste. In their hills are rich mines of copper, silver, and iron; and the forges and manufactories of iron are very considerable in this country. This Palatinate was taken from the Elector Palatine, with his other territories, on his assuming the title of King of Bohemia, in opposition to the Emperor, anno 1620; and transferred to the Duke of Bavaria, with the title of Elector. And though the rest of the Elector Palatine's dominions were restored to his posterity, with an 8th Electorate, by the treaty of Westphalia; yet this part of the Palatine's territories, called the Upper Palatinate, with the Electoral dignity, was confirmed to the house of Bavaria. The chief town in the Upper Palatinate is Amberg.

PALATINATE of the Rhine, sit. in the circle of the Lower Rhine, in Germany, is bounded by the archbishoprics of Mentz and Trier on the N. by the circles of Franconia and Suabia on the E. and by Alsatia and Lorrain on the S. and W. being upwards of 100 miles long, and from 50 to 70 broad. The Rhine, the Neckar, and other fine rivers running through it, contribute to render it one of the pleasantest and most fruitful provinces of Germany; only unhappy in lying on the frontiers of France, whose Princes have burnt and plundered this country, and demolished its fine towns more than once in the late wars. It is always obliged to subsist large armies of friends, as well as enemies, whenever there happens a quarrel between France, and the German Princes. There are more Protestants than Papists in the Palatinate; but the sovereign having been a Papist for a considerable time, the Protestants here suffer great hardships. They profess their religion, however, publicly; and have most of the churches in the capital city of Heidelberg; but the lands of the church are either alienated, or in the hands of the Roman Catholics. The Elector Palatine is sovereign of the greatest part of the Palatinate; of the duchies of Newburg, Juliers, and Berg; the city of Dusseldorp, and lordship of Ravensstein. He is director of 3 circles, viz. 1. Of the Lower Rhine, jointly with the Elector of Mentz; 2. Of the Upper Rhine, as Prince of Simseren, with the bishop of Worms; and, 3. Of Westphalia, as Duke of Juliers, alternately with the King of Prussia, who is Duke of Cleves. The revenues of the Palatinate arise by a toll on all vessels going along the Rhine, Neckar, and other rivers; and from the duties on corn, wine, and other provisions; the whole estimated at 300,000 l. per annum. He keeps up a body of 6 or 7000 men, in time of peace; and, in the late wars, maintained 12,000 regular forces many years. There is a dispute subsisting between the Elector Palatine and the Elector of Hanover, about the titular office of Arch-treasurer of the Empire.

PALAZZOLO, or Plazzo, E. lon. 15. lat. 37. 41. a town of Sicily, in the Val. de Noto, sit. 80 miles S. W. of Messina.

PALAZZOLO, E. lon. 10. 12. lat. 45. 30. a town of Italy, in the ter. of Venice, and pr. of Brescia, sit. on the river Oglio, 30 miles N. E. of Milan.

PLACENTIA, or Placentia, W. lon. 3. 7. lat. 42. 12. a town of Spain, in the pr. of Leon, sit. on the river Carion, 60 m. S. E. of Leon.

PALIAMO, E. lon. 33. 40. lat. 38. 20. capital of the island of Sicily, sit. on the N. coast of that island, on a bay of the Mediterranean, which forms a commodious harbour, 110 miles W. of Messina. It is a well-built city, surrounded with a wall, and other fortifications; but of no great strength, as appears by the Germans abandoning it on the invasion of the Spaniards, anno 1718. It stands in a pleasant fruitful country; and is the residence of the Viceroy; but the trade of this city, though very considerable, is not equal to that of Messina.

Medina. It was the seat of the ancient Kings. The last King was crowned here in the month of July, 1735.

PALESTINE, a part of Asiatic Turkey, is sit. between 36 and 38 degrees of E. lon. and between 31 and 34 degrees of N. lat. bounded by mount Libanus, which divides it from Syria on the N. by mount Hermon, which separates it from Arabia Deserta, on the E. by the mountains of Seir, and the deserts of Arabia Petraea on the S. and by the Mediterranean sea on the W. so that it seems to have been extremely well secured against foreign invasions. It was called Palestine, from the Philistines, who inhabited the sea-coasts. It was called also Judæa, from Judæ; and the Holy Land, from our Saviour's residence and sufferings in it; and it is called Canaan, and the Promised Land, in the Scriptures. It is 250 m. in length, and upwards, and 75 in breadth; and, in the time of Solomon, it seems to have extended from the Mediterranean sea to the river Euphrates. It is generally a fruitful country, producing plenty of corn, wine, and oil, where it is cultivated; and would be able to supply its neighbours with corn and wine, as it did formerly, if the present inhabitants were as industrious. The country about Jerusalem is the most mountainous and rocky; but these mountains feed great herds of cattle, abound in milk and honey, and produce excellent wine and olive oil, where they are cultivated; as the valleys between the mountains do good crops of corn.

PALESTRINA, E. lon. 13. 30. lat. 42. a town of Italy, in the Pope's ter. and Campania of Rome, sit. 25 m. E. of Rome.

PALICATA, or Pelicote, E. lon. 81. 33. lat. 74. a port town of the Hither India, in Asia, sit. on the coast of Coromandel, 70 m. N. of fort St. George. Here the Dutch have a factory.

PALINBURG, E. lon. 105. 15. S. lat. 3. S. a town on the island of Sumatra, in the East-Indies, in Asia, sit. 120 m. N. E. of Bencoolen; sub. to the Dutch.

PALMA, W. lon. 9. lat. 38. 30. a town of Portugal, in the pr. of Alentejo, sit. on the river Cadouan, 24 miles E. of St. Ubes.

PALMA, or Palmanova, E. lon. 13. 30. lat. 46. 12. a town of Italy, in the ter. of Venice, and pr. of Friuli, sit. 8 m. N. of Aquileia. It is a very important place for the defence of the Venetians, and was built for that purpose in 1593.

PALMA, W. lon. 74. lat. 4. 30. a town of Terra Firma, in South America, in the pr. of Granada, sit. 50 miles N. W. of St. Fe de Bigota; sub. to Spain.

PALMA ISLE, W. lon. 29. lat. 29. one of the Canary Islands, in the Atlantic ocean, sit. 60 miles N. W. of Teneriff, and 200 m. W. of the continent of Africa, producing the best palm sack, or canary; subject to Spain. It is about 75 miles in circumference, and was conquered by the Spaniards in 1460.

PALMAS CAPE, W. lon. 8. lat. 4. 30. a promontory on the ivory coast of Guinea in Africa.

PALMYRA, E. lon. 39. lat. 33. formerly a magnificent city in Asiatic Turkey, in the pr. of Syria, supposed to have been the place of which Zenobia was Queen, sit. 200 miles S. E. of Aleppo.

PALOS, W. lon. 6. 15. lat. 37. 8. a port town of Spain, in the pr. of Andalusia, sit. on the bay of Cadiz, at the mouth of Rio Tinto, 50 miles S. W. of Seville. This is the place from whence Christopher Columbus set sail in 1492, to discover the new world.

PALOS CAPE, W. lon. 40 min. lat. 37. 40. a promontory of Spain, in the pr. of Marcia, sit. 25 miles E. of Carthagea.

PAMIERI, E. lon. 1. 36. lat. 43. 8. a town of France, in the pr. of Languedoc, sit. on the river Auriege, 37 m. S. of Toulouse.

PAMPELUNA, W. lon. 1. 30. lat. 43. a town of Spain, cap. of the pr. of Navarre, sit. 30 m. S. of St. Sebastian's, and 167 N. E. of Madrid; the see of a bishop, and a university.

PAMPELUNA, W. lon. 69. lat. 7. a town of Terra Firma, in S. America, sit. 200 miles S. of Maracaibo; sub. to Spain.

PAMPHYLIA, the ancient name of a pr. of the Lesser Asia, sit. on the Mediterranean, between the provinces of Lycia and Cilicia; now a part of Caramania, and subject to the Turks.

PANAMA, W. lon. 81. lat. 9. the capital town of the pr. of Darien, or Terra Firma Proper, in South America. It stands upon a capacious bay of the Pacific ocean, and is surrounded by a stone wall, and other fortifications; and contains about 6000 houses. Ships unload at the island of Perica, 3 miles from this town, the water being too shallow to admit of large vessels to come nearer. It is the see of a bishop, who is Primate of Terra Firma, and the seat of the governor of the pr. and of the courts of justice; and hither the treasures of gold and silver, and other rich merchandize of Peru, are brought and lodged in magazines, till they are transported to Europe: and here the merchandize of Europe, sent to America by the galleons, is lodged, till it is exported to the several cities of Peru, to which it is assigned. Old Panama stood about 4 miles from the present town, which was taken and plundered by Sir Henry Morgan and accidentally burnt down while he was in possession of it. The new town, built by the Spaniards, is in a more advantageous situation, and fortified better, to prevent the like attempts.

PANARIA, E. lon. 15. lat. 39. one of the Lipari islands, sit. 8 miles N. of the island of Lipari, and 30 N. of the main island of Sicily; sub. to the King of the Two Sicilies.

PANARO, a river of Italy, which rising in the Appenine hills, on the confines of Tuscany, runs N. into the Modenese, and afterwards divides Modena from Romania; and then turning E. runs by Ferrara through the Ferrarese, falling into the gulph of Venice, at Valona; and is called the Po di Valona.

PANAY, E. lon. 119. lat. 11. capital of the isle of Panay, one of the Philippine islands, in Asia, sit. between the islands of Paragoa and Negro. The island is upwards of 250 miles in circumference; subject to Spain.

PANSWICK, a market town of Gloucestershire, sit. 12 miles N. W. of Cirencester, and 54 W. by N. of London.

PANUO, W. lon. 101. lat. 23. a town of Mexico, in North America, capital of the pr. of Panuco, sit. on the gulph of Mexico, at the mouth of a river of the same name, 200 m. N. of the city of Mexico; subject to Spain.

PAPA, E. lon. 18. lat. 47. 20. a town of Lower Hungary, sit. 15 miles S. of Raab; subject to the house of Austria.

PAPENHEIM, E. lon. 11. lat. 48. 55. a town of Germany, in the circle of Franconia, capital of the co. of Papenheim, sit. on the river Altmul, 32 m. S. of Nuremberg; subject to its own Count, who is hereditary Marshal of the Empire.

PAPHLAGONIA, an ancient pr. of the Lesser Asia, sit. on the Euxine sea, N. of Galatia, now part of the pr. of Amasia, in Turkey.

PAPHOS, once an elegant city in the island of Cyprus, in Asia; now the little town of Bassa, at the W. end of the island, is all that remains of it; sub. to the Turks.

PAPOUL St. E. lon. 2. lat. 43. 20. a town of France, in the pr. of Languedoc, guedoc, sit. 35 m. S. E. of Toulouse; see of a bishop.

PAPOUSTERRA, or New Guinea, a large continent, a little S. of the equator, in the Pacific ocean, sit. in 130 degrees of E. lon. E. of the Spice islands; but how far it extends farther to the eastward or southward, is uncertain. It seems to be a barren inhospitable country, with but few inhabitants.

PARAGUAY, one of the Philippine islands, in Asia, sit. a little N. of Borneo, near 300 miles long; sub. to one of the Princes of Borneo. The Spaniards have a fort here.

PARAGUA, or La Plata, a pr. of South America, is bounded by the country of the Amazons on the N. by Brasil on the E. by Patagonia on the S. and by Peru and Chili on the W. lying between 12 and 37 degrees of S. lat. and between 50 and 75 degrees of W. lon. being 1500 miles in length from N. to S. and almost as much in breadth. These countries produce rice and Indian corn, and have now vast herds of cattle; and the Spaniards, to whom they are subject, have introduced European corn and fruits, as well as cattle. In that part of the country, W. of the great river Paragua, are vast plains, extending several hundred miles, with very little wood upon them, and scarce a hill to be seen; but on the E. of the river Paragua, which is divided from Brasil by a chain of mountains, there is a variety of hills and valleys, woods and campaign; and this being the property of the Jesuits, is very well cultivated by the natives, who are their profelytes and subjects. The country is called Paragua, from the river that runs through it from N. to S. and La Plata, from the river which rises in Peru, and running S. W. through it, joins its waters with the Paragua, near Buenos Ayres; after which, the united stream is called La Plata, and falls into the Atlantic ocean, between the Spanish territories of La Plata, and the Portuguese territories of Brasil.

The Spaniards bring part of the treasures of Peru from thence to Buenos Ayres, down the river La Plata; and at Buenos Ayres put them on board of ships for Spain, with vast quantities of skins, and other merchandize of those countries.

PARAIBA, or Paria, is the most northern pr. of Brasil, in South America, sit. on the S. side of the mouth of the river Amazon; subject to Portugal.

PARANA, a pr. of Paragua, in South America, sit. between the river Paragua and Brasil; subject to Spain.

PARDE, a palace of the King of Spain's, with a fine park and gardens, about 6 m. N. W. of Madrid.

PARENZO, or PIRENEO, E. lon. 14. lat. 45. 30. a port town of Istria, in the ter. of Venice, sit. on a bay of the gulph of Venice, 25 miles S. of Cabo de Istria.

PARIA, a lake in Peru, in South America, in the pr. of Los Charcas, sit. in 67 degrees of W. lon. and 22 degrees of S. lat. 100 miles N. W. of La Plata; sub. to Spain.

PARIA, or New Andalusia, a country of the Terra Firma, in S. America, having the N. sea, or Atlantic ocean on the N. the country of Guiana, from which it is separated by the river Oronoque, on the E. and by Venezuela on the W. The N. part of this country is usually called Caribiana; sub. to Spain.

PARIS, E. lon. 2. 25. lat. 48. 50. the metropolis of the kingdom of France, and of the principality or government of the isle of France, 225 miles S. E. of London, 625 m. N. E. of Madrid, 625 m. N. W. of Vienna, 2309 m. N. W. of Constantinople, and 700 m. N. W. of Rome. Paris is usually divided into 3 parts, 1. The town, which is the largest, sit. on the N. side of the river Seine; 2d, The city, much the least, but the most ancient, consisting of three little islands in the middle of the Seine; 3d, The university, which lies on the S. side of the river. That part of the

the town which stands on the N. side of the river, and called the town, lies on a perfect level, and was formerly a bog; and that part called the city lies low; and that part called the university, on the S. side of the river, has several little hills in it. The whole town, according to the French writers, is of a circular form, six leagues in circumference, and the diameter three; consequently must stand upon more ground than London; but those who have viewed both are of another opinion: certain it is, London is more populous. The largest calculator will not make the inhabitants of Paris amount to much more than 700,000, and there are, at least, 200,000 more in London. The houses of Paris are built of white hewn stone, 5 or 6 stories high: and as every nobleman almost has a large hotel or palace in it with courts and gardens, it must be admitted, that these excel every thing of that kind in London. As for the Louvre, and the rest of the royal palaces in Paris, where their kings used to reside, these are old decayed buildings, that do not answer a traveller's expectations at present. It is an archbishop's see, and Notre Dame is the metropolitan church. It has an university, in which, it is said, there were 100 colleges, though there are but 54 at present that bear that name; and of these there are but ten where exercises are performed. It is the most ancient university in Europe, having been founded by Charlemagne in 790. The Sorbonne is for divinity, and is one of the finest colleges in Europe, from which the whole university is frequently called the Sorbonne. It is now very much upon the decline; other colleges and academies being erected of late years by royal authority. The civil jurisdiction, and all the other privileges almost which the Sorbonne had formerly, are taken from it. The Academy of Sciences is of much the same nature as that of the Royal Society of London. Besides which, there is an academy for reading and improving the French language; others for the improvement of painting, sculpture, and architecture; others for the exercise and improvement of all mechanic arts and manufactures, tapestry, mosaic work, wrought plate, works of iron, steel, copper, brass, embroidery, &c. The chief manufactures of this city are those of gold and silver stuffs, wrought silks, velvet, gold and silver lace, ribbons, tapestry, linen, and glass. There are, according to a late French writer, 30,000 houses in Paris, many of which are 7 stories high, and a family in almost every story, 52 parishes, and 40 churches, besides 20 chapter and collegiate churches, and also 80 churches and chapels not parochial, 134 monasteries, of which 56 are inhabited by friars, and 78 by nuns, 979 streets, and 1200 coaches. There are also in this city, 26 hospitals, 12 prisons, 50 squares, 56 public fountains, 30 quays, 12 markets, and 30 bridges, but none of importance but the Pont-Neuf, and the Pont Royal. In the day, the public safety is protected by a Corps-de-garde, and, at night, by an horse and foot patrolle. Paris contains more works of public munificence than utility. Its palaces are more showy, and some of its streets, squares, hospitals, and churches, more superbly decorated than those of London; but Paris, notwithstanding its boasted police, is greatly inferior to London in many of the conveniences of life, and the solid enjoyments of society.

PARK ABBEY, near Louvain, in the Austrian Netherlands, an excellent situation for a camp, and therefore frequently possessed by the armies in the late wars.

PARMA DUCHY, in Italy, bounded by the river Po, which separates it from the Cremonese, on the N. by the duchy of Modena on the S. E. by the ter. of Genoa on the S. W. and by the Pavese and Bobbio on the W. being 60 miles long, and 30 broad. It is a fruitful

fruitful soil, and abounds in cattle, and rich pastures, corn, wine, rice, oil, and excellent fruits: and here they meet with plenty of truffles, a root in much esteem with those that love good eating; and here are some mines of copper and silver. This duchy was assigned to the house of Austria (after the death of the late Duke of Parma without issue) by a treaty between the late Emperor Charles VI. and France, anno 1736, and the house of Austria took possession of it accordingly; against which the Pope protested, claiming it as a fief of the holy see. By the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, signed in 1748, it was settled upon the Infant Don Philip of Spain, and he is now Duke of Parma, Placentia, and Guastalla.

PARMA CITY, E. lon. 11. lat. 44. 50. capital of the duchy of Parma, in Italy, 45 miles N. W. of Bologna, 60 N. E. of Genoa, and 65 S. E. of Milan. It is pleasantly sit. on the river Parma: the form circular, and about 3 m. in circumference, defended by a citadel, and other modern works, and esteemed a strong town. Here is an university and an academy of wits, as there is in most Italian cities; and it is the see of a bishop. The court of Parma, in the reign of the late Dukes of the house of Farnese, was one of the most elegant in Europe. The Q. dowager of Spain is a daughter of Parma, whose eldest son, Don Carlos the present K. of Spain, was to have succeeded to this duchy, and that of Tuscany, by virtue of a treaty between the powers of Europe: but the Queen of Spain and her son were content to relinquish their interest in those duchies, in consideration of Don Carlos's being confirmed in the dominion of Naples and Sicily by the house of Austria, anno 1736; but by the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, the duchies of Parma, Placentia and Guastalla, were conferred on Philip Duke of Parma, second son of the dowager Queen of Spain, and brother to Don Carlos then King of the Two Sicilies, anno 1748. Corregio, the celebrated painter, was a native of this city, and the fine paintings in the dome, and church of St. John, were painted by him.

PARNASSUS, a mountain of the ancient Greece, now European Turkey, sit. on the W. part of Achaia, now Livadia, N. of the gulph of Lepanto, whose high tops appear in two points at Delphos, the present Castro, and occasioned its being called Biceps Parnassus. Below the cleft rises a spring, supposed to be the ancient Fons Castalis, where the Pythian prophetess, and the poets who pretended to inspiration, used to bathe and drink the waters. It is the highest mountain in Greece, and from the top there is a prospect of as far as Corinth.

PARNAU, or Parnay, E. lon. 24. 27. lat. 58. 26. a port town of Livonia, sit. on the bay of Livonia in the Baltic sea, 80 m. E. of Riga.

PAROS, E. lon. 25. 36. lat. 36. 56. one of the smallest of the islands of the Cyclades, or Archipelago, in the midway almost between the Morea and the Lesser Asia, famous for its marble, but more famous for its excellent statuaries, Phidias and Praxiteles, who seemed to give life to the statues they wrought; and some of them became the objects of divine worship. The Arundelia were brought from hence. This island was dedicated to Bacchus, on account of the excellent wine it produced. Paros is the name of the capital town, which is the see of a bishop.

PARTENAY, W. lon. 20 min. lat. 46. 40. a town of France, in the pr. of Orleans, and ter. of Poitou, sit. 30 m. W. of Poitiers.

PARTENKIRK, E. lon. 12. lat. 47. 30. a town of Germany, in the circle of Bavaria, sit. 40 miles S. W. of Munich.

PARTHIA, a country of Asia, formerly so called, sit. almost in the middle of the modern Persia.

PAS, E. lon. 2. 30. lat. 50. 15. a town of the French Netherlands, in the pr. of Artois, sit. 12 miles S. W. of Arras.

St. Sebastian's, a station of the Spanish men of war; and where the French burnt several in the last war between France and Spain.

PASSAU, E. lon. 13. 30. lat. 48.
30. a celebrated town of Germany,
in the cir. of Bavaria, capital of the bishopric of Passau, sit. at the confluence of the three rivers, Danube, Inn, and Ilts, 62 miles S. by E. of Ratisbon, and 15 m. N. W. of Lints.
It is naturally strong, surrounded on all sides by rocks or rivers; but it has been taken and retaken several times in the wars between the houses of Austria and Bavaria, or rather has surrendered without staying to be besieged; from whence we may conclude, that the fortifications are not very strong, or the bishop, who is sovereign of it, chuses to submit,
rather than his people should suffer
in their fortunes, and have their houses beat about their ears; but this supposition is rather too favourable to the character of an ecclesiastic. The ter. belonging to it, lies chiefly on the N. side of the Danube, between the pal. of Bavaria, and the Upper Austria. Here a treaty was concluded between the Emperor and the Protestant Princes and States of the Empire, anno 1552, whereby the Lutherans were established in the free exercise of their religion.

PASTO, W. lon. 74. 15. lat. 1.

PATAGONIA, the most southern part of South America, is sometimes extended from the mouth of Rio di la Plata, in 36 degrees of S. lat. to cape Horn, in 55. 30. and sometimes the Spaniards are pleased to comprehend

all Patagonia in the government of Chili; but the properest limits of it on the N. are a line drawn from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean, in 45 degrees of S. lat. for beyond this line, neither the Spaniards, or any other European nations have any settlements; but it remains in the possession of the Patagöniens, or southern Indians; a very unpolished people, of whose religion, government, or customs, we know little.
The other boundaries of this country are the Atlantic ocean on the E. the Southern ocean on the S. and the Pacific ocean on the W. Cape Horn being the utmost southern limits, and ending in a point. The people of this country are of a tawny, or olive colour, of a middle stature, and usually painted with red earth; their faces discoloured with black streaks and white spots; their cloathing the skins of seals, otters, or other animals, sewed together, making a piece 5 feet square, which they wrap about them when they sit still, but throw off when they are in action, fishing, hunting, &c. On their heads the men have caps of skins, adorned with feathers, and on their feet have pieces of skins instead of shoes. The women have no covering on their heads but their hair, are clothed like the men, but adorn themselves with rings and bracelets about their arms and necks;
they feed on fish and flesh; but there are neither giants or cannibals among them, as the first adventurers on this coast gave out. It is generally a bar-ren country, at least it appears such,
not being cultivated by the natives,
yielding no corn, and very little fruit.
The Spaniards built forts, and sent some colonies to the straits of Ma-gellan, at the first discovery of them;
but most of their people perished
there; and no European nation has thought fit since to send any colonies thither. Some late voyagers have amused the public with extraordinary accounts of this country and its inhabitants, but they have never been properly authenticated.

PEANITA, a river which rises in the E. part of the cir. of Franconia, and running S. E. by Muenzburg, joins its waters with the Regnitz, a little below that city.

PEGU, E. lon. 106. 55. lat. 17.
10. a town of the Further Peninsula
of India, in Asia, cap. of the kingdom of Pegu, and sit. on a river of the same name, 600 m. N. W. of Siam.
This was once a very considerable place, and above 20 miles in circumference; but was ruined by the inhabitants of Burma, whose King is a powerful monarch, so that not one twentieth part of it is now inhabited.

PEGU MASON, is sit. on the
S. E. side of the bay of Bengal, in the East-India, in Asia, bounded by the kingdom of Ava on the N. by the mountains, which separate it from Laos on the E. by the kingdom of Siam; and the bay of Bengal on the

S. and by another part of the bay of Bengal on the W. This country, like others between the tropics, is flooded
when the sun is vertical, but the mud
and slime, which the waters leave
when they retire, render the low lands fruitful as the Nile does, those of Egypt; as to the higher grounds,
they are parched up soon after the rains are over; and if they sow wheat on them, as they sometimes do, they are forced to water their fields by little channels, which convey the water to them, from their cisterns and reservoirs. But they sow much more rice than wheat,
which is more suitable to the flooded soil. They have not much of the European fruits, unless figs, oranges,
lemons, citrons, and pomegranates;
but they have bananas, goyars, durions, mangoes, tamarinds, annanas, or pine-apples, cotton-nuts, and other tropical fruits; they have also pepper and sugar-canes, and great variety of melons, cucumbers, roots, and other garden-stuff, which is their principal food. Their hills are covered with wood, and they have a great deal of good timber; but their lumber, a kind of hallow cane, which grows to the bigness of near a foot diameter, is of the greatest use; this they bend
and form while it is young, making it fit for whatever they design it, and particularly to hang their palanquins upon; these are couches on which they lie when they travel, carried upon mens shoulders. They have few horses, or sheep, but plow with oxen and bul-
locks, and carry burdens upon them,
as well as camels; nor does any place
abound more in elephants than this,
and the adjacent countries; they compute the strength of their armies by the number and size of their elephants. The English from Fort St.
George, traffic pretty much with this country; and, besides furs and skins, import from thence rubies,
sapphires, and other precious stones.
The houses here are built frequently on pillars by the river side, and in the time of the rains they have no communication with one another but by boats in the flat country. According to late accounts, the King of Ava, is now master of Pegu. The government is arbitrary, yet, it is said, he seldom abuses his power. There is one thing that seems peculiar to the people on the E. side of the bay of Bengal, they are so far from resenting a foreigner's being free with their women, that they will offer their daughters to them for temporary wives, while they remain in the country. They are of a copper colour, though the women are whiter than the men. Their priests are called Talapoins, and they worship idols; yet they inculcate charity as the highest virtue; are strict observers of morality, and hold that religion to be best, which teaches men to do most good.

PEKIN, E. lon. 116. 41. lat. 40. the metropolis of the empire of China, and of the province of Pekin, sit. about 80 miles S. of the wall which separates China from Tartary, and 200 m. W. of the Cang-sea, a bay of the Pacific ocean. The city is about 20 miles in circumference, and contains 2,000,000 of people, which is more than double the number there is in London. The chief streets are 120 feet broad, and 3 miles long. In the shops before their houses their silks and China-ware are exposed to sale, from one end to the other, and make a very beautiful appearance. The walls of this city are so high, that they cover the town, and broad enough for several people to ride abreast; and are strengthened by square towers, at about a bow-shot distance. The gates are of marble, and have a large fortress built before each of them. The Emperor's palace, with the gardens, are in the middle of the city, being a miles long, and one broad, inclosed with a wall. The town stands on a level plain, no hills in it, only two artificial mounts in the Emperor's palace. They have no coaches, but are carried on horse-back, or in chairs, from one part of the town to another. They have no chimneys in their houses, but use stoves, or charcoal, in cold weather, nor have they any beds, but sleep on mattresses. Pekin is divided into two parts, viz. the new city, in which is the Emperor's palace, and inhabited by Tartars ever since the conquest of China, and the old city, inhabited by the Chinese.

The produce of Pennsylvania is grain,
and cattle of all kinds, timber and pot stee, wax, skins, and furs; and they export to the sugar islands salted
beef, pork, and fish, horses and pipestaves; taking in return, sugar, rum,
and molasses; from England they import cloathing and furniture for their houses and hard ware, tools and implements. The first planters were chiefly quakers; but there are now churches and congregations of the established church, at Pennsylvania.

and several other places, whither the society for propagation of the gospel send their missionaries. These peaceable people have never had a quarrel with the native Indians since they settled there; neither have they had any occasion for quarrels; for when they have a mind to extend their plantation westward, they purchase several hundred thousand acres of them for a very small sum. Philadelphia is the most beautiful of any town in America, built after a plan of the famous Penn, the founder and legislator of this colony. Philadelphia is 100 miles from the sea, between two navigable rivers, the Delaware on the N. and the Schuylkill on the S. It is supposed to contain 20,000 inhabitants.

PERNAMBUCO, a pr. of Brazil, in South America, bounded by the pr. of Tamera on the N. by the Atlantic ocean on the E. by the pr. of Sergippa on the S. and by the country of the Tapuyers on the W. being 300 miles long, and 150 broad; sub. to Portugal.

PERNES, E. lon. 2. 31. lat. 50. 35. a town of the French Netherlands, in the pr. of Artois, sit. 15 miles N. W. of Arras, and 15 S. E. of St. Omer's.

PERONNE, E. lon. 3. 2. lat. 50. a town of France, in the pr. of Picardy, sit. on the river Somme, 23 m. N. E. of Amiens.

PEROUA, E. lon. 7. 20. lat. 44. 50. a town of Italy, in the pr. of Piedmont, cap. of one of the valleys of the Vaudois, sit. 12 miles S. W. of Turin. These Vaudois were called Waldenses, from Peter Vaud or Walde, a merchant of Lyons, who in the year 1160 began to expose the superstition of the church of Rome, and having made a great many proselytes, was banished France, with his disciples, who took refuge in these valleys in Piedmont.

PERPIGNAN, E. lon. 0. 43. lat. 45. a town in the pr. of Catalonia, capital of the ter. of Rossillon, sit. on the river Latet, a little W. of the Mediterranean, 100 miles N. of Barcelona, and 30 m. S. of Narbonne; the see of a bishop, and an university; subject to France, having been conquered and possessed by that crown, together with the whole territory of Roussillon, upwards of 100 years, and confirmed to France by several treaties;

was; so that it may now well be deemed a pr. of France.

PARZIS, idolaters in the East-Indies, who worship the fire. They removed thither from Persia, when the Mahometans conquered Persia. It is the greatest crime with them to extinguish fire of any kind. They have lamps in their temples, which, according to their tradition, have burnt many ages. Zoroaster was the founder of this sect.

PERSEPOLIS ruins, E. lon. 54. lat. 30. 30. sit. in Persia, in the pr. of Egypt Agem, 50 miles N. E. of Schirvan, and 200 S. E. of Ispahan. Here are the most magnificent remains of a palace or temple, that are now in being on the face of the earth: they lie the N. E. end of that spacious plain where Persepolis once stood, and are generally conjectured to be part of the palace of that Darius, who was conquered by Alexander. It is recorded, that after Alexander had taken this city, he was persecuted, when in liquor, by Thais, the courtesan, to sit it on fire.

PERUZZO, a market town of Worcestershire, sit. 11 miles S. E. of Worcester.

PERSIA, a kingdom of Asia, is sit. between 44 and 70 degrees of E. lon. and between 25 and 44 degrees of N. lat. being 1300 miles long, from E. to W. and almost 1100 broad, from N. to S. and is bounded by Circassian Tartary, the Caspian sea, and the river Oxus, which separates it from Usbec Tartary on the N. by India on the E. by the Indian ocean, the gulphs of Ormus and Boffora, or Persia, on the S. and the Turkish empire on the W. The limits on the side of India, have lately been extended farther Westward, by the late Sopl Shah Nadir; who added all the Indian provinces on the W. side of the river Attos, or Indus, to the Persian empire; which the Great Mogul confirmed to him, when he relinquished his conquests of the Indian provinces, which lie E. of the Indus, anno 1739. On the side of Turkey, the boundaries cannot be exactly fixed; for though the river Tigris forms part of the western boundary, near its mouth, the Turks and Persians are still contending for the provinces which lie further N. upon that river. The air of Persia is very different, on account of the extent of the empire. On the borders of the Caucasus and Daghestan, and mountains near the Caspian sea, it is cold; in the midland provinces, serene and pure; but, in the southern parts, it is extremely hot, and often communicates noxious blasts to the midland provinces.

The scarcity of rivers in Persia, is joined to a scarcity of water; but the defect, where it prevails, is admirably well supplied by means of reservoirs, aqueducts, &c. The country is much incumbered by mountains, and some of them exceeding high, and generally dry barren rocks without trees or herbage; but there are many fruitful valleys, in which their great towns stand; nor can any country be more fruitful than that part of Persia, which lies upon the Caspian sea; and, in other parts it is not so much a defect of the soil, as the paucity or slothfulness of the modern inhabitants, that renders the country barren. The chief produce is rice, wheat, and barley; their kitchen gardens are supplied with a great variety of roots and herbs. They have a variety of grapes, making wine of some, and others hang upon the vines good part of the winter; the air being so dry that it preserves all kinds of fruit a great while after they are ripe. Dates are a most delicious fruit here, which being laid on heaps, candy and preserve themselves without sugar; they have also pistachio nuts, and trees that produce manna; nor do they want many of the fruits of Europe. Here also we meet with rhubarb, sena, and abundance of other medicinal drugs. They have a very fine breed of horses; but their camels and dromedaries are the most useful animals in this sandy country, for carrying burdens over the deserts; as some of them will carry carry near a thousand weight, and travel several days without water. They have also mules, oxen, buffaloes, and asses for their husbandry; and large flocks of sheep and goats; some of their sheep having six or seven horns a-piece. There are a multitude of eagles, hawks, and other birds of prey, which they teach to fly at the game, and even at deer, and wild beasts; and these, with the assistance of dogs, will take the fiercest beasts. The manufactures of Persia are embroidery, especially that of gold and silver, either in cloth, silk, or leather; and that which we call Turkey leather, comes chiefly from hence, through Turkey: but silk, and manufactures of silk, are the principal commodities of the country. Those carpets generally called Turkey, come from Persia.

Their greatest ministers do not think the business of a merchant beneath them; the King himself has his factors and agents in the neighbouring countries, who export silks, brocades, carpets, and other rich goods; but the Armenians and Banaïans of India, who reside here, carry on the most distant foreign traffic; and may be looked upon as the greatest merchants in the world. They export raw as well as wrought silk, in great quantities, to India, Turkey, Muscovy, England, &c. By the permission of the Czarina, the English Russia company traded thro' Russia down the river Wolga, and over the Caspian sea to Persia, where they bartered the English woollen manufactures for the Persian silks, between the years 1741 and 1746: but some of the company's officers being about to build ships on the Caspian sea for the use of the Persians, the Czarina prohibited their traffic to Persia thro' her dominions, and that trade is now fallen into the hands of the Armenians. Persia is an absolute monarchy, and the crown hereditary; but the reigning Prince sometimes appoints his younger son to succeed; and whenever the King mounts the throne, he orders the eyes of all his relations to be put out, who may possibly be his rivals; blindness being, by a law, a disqualification for the royal succession. The late King, Shah Nadir, was the last of his family that ever wielded a scepter. After a civil war of near 30 years continuance, and three or four successive usurpations, Shah Thomas, the almost only surviving heir of the last royal family, was so fortunate as to defeat all his enemies, and was looked upon to be well established in his father's throne; for which he was, in a great measure, indebted to the conduct and bravery of his General Kooli Khan; and, in gratitude for his services, vested him with an unlimited power, both in the army, and the civil administration; which the General making ill use of, the King, it is said, had determined to lay him aside; and some suggest that he only waited for an opportunity to cut off his head. At least, the General pretended that the King had a design against his life; and thereupon caused the Sophi to be seized and imprisoned, if not murdered; and soon after usurped his throne. After which he assembled a more numerous army than Persia had seen of late years, invaded India, and plundered that country of immense treasures; compelled the Great Mogul to yield him all the provinces W. of the river Attoc; after which he made a conquest of the Bochara's and Usbec Tartary, and enlarged the Persian frontiers on the side of Turkey; but, in the midst of his successes, he was assassinated in his own tent, partly in self-defence, by his chief officers, and his nearest relations, in 1747. Many pretenders, upon his death, started up; but the fortunate candidate was Karim Khan, who was crowned at Tauris 1763, and still keeps possession of the throne, according to the latest accounts.

As to the religion of the Persians, they were generally Mahometans, of the sect of Hali; but Shah Nadir being a native of Chorassan, in the N. of Persia, where the sect of Omar prevails, (being the same sect that the Turks, and the subjects of the Mogul are of) he compelled all the Persians to declare themselves of the sect of Omar, which many of the Persians, and especially their priests, opposing. Shah Nadir, the late Sophi, ordered the Musti, and several more of the priests, to be hanged; after which, none of the Persians dared to murmur at the alteration. As to the forces of the Persians, they were not very numerous till the last reign; but Shah Nadir having such large conquests in view, increased them to upwards of 100,000 men, whom he maintained out of the plunder of his new conquests, and eased his Persian subjects of a great part of their usual taxes. The crown claims one third of the cattle, corn, fruits, silk and cotton, of the people; and no rank or condition is exempted from taxation. The governors of provinces have lands assigned them for the support of their retinues and troops; and the crown lands defray the expences, the court, king's household, and great officers of state. The revenues of the Persian monarchs are, without doubt, prodigious, but nothing can be said of them with any certainty in the present distracted state of that country. — The Persians have no degrees of nobility, so that the respect due to every man, on account of his high station, expires with himself. The Persians, of both sexes, are generally handsome, but their complexions, towards the S. are swarthy. Isfahan is the capital.

PERTUIS, or Pertuis, a sub-division of the pr. of Champagne, in France, sit. on the confines of Lorraine.

PERU, formerly a powerful empire, now a pr. of Spain, in South America, is sit. between 60 and 70 degrees of W. lon. and between the Equator, and 25 degrees of S. lat. being near 2000 miles in length, from N. to S. and from 200 to 500 broad; bounded by Popayan on the N. by the mountains of Andes or Cordilleras, which separate it from the country of the Amazons and Paraguay on the E. by Chili and La Plata on the S. and by the Pacific ocean on the W. the capital city now is Lima, formerly Cusco. This country is divided into three great divisions, or provinces, viz. Quito, being the N. division; Lima, or Los Reyes, being the middle division, and Los Charos, the South division. The land next the sea is high; the sierras, or mountains, beyond which, run parallel to the former, are still higher, and the Andes beyond these, are the highest mountains in the world. The land near the sea, is, for the most part, a barren desert, except some valleys, into which they turn the streams from the hills; the hills beyond, also, are generally barren; but between the hills, are very extensive fruitful valleys, yielding almost all manner of grain and fruits; and the weather-temperate. The mountains of the Andes are cold, being covered with snow the greatest part of the year. The sea, which borders on Peru, is called the South sea; but more properly the Pacific ocean, from the constant serene weather on this coast, from 4 degrees S. lat. to 25. Nor is there ever any rain on this coast, or the sea near it, unless within 4 or 5 degrees of the line, where they have always rain when the sun is vertical, as in other parts of the globe near the line: on the sierras, or or hills, distant from the sea side, the rains fall when the sun is vertical also; and on the cordelera, or high mountains farthest from the sea, it rains or snows two thirds of the year. Their vintage is in the fair season, and their vines thrive best in those valleys near the sea, where there is little or no rain, and which are watered by rivulets that fall from the hills, and are collected by the husbandman, and turned into his fields and gardens. Near the Equator, there grow cedars, cotton-wool, cocoas, sugar-canes, palms, and a great deal of good timber; but few forest-trees in other parts of Peru. The most valuable tree they have, is that which furnishes them with Quinquina, or Peruvian bark; and this grows chiefly in the province of Quitto, on the mountains near the city of Quitto, about 5 degrees S. of the Equator, and is of the size of a cherry-tree, bearing a long reddish flower, from whence arises a pod with a kernel like an almond; but the fruit does not seem to have the same virtues as the bark; they have trees also, which afford this kind of bark, in Potosi, in 22 degrees S. lat. Maiz, or Indian corn, was their principal food, and of this they also made drink; but the Spaniards have introduced wheat and barley, which thrive very well here; and their vineyards, which they have planted, yield plenty of grapes, where they can be watered; but the country is so hot and dry, that the soil will produce no grapes where it is not watered; they have ripe grapes when they please, when they have an opportunity of watering them, by turning rivulets into their grounds; and they make excellent wines, which cannot be done in any other country between the tropics. The Spaniards have planted almost all the fruits which grow in Old Spain; and these thrive very well here, as well as rice, and the produce of the kitchen garden. A great many excellent balsams, gums, and drugs, are also found here, and particularly that called the balsam of Peru. But what the Spaniards value this country most for, is the prodigious treasures of gold and silver they have drawn from thence for 200 years past; from the mountain of Potosi alone, which lies in 22 degrees of S. lat. there were drawn two thousand millions of pieces of eight, the first forty years they were wrought; there are also rich mines of quick-silver in Peru, and some precious stones; particularly, emeralds and turquoises. As to animals, there were not in Peru, or any part of America, any horses, cows, elephants, camels, asses, mules, sheep or hogs, and but one poor species of cur dogs, before the Spaniards arrived; but they have since carried over all manner of European animals almost, which are exceedingly multiplied; but they have a breed of animals, which the natives called Pacos and Guanacas, and the Spaniards Peruvian sheep; because they had some resemblance of European sheep, but larger, and used to carry burdens, having no other beasts of burden; their flesh also is very good meat. They had another beast named Vicunas, which the Spaniards called goats, because they were something like our goats, but they have no horns, and are swifter than deer; they had also stags and fallow deer, and some few lions, bears, and tigers; but neither so large or so fierce as those of Europe; and there were great numbers of monkeys; but they had neither rats or mice, though the last have multiplied so much since the Spaniards came over, that they sometimes destroy their crops of grain in Peru, as they do in the island of St. Helena; nor were there any tame fowls or poultry here, till they were imported. They had all manner of wild fowl almost, and a great variety of birds, particularly parrots, and a fowl called a couder, so large, that they measured 13 or 16 feet with their wings extended; these would kill and devour cattle, and sometimes children of ten or eleven years of age; but there

The Peruvians were idolaters, and worshipped the sun chiefly; but the Spaniards have compelled them to turn Christians, and profess another kind of idolatry, on pain of the inquisition; many thousands of them were murdered by the Spaniards, after their arrival, on pretence of their infidelity, and refusing to submit to the Pope, or the King of Spain; but, in reality, to become masters of their treasure, and usurp the dominion of the country; where, to this day, the Spaniards oppress and tyrannize, not only over those that are descended from the Indians, but the Crioli, who are descended from the Spaniards themselves.

PETERSBURG, E. lon. 30. 23. lat. 59. 57. the capital city of Russia, sit.

on an island, which lies in the middle of the river Nieva, in the provinces of Carelia and Ingria, between the gulph of Finland, and the lake Ladoga. There are several small islands also in the mouth of the river Nieva, built upon, and make part of the city; so that it is of a very large extent; and appears like several distinct towns, rather than a single city. There were no less than 60,000 houses built within 3 or 4 years after the foundation was laid; which was in the year 1703. It extends above 6 miles every way; but stands very low, and is exposed to inundations; by which, part of the fortifications were washed away before they were finished. The breadth of the river at Petersburg is about half a mile, and as it is very deep and rapid; the building a bridge over it was held impracticable; whereupon it was proposed to the late Czar, Peter the Great, to make a bridge of pontoons or boats, but he would not consent to it, because his intention was to breed up as many watermen as he could; and these he prohibited the use of oars, that they might learn to manage sails; but these boatmen being ignorant peasants, many people were overfret and drowned, in passing from one part of the town to the other at first. The nobility, and people of distinction were obliged to build grand houses here; but the generality were timber houses, till they began to burn bricks at Petersburg; and now the town appears with a much better face than it did at first. The sands at the mouth of the river, prevent ships coming up to it, and therefore they are obliged to take in their loading 4 or 5 miles lower. It may seem strange that Peter the Great should fix upon this place to build his capital city, it lying in a barren country, and so far to the N. that they scarce enjoy the light of the sun in winter; but it was in order to have a communication with the Baltic sea, and that his subjects might traffic with the rest of the nations of Europe; for at yet there was no sea that touched upon upon the territories of Russia, but that of Archangel, to which shipping was obliged to pass through the Frozen ocean. It was with the greatest difficulty that the Czar compassed this grand design, his people shewing the utmost aversion to removing to this cold, barren country, as he commanded them, from all parts of his dominions, and such rubs were laid in his way by his nobility and officers, that it was thought impossible he should effect his design. There were neither sufficient tools or provisions provided for the workmen, who suffered all manner of hardships, inasmuch that it is computed no less than 100,000 people perished in laying the foundation, and building this metropolis. However all difficulties were at length overcome, and it is now one of the largest and most populous cities in the world, and contains every structure for magnificence, the improvement of arts, revenue, navigation, war, commerce, &c. that are to be found in the most celebrated cities in Europe; for the Czar established here an academy marine, to which he obliged every considerable family in his empire to send one of their sons or relations to be instructed in navigation; here also they learnt the dead languages, were taught to ride and fence, and other exercises. He set up woollen and linen manufactures, had paper-mills, powder-mills, laboratories for gunnery and fire-works, places for preparing salt-petre, and blimstone; he erected yards for making cables and tackling for his navy; and a foundery, where they are perpetually casting great guns, mortars, and small arms; the country furnishing him with vast quantities of iron ore. A printing-house also was set up to encourage his subjects to enquire into the state of the world; and he sent many of them to foreign countries, to learn mechanic arts, giving great encouragement to foreigners to come to Petersburg, and instruct his people in every science; plays, operas, and music-meetings were also introduced, in a country where none of these arts or diversions were seen till the reign of Peter the Great. There are at Petersburg, besides other public buildings, 60 Russian churches, and 4 Lutheran, but as those of the Calvinists, Dutch, English, and Catholics, all religions being tolerated; and the inhabitants are computed at 200,000. It is 355 miles N. W. of Moscow, 750 N. E. of Vienna, 325 N. E. of Copenhagen, 300 N. E. of Stockholm, and 474 distant from London.

40. a small island in the Mediterranean, opposite to the city of Alexandria, in Egypt; which, with the continent, forms a spacious harbour,
being about half a mile distant from the city, with which it has a communication by a stone causeway. On this island was erected a most magnificent tower, esteemed one of the wonders of the world; on the top whereof were numerous lights for the direction of Mariners, which tower from the island it stood upon obtained the name of the Pharos.

PHARALUS, E. lon. 23. lat. 39.
a town of Thraccia anciently, sit. in European Turkey, a little S. of Larissa,
in the plains whereof, it is supposed,
that decisive battle was fought between Caesar and Pompey, from hence called the battle of Pharsalia; but this is not certainly known, because the exact situation of this town is not agreed on by Geographers.

PHASIANTS ISLE, W. lon. 1.
30. lat. 43. 45. a little island in the river Bidasse, which divides France and Spain, sit. near St. John Pied de Port, 16 m. S. of Bayonne. Here
the treaty between France and Spain was made, anno 1659, which from the neighbourhood of the Pyrenean mountains, was called the Pyrenean treaty; and here several other treaties between those two crowns have been made: this island being chosen
on these occasions as a neutral place,
to which neither King can claim a right.

PHENICIA, a sub-division or pr.
of Syria, sit. on the Lavant, or eastern part of the Mediterranean sea, on the confines of Palestine, and some make it a part of Palestine. Tyre
and Sidon were sit. in this country,
and were the first maritime powers
that we read of either in sacred or profane history. They planted colonies both in Spain and Africa, beyond Hercules pillars, or the straits of Gibraltar; and they founded the Carthaginian state. It is but a small
ter. but has been greatly celebrated for being the inventor of letters and navigation.

PHILADELPHIA, E. lon. 29. lat.
18. 45. an ancient town of the Lesser Asia, sit. 40 m. E. S. E. of Smyrna, now in ruins.

PHILADELPHIA, W. lon. 75. lat.
40. 30. the capital city of the pr.
of Pennsylvania, in North America,
one of the British colonies, sit. 70 m.
W. of New-York, upon the river Delaware and Schuylkill; being a most beautiful plan of a town. It is an oblong of 2 miles, extending from the river Delaware to the river Schuylkill,

hill, with a front to each river, and each front a mile in length. Every house has a large court or garden before it, and in the centre of the town is a square of 10 acres. The high street, which runs the whole length of the town, is 100 feet broad, parallel to which run 8 streets, which are crossed by 20 more at right angles, and several canals are let into the town from the rivers. There is a fine quay, to which ships of 4 or 500 tons may come up, and in the year 1244, the number of houses, on an accurate survey, were found to be 2076; but there wants a great many more to finish the plan. The greatest part of the inhabitants are quakers, tho' there are many also of the church of England, and several other sects, who have churches here. See PENNSYLVANIA.

PHILIP FORT, a fortress in Dutch Brabant, sit. on the E. side of the Scheld, opposite to Pearl fort, 5 miles N.W. of Antwerp, whereby the Dutch command the navigation of the river Scheld.

PHILIPPI, E. lon. 25. lat. 41. an ancient town of Macedonia, a pr. of European Turkey, sit. 10 m. N. of the gulph of Contessa, in the plains whereof Brutus and Cassius were defeated by Augustus Cæsar.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS, sit. in the Pacific ocean, in Asia, between 114 and 131 deg. of E. lon. and between 3 and 19 deg. of N. lat. 300 m. S. E. of China, and a very little N. E. of the island of Borneo; they were discovered by Magellan covered in 1519. There are great numbers of them, and some very large, that of Lucconia or Manila is upwards of 400 miles in length, and 200 in breadth: most of them subject to Spain. See LUCCONIA and MANILANAS.

PHILIPOLI, E. lon. 25. lat. 42. 30. a town of European Turkey, in the pr. of Romania, sit. on the river Marissa, 128 miles N. W. of Constantinople, and 140 m. S. E. of Nisib. It is inhabited chiefly by Greek Christians, and is one of their archbs. Here they show a chapel, in which, according to tradition, St. Paul preached to the Philippians.

PHILIPSTADT, E. lon. 8. 33. lat. 49. 14. a city of Germany, in the pal. of the Rhine, sit. on the E. bank of the river Rhine, 16 miles S. W. of Heidelberg. The town, though sit. in a morass, and strongly fortified, has been as often taken and retaken, by the French and Germans, as any town on the frontiers: the last time the French took it was in the year 1734; at which siege their General, the Duke of Berwick, was killed by a cannon-shot; but the town was restored to the Germans again, by a peace between France and the Empire, the following year. The town belongs to the bishop of Spire, but all the works and fortifications to the Empire.

PHILIP'S NORTON, a market town of Somersetshire, sit. 104 miles W. of London, and 16 E. of Wells.

PHILIPSTADT, E. lon. 14. 30. lat. 59. 30. a town of Sweden, in the pr. of Gothland, and ter. of Wermeland, sit. 105 m. W. of Stockholm.

PACHY of Parma, sit. 10 miles N. W. of Parma, about half a mile S. of the river Po, in a fruitful plain well watered with rivulets. The town being upwards of 3 miles in circumference, fortified and defended by a citadel. The see of a bishop, and subject to the Duke of Parma.

PIANOSA, E. lon. 11. lat. 43. 18. an island of Italy in the Tuscan sea, sit. a little S. W. of the isle of Elba; sub. to Tuscany.

PIAVA, a river of Italy, which rises in Tirolo, and runs from N. to S. through the ter. of Venice, falling into the gulph by two mouths, a little to the northward of the city of Venice.

PICARDY, a province of France, is bounded by the French Netherlands and the Straits of Dover, on the N. and E. by the isle of France on the S. and by the E. channel, and the pt. of Normandy on the W. lying in the form of a bended arm, about 150 miles long, and from 20 to 40 broad, generally a plain open country, without woods or mountains, producing good corn, pasture, and fruits, but no wine; and they have a considerable woollen manufacture in several of their towns, of which Amiens is the capital.

PICOMITTORE, E. lon. 10. lat. 45. 25. a town of Italy, in the duchy of Milan, sit. a little N. of the river Po, 30 miles S. E. of Milan. It has a strong castle, in which Francis I. of France was imprisoned.

PICKERING, a market town of Yorkshire, in the North Riding, sit. 26 m. N. E. of York.

PICO, W. lon. 28. lat. 39. one of the islands of the Azores, sit. in the Atlantic ocean, between Europe and America; subject to Portugal. It is 37 miles in circumference.

PICOTS WALL, of which there are still some remains, began at the entrance of Solway frith, in Cumberland, and running N. E. passed by Carlisle, continuing to run N. E. to the river Tyne in Northumberland, and from thence passing Newcastle, ended at the German ocean.

PISA or PORT ST. JOHN, W. lon. 1. 13. lat. 43. 3. a town of France, in the pt. of Gascony, near the frontiers of Spain, sit. on the river Nive, at the entrance of one of the passages over the Pyrenees, 20 m. S. of Bayonne.

PIEDMONT, a principality in Italy, is called from its lying at the foot of the Alps, it is bounded by Savoy, from which it is separated by the Alps on the N. by the duchies of Milan and Montferrat on the E. by the ter. of Genoa, and the country of Nice, on the S. and by France on the W. from which it is separated by the river Var and the Alps, being about 140 miles long, and 60 broad. There is not a more desirable climate, or a more pleasant and fruitful so. is Italy than Piedmont, abounding in corn, rice, wine, fruits, cattle, silk, hemp, &c. the English alone have taken off the value of 300,000 l. of their raw silk annually, for several years. No country of its dimensions yields the sovereign so great a revenue as this; but their crops are sometimes destroyed by storms of hail, called the plague of Piedmont. And there is still a greater misfortune attends them; and that is, their lying on the frontiers of such ambitious and restless neighbours as the French, who have often attempted the conquest of it, and ravaged the country in the late wars. In the reign of Q. Anne, the French took every town in the country, and were upon the point of making themselves masters of Turin, when it was relieved by the late Duke of Savoy and Prince Eugene, after the battle of Turin, anno 1706, and the French were obliged to abandon Piedmont again. This country was formerly a part of Lombardy, but now is subject to the King of Sardinia, son of the late Duke of Savoy, who is absolute in his dominions, consisting of the island of Sardinia, Piedmont, Montferrat, and Savoy, the counties of Pisa, Tenda, and Baglio or Bud, and the pr. of Genoa, the Alexandria, Vigevano, and Lodi. The administration of the government in these provinces is committed to a council of state, a council of finances, and other boards; but all subject to the controul of his Sardinian majesty. Turin is the capital, and the residence of the King.

having the pr. of Polesia on the E.
and S. and Moldavia, or Waravia,
on the W.

POLAND KINGDOM, is St. between 16 and 34 degrees of E. lon.
and between 46 and 57 degrees of
N. lat. being bounded by the Baltic sea, Livonia, and Russia, on the N. by Russia and Budziac Tartary on the
E. by Bessarabia, Moldavia, Transilvania, and Hungary, on the S. (separated from Transilvania and Hungary by the Carpathian mountains)
and bounded by Pomerania, Brandenburg, and Silesia, on the W. being almost square, and 700 m. over either way. Poland, including Lithuania, contains 11 provinces, but it is almost impossible to ascertain the exact boundaries, through the uncertain possession of its extremities by the Turks, Tatars, Cossacks, and other nations. It is a flat level country, well watered by lakes and rivers, an exceeding fruitful soil, abounding in wheat and tyé, with which the Dutch load some hundreds of ships every year, to distribute to such countries
as happen to have a scarcity of corn.
They have also rich meadows and pastures, which feed vast flocks and herds of cattle, with which they supply Germany; and they have an excellent breed of horses. There are mines of silver, lead, iron, and copper also, in several parts of Poland;
but they make more advantage of their salt-mines than of any of these;

the country also produces flax,
hemp, and furs; and they have
manufactures of linen and leather,
which they export, as well as masts and yards, and naval stores, taking in return cloth, silks, tapestry, wrought plate, wines, spices, herrings, and other salted fish, tin and fruits; but the balance of trade is very much against them, and they have very few ships or port towns besides Danzig. Their constitution is a mixed monarchy, in which the people seem to have the greatest share of the government, which makes it frequently called a Republic. The King is elected by the whole body of the gentry, who put what conditions
on their Prince they see fit, before they crown him, which he takes an oath to observe, and this is called the Pacta Conventa; nor can the King raise forces without the concurrence
of the gentry, who are, in reality,
petty sovereigns in their own estates;
and the Crown General, as he is called, will obey no commands but those of the diet, or assembly of the states; and every palatine or officer,
will take the liberty to return home
out of the field when he sees fit,
let the consequence be what it will.
The King is at no expence in keeping armies on foot, or maintaining the officers of state; these are all maintained by the Republic, and accountable to it, tho' nominated by the King,
with this limitation however, that he can prefer none but gentlemen, and those natives of the province where they are to sit, and not related to his Majesty; nor can any one be deprived of his office, but by the unanimous consent of the diet. The present King had a million and half of florins settled upon him by the commission of the state, and the income of his predecessors generally amounted to 140,000 l. per annum.
All the charges of the administration are borne by the Republic, as well as the expences of the Queen-consort's court. The senate consists of the Bishops,

Bishops, Palatines, Castellans, and the great officers of the crown, who are consulted by the King in all acts of state. The grand diet of Poland consists of the King, the senate, and deputies, or representatives of the gentry of every palatinate or county, who ought, by their constitution, to assemble once in 3 years, and their session continues six weeks, and no longer; and in this diet the legislative power is lodged. Every province also has its particular or provincial diet, which makes laws for the respective provinces; so that Poland is rather a great many united and confederated states, than one kingdom. There are also some free states and independent cities and provinces, who are governed by their respective Princes and magistrates; as Ducal Prussia by the King of Prussia, Courland by its own Duke, and Dantzic by their magistrates. The religion of the country is the Roman Catholic, except in the N. where the subjects of the King of Prussia, and those of Dantzic, and several other cities, are Protestants; and when these are joined to the Greek church, the whole are called Dissidents, who, for many years, have been cruelly persecuted by the Catholics, contrary to the faith of several treaties, so that there has been almost a total dissolution of order in Poland, and the kingdom is involved in all the calamities of war. The forces of the Poles are all horse, and are rather a militia, consisting of the gentry and their dependants, than regular troops, for they serve no longer than they see fit; and if the Republic have occasion for foot, they hire them of their Princes; and since the Electors of Saxony have sat on the throne of Poland, they have furnished the Poles with more foot than they desired, inasmuch that they frequently assemble the crown army to drive them out of the country in the late reign. Warsaw is the general residence of the King, but Cracow is the capital town.

POLEMON, E. lon. 128; 25. S. lat. 4. one of the Banda or Nutmeg islands, in the Indian ocean, 120 miles S. E. of Amboyna, and 60 S. of the island of Ceram. This is one of these Spice islands, which put themselves under the protection of the English, and voluntarily acknowledged James I. King of England, their Sovereign; for which the natives of this, and the rest of the islands, were murdered or driven from thence by the Dutch, together with the English; plundering their ships which came thither, though the two nations were then at peace.

 country has, of late, undergone a very agreeable alteration for the better.

POSA-NASSA, W. Ind. 76. lat. 10. 1/2, a town of Terra Firma, in South America, sit. on a high mountain 50 miles E. of Cartagena, where there is a convent and chapel dedicated to the Virgin Mary, with her image richly adorned, to which the Spaniards of America go in pilgrimage from all parts, ascribing a great many miracles to this image of her, especially in delivering them from storms and enemies at sea.

POSA-NAN, a pr. of South America, bounded by Terra Firma on the N. by New Granada on the E. by Peru on the S. and by the Pacific Ocean on the W. It. between 75 and 80 degrees of W. lon. and between the equator, and 5 degrees of N. lat. being 400 miles long, and about 300 broad. A chain of barren mountains runs through the country from N. to S. and near the sea, it is flat marshy soil, almost always flooded by the continual rains; but there being a great deal of gold dust found in the sands of their numerous rivulets, in the dry season, the Spaniards, who are sovereigns of the country, have built several towns in it, the chief whereof is Popayan.

POPAYAN, W. Ind. 73. 5. lat. 1. 25. capital of the pr. of Popayan, It. 210 miles N. E. of Quito; a bishop's see, the seat of the Governor, and the courts of justice.

POPE HIS TERRITORIES, in Italy, are bounded by the Venetian sea on the N. by the gulph of Venice on the N. E. by Naples on the S. E. by the Tuscan sea on the S. W. and by the duchy of Tuscany on the N. W. almost encompassing that duchy on the land side, being about 240 miles long, and from 30 to 220 in breadth. The soil of the Pope's territories is generally rich, producing corn, wine, oil, silk, and excellent fruits, and would produce much more, if these countries were as populous and as well cultivated, as they were in the time of the Romans; however, they so much exceed Tuscany at present, that a certain writer says,

The Pope has the Rom, and the Great Duke the border; meaning, it is presumed, that the lands, of which the Holy See has the property and dominion, are naturally fruitful; whereas Tuscany, which they surround, is great part of it taken up with the barren rocks and mountains of the Appennine. The most healthful and temperate part of the Pope's territories is Bologna, which lies N. of the Appennine hills. The Ferrara, adjoining to it is a perfect bog, and exceeding unhealthful; nor is the Campagna of Rome much better the latter end of the summer, occasioned by the many lakes and stagnant waters, which, in the time of the Romans, were drained off, but now render this country unhealthful. Though the Pope has a very extensive coast, both on the gulph of Venice and on the Tuscany sea, his subjects have scarce any considerable sea ports, or any merchant ships, or foreign traffic, notwithstanding the late Pope, to invite foreigners to trade with their people, have made Civita Vecchia a free port, one reason whereof may be, that their governors and wealthy inhabitants are ecclesiastics, who do not apply themselves to the advancement of trade and manufactures; but being masters of more refined arts, draw great part of the wealth of the Christian world into the treasury of the church, and live in a manner on the spoils of bigoted nations, without taking the ordinary vulgar methods of amassing wealth. The Pope is an absolute monarch in his Italian territories; for though he frequently holds a consistory of Cardinals, who are his council in ecclesiastical affairs, they are not suffered to intermeddle in his civil government. The Pope's Prima Minister is the Cardinal Patron, usually one of his nephews, to whom he gives an opportunity of raising a vast estate; such nephews have been the founders of some of the greatest families in Italy. The Campagna of Rome is under the immediate government of the

the Pope; the other provinces are governed by Legates, or Vice-legates; but the forces in every province and city have a commander besides, appointed by the Pope; and the Podestas, or Judges, and other inferior officers, are elected by their respective inhabitants. The Pope ingrosses all the corn in the country, the farmers being obliged to sell it to his agents, at the price he sets upon it, who sell it to the people at an advanced price, so reasonable however, that all people agree bread and corn is not dear at Rome. As to the Pope's ecclesiastical dominion, it is extended through the world, wherever the Roman Catholic religion has gained admittance, and whatever obligations, subjects may be under to the civil powers where they live, they are often ready to cancel them all, when their duty to the Pope comes in competition with that due to their temporal Lords, and have often been spirited up to depose their sovereigns; and though many temporal Princes, and their lay subjects of that communion, have of late years disputed the Pope's supremacy, yet the monks and regular clergy in every country, still remain entirely devoted to the see of Rome, and are ready to oppose the civil power, whenever the Pope's authority is called in question: and these amounting, as it is computed, to 2,000,000 of souls, are more formidable than any other militia, since they are in every prince's court, and great family, in the Christian world, on which they have a considerable influence, and are subsisted at the charge of those very people to whom they preach the doctrine of the Pope's supremacy and infallibility. Some imagine the Pope's annual revenue amounts to above a million sterling, and some rate it much higher. The sum of a million sterling is much too high a revenue to arise out of his territorial possessions; his accidental income, which far exceeded that sum, is now greatly diminished by the suppression of the order of the Jesuits, from whom he drew vast supplies, and the measures taken by the Popish powers, for preventing the great ecclesiastical issues of money to Rome. According to the best and latest accounts, the taxes upon the provisions and lodgings, furnished to foreigners, who spend immense sums in visiting his dominions, form now the greatest part of his accidental revenues; and, from what has happened within these 20 years past, there is reason to believe that the Pope's territories will be reduced to the limits which the houses of Austria, and Bourbon, shall please to describe.

POSTALGORE, W. lon. 6. 37. lat. 39. 10. a city of Portugal, in the pr. of Alentejo, sit. 80 m. E. of Lisbon.

PORTARLINGTON, a territory in Queen's county in Ireland; sends two members to parli.

PORT ARIZAZ, W. lon. 70. 5. lat. 47. a harbour on the E. coast of South

South America, sit. 150 miles N. E. of port St. Julian, where ships sometimes touch in their voyage to the South sea.

PORTEN BASSIN, W. lon. 50 m. lat. 49. 30. a port town of France, in the pr. of Normandy, sit. on the English channel, 18 miles N. W. of Caen.

PORTENTUS, E. lon. 7. 27. lat. 47. 34. a town of Switzerland, in the bishopric of Basle, sit. on the confines of Alsace, 13 miles S. E. of Montbéliard. The bishop is a Prince of the Empire.

PORTLAND, W. lon. 2. 33. lat. 50. 30. a peninsula in the county of Dorset, sit. on the English channel, 10 miles S. of Dorchester. Here the best free-stone is dug, of which St. Paul's in London, and most of the grand fabric in England are built. There is but one church, but it has a castle built by Henry VIII.

PORT L'ORIENT, W. lon. 3. 52. lat. 47. 45. a fortress and port town of France, sit. in the pr. of Britany, at the mouth of the river Blavet, opposite to Port Louis, being the station of the French East-India ships, from whence it lately obtained the name of the Eastern Port, or Port L'Orient, and is 78 m. N. W. of Nantes.

PORT LOUIS, W. lon. 3. 6. lat. 47. 42. port town of France, in the pr. of Britany, sit. on the bay of Biscay, at the mouth of the river Blavet, and sometimes called Blavet, 70 miles N. W. of Nantes, and 27 W. of Vannes. It has a good harbour, and is a station for part of the royal navy, and for the ships of the French East India company.

PORT LOUIS, a French fortress of America, on the S. W. coast of Hispaniola, taken and demolished in the year 1747, by Admiral Knowles, but since rebuilt.

PORT MAHON. See MAHON and MIZAHOCA.

PORTO, or Oporto, W. lon. 9. lat. 41. 10. a city and port town of Portugal, in the pr. of Entre-minho-douro, sit. near the mouth of the river Douro, and the Atlantic ocean, 30 miles S. of Braga.

PORTO BELLO, W. lon. 120. 3. lat. 10. 30. a port town of America, sit. in the pr. of Terra Firma Proper, or Darien, on the narrowest part of the isthmus, which joins North and South America, 70 miles N. of Panama, and 300 W. of Carthagepa. It is a large, secure, and commodious harbour, with a narrow entrance, defended by forts and batteries; and at the bottom of the harbour stands the town, of a semicircular form, as the land is on which it is built, defended also by several forts, which were all taken by Admiral Vernon with 6 ships only, in the year 1742, but he quitted it again, after he had demolished the works, either on account of the unhealthfulness of the place, or because he had scarce any land-forces on board; or, as some suggest, because his orders were defective. Here Admiral Hoffer was lost by the unhealthfulness of the climate, and most of the ships buried their crews twice over, and the ships were so damaged by the worms, that they were not fit for service afterwards. The greatest part of the inhabitants are Malattoes, Indians, or Negroes. During the time of the fair it used to be so crowded with rich merchants, that above 100 crowns were given for a poor lodging, and a 1000 crowns for a shop, and provisions were proportionably dear.

PORTO CAVALLA, or Porto Cabelo, W. lon. 67. 30. lat. 10. 30. a port town of Terra Firma, in America, on the Caraccos coast, sit. on a bay of the North sea, 120 m. S. of the Dutch island of Bonaire, sub. to Spain. Here the English met with a repulse, and lost a great many men when they attacked the town by sea and land, anno 1743.

PORTO FARINO, E. lon. 9. lat. 36. 30. a port town of Tunis, in Africa, sit. 30 miles N. of Tunis, a little W. of the ruins of Carthage; sub. to the Bay of Tunis.

Atlantic ocean,

W. lon. 120. 5. a port town of America, in Florida Proper, at the narrowest part of the strait which joins North and South America, 120 miles N. of Panama, and 120 miles S. of Carthagena. It is a commodious harbour, with a narrow entrance, and batteries; and the harbour stands in a regular form, which it is built, and several forts, which Admiral Vernon took in the year 1742, and after he had taken it, either on account of the smallness of the town, or as some orders were desired. Hostler was the chief of the ships buried there, and the ships were the worms, that for service after a part of the inhabitants, Indians, or the time of the fair were with rich goods, 100 crowns for lodging, and a ship, and provisions dear.

Porto Venajo, E. lon. 10. 37. lat. 42. 54. a port town on the N. side of the isle of Elba, from which it is separated by an artificial canal, in the Tuscan sea, 40 miles N. W. of Orbitello; subject to the Duke of Tuscany.

Porto Galleto, W. lon. 3. 11. lat. 43. 25. a port town of Spain, in the pr. of Biscay, sit. 3 miles N. of Bilbao.

Porto Hertole, E. lon. 12. lat. 41. 20. a port town of Italy, in the pr. of Tuscany, sit. on the coast of the state Del Principato, on a bay of the Tuscan sea, 60 m. S. by E. of Sienna; sub. to Sicily.

Porto Longone, E. lon. 10. 40. lat. 42. 45. a port town of the isle of Elba, in the Tuscan sea, at the E. end of the island, 8 miles S. W. of Piombino. It belongs to the Prince of Piombino, but the King of Naples has a right to put a garrison here.

Porto Rico, or Juan de Porto Rico, an island in the Atlantic or American ocean, and one of the Caribbees, subject to the Spaniards, sit. between 65 and 68 degrees of W. lon. and in 19 degrees of N. lat. being 100 miles long, and 50 broad. The face of the island consists of a pleasing variety of hills and valleys, woods, and champaign, and is well watered with springs and rivers. They have their periodical rains and storms as in other countries within the tropics, and sometimes hurricanes, between Midsummer and Michaelmas. This island was conquered by the Earl of Cumberland, at his own expence, and that of other private adventurers, in the reign of Queen Elisabeth, but he was obliged to abandon it again having lost most of his men by sickness in the latter end of the summer, when this, and all places in these latitudes, are very unhealthful. The chief produce of this island for exportation, is sugar, rum, and ginger; and they have all manner of tropical fruits and grain, and the Spaniards have introduced a great many sorts of European fruits and grain, as well as cattle. It is 30 miles E. of Hispaniola.

Porto Rico, or St. John's City, W. lon. 65. 35. lat. 18. 30. capital of Porto Rico, sit. within the harbour, on the N. side of the island, and joined to it by a causeway. The town is about a mile and a half in circumference, built after the Spanish model, and fortified, as well as the entrance of the harbour; by forts and batteries of guns, which render the town almost inaccessible by sea; nor is the situation less pleasant than strong, it standing on an eminence, and commanding the ocean on one side, and the main island on the other.

Porto Santo, W. lon. 15. 5. lat. 33. the least of the Madeira islands, in the Atlantic ocean, sit. 300 miles W. of the empire of Morocco, in Africa; subject to Portugal. It is not above 18 miles in circumference, but produces the same sort of wine as the larger island does. See MADEIRA.

Porto Vecchio, E. lon. 9. 30. lat. 41. 25. a port town in the island of Corsica, in the Mediterranean, sit. in a bay of the sea, 40 miles N. of Sardinia.

Porto Venerio, E. lon. 10. 35. lat. 44. 5. a port town of Italy, in the ter. of Genoa, sit. near the bay of Spezia, 45 m. S. E. of Genoa.

Port Royal, W. lon. 77. lat. 17. 30. a port town, sit. in the S. E. part of the island of Jamaica, in America, at the extremity of a long point of land, running W. about 12 miles from the body of the island, having the ocean on the S. and a fine bay on the N. which forms one of the most commodious harbours imaginable, 3 leagues broad, and deep enough for a ship of 700 tons to lie close to the shore, well defended by forts and platforms of guns. It formerly contained 1500 houses, and was so populous, and so much frequented by merchants and planters, that houses were as dear here, as in the best streets of London. But this fine port was miserably destroyed 3 times within 30 years, years, viz. in the year 1692, by an earthquake, in 1702 by fire, and in 1722 by an inundation of the sea; whereupon the place was abandoned, and most of the inhabitants that survived, removed to Kingston, on the opposite side of the harbour, but the convenience of the situation has drawn a great many people thither again; and it is better fortified against an enemy, as well as against inundations, than ever it was, though it suffered pretty much by a hurricane, in the year 1744. It is 8 miles S. of Spanish Town, and about the same distance S. E. of Kingston.

PORT ROYAL, W. lon. 80. 10. lat. 31. 45. an island on the coast of South Carolina, in North America, which, with the neighbouring continent, forms one of the most secure and commodious harbours in the British plantations. The island is about 15 miles long, and has a town on the N. E. shore, called Beaufort town. It lies near 100 miles S. of Charles-town.

PORT ROYAL, in Acadia. See ANNAPOLIS.

PORT ST. MARY'S, W. lon. 6. 30. lat. 36. 32. a port town of Spain, in the pr. of Andalusia, sit. on the bay of Cadiz, 16 miles N. E. of that city. Here the English made a descent, anno 1702, in order to besiege Cadiz. They committed great irregularities, and were compelled to re-embark their troops, without effecting any thing.

PORTSMOUTH, a borough and port town of Hampshire, sit. on a fine bay of the English channel, opposite to the isle of Wight; and 73 miles S. W. of London; one of the most secure and spacious harbours in England, strongly fortified and defended by a numerous artillery, both on the sea and land side. Here great part of the royal navy of England are built and laid up; and here are some of the finest docks, yards, and magazines of naval stores in Europe. The general rendezvous for the royal navy is usually at Spilhead, on the E. end of the isle of Wight, opposite to Portsmouth. This town sends two members to parl. and gives title of Earl to the family of Wallop. It is governed by a mayor, 12 aldermen and burgesses.

PORTUGAL, the most westerly kingdom of Europe, sit. between 7 and 10 deg. of W. lon. and between 37 and 42 degrees of N. lat. bounded by the kingdom of Spain on the N. and E. and by the Atlantic ocean on the W. and S. being about 300 miles long, and 100 broad. This country is not so hot as Spain, especially that part which lies on the coast, being cooled by the sea-breezes; but it is not so fruitful as Spain, being incumbered with some of the barrenest mountains on that continent; however, towards the bottom of them, they are planted with vines, which produce a great deal of good wine. The soil also produces plenty of olives, as well as oranges and lemons; but neither their oil of their sour oranges are so good as those of Spain. Their sweet oranges, however, which they introduced from China, and for that reason are called China oranges, are the best in Europe. They have not corn enough for their subsistence; but are supplied with it frequently from England and Holland. As to their peasants and country people, they eat scarce any other but Indian corn; a very coarse food. The flesh of their cattle is generally lean and dry; but they have plenty of chestnuts, almonds, figs, and raisins. They make also a great deal of salt, of the sea water, let into shallow pans; especially in the bay of St. Ubes, from whence they export a great deal, especially to America. The foreign trade of the Portuguese consists either in the exportation of the produce of their own soil; viz. red and white Port wines, oranges, lemons, and other fruits; or in the exportation of the merchandize they receive from their plantations and settlements in Asia, Africa, and America; of which, those from Brazil, in America, are much much the most considerable; for, besides vast quantities of sugar, tobacco, rum, cotton, indigo, hides, train oil, drying woods, and drugs, they import vast treasures of gold, silver, and diamonds from Brazil, having lately discovered some very valuable mines of these precious minerals there; inasmuch, that the value of diamonds is sunk considerably. But, notwithstanding Portugal is now one of the richest kingdoms in the world, it is, however, the weakest. They have neither fleets or armies, sufficient to defend their sea coasts, or frontiers; and, were it not that the rest of the powers of Europe know it to be their interest to defend them against Spain, they would soon be swallowed up by that potent neighbour. This is a much greater security than the double marriages contracted between the two crowns, in the year 1726. Portugal is an absolute monarchy, and the crown hereditary, and the succession may devolve to the female line. There are assemblies of the States and cortes here, indeed, as well as in Spain; but they only serve to confirm the decrees of the Prince. The public annual revenue of the kingdom amounts to near one million sterling, clear of all pensions and salaries; but the King receives a much greater revenue from the produce of the mines of Brazil, which it is scarce possible to make a just estimate of, but the whole is generally computed to amount to three millions and a half sterling, annually; and the King's revenue is of late much increased by the suppression of religious orders and institutions. There is no country to which the English used to trade to greater advantage; but within these ten years, the commerce and manufactures of Portugal have taken a surprising turn; new companies and regulations having been projected, to the prejudice of those privileges the British merchants formerly enjoyed by the most solemn treaties. However, they still exchange their wine, salt, fruits, and most of their own materials for foreign manufactures; and, it is certain, we have imported a great deal of gold from Portugal, though the exportation of it from thence is prohibited, under very severe penalties, by their government. According to the best calculation, Portugal contains near two millions of inhabitants. The established religion is Popery in the strictest sense; though the power of the Pope is greatly curtailed of late, so that it is difficult to describe the religious state of this kingdom; and the power of the Inquisition is now taken out of the hands of the ecclesiastics, and converted into a State-trap, for the benefit of the crown. In the year 1754, the marine of Portugal consisted only of 12 ships of war, but of late the fleet has been increased. Lisbon is the capital city.

POSEGA, E. lon. 18. 44. lat. 43. 35. capital of Schavonia, sit. on the river Osiana, 108 m. W. of Belgrade, and 135 S. of Buda; sub. to the House of Austria.

POSAN, or Bolsano, E. lon. 11. 50. lat. 45. 30. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Austria and E. of Trent, sit. on the river Adige, 25 miles N. of Trent.

POSMANIA, E. lon. 17. lat. 51. 30. a city of Great Poland, sit. on the river Warta, near the confines of Brandenburg, 137 m. W. of Warsaw. The see of a bishop, and cap. of the pal. of Posmania.

PORTAM, or Potsdam, E. lon. 13. 41. lat. 52. 35. a town of Germany in the cir. of Upper Saxony, and mar. of Brandenburg, sit. on the river Havel, 10 m. S. W. of Berlin, sub. to the King of Prussia, who has a palace here.

POTENZA, E. lon. 16. 40. lat. 40. 40. a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, in the Basilicata, sit. 80 miles S. E. of Naples. The see of a bishop.

ft. 300 miles S. E. of Africa, at the bottom of the mountain of Potosi, in which is the richest silver mine that ever was discovered, from whence the Spaniards have drawn many hundred ship-loads of treasure. It is situated in one of the barrenest countries of America, destitute of corn, grass, trees, and all manner of herbage. The hill is now little more than a shell, the Spaniards having dug through and through it: when they could get no more by digging downwards, they began at the bottom of the hill, and dug through it horizontally.

POTTON, a market town of Bedfordshire, sit. 12 m. E. of Bedford.

POULTON, a market town of Lancashire, sit. on the Irish sea, 18 miles S. W. of Lancaster.

POUSALUC, E. lon. 100. lat. 28. a town of the kingdom of Siam, in the East Indies, in Asia, sit. 300 miles N. of Siam.

PRABAT, E. lon. 101. lat. 16. a town of Siam in the Further India, in Asia, sit. 100 m. N. of Siam.

PRAGILAS, or Preglas, E. lon. 7. lat. 44. 45. a town of Italy, in the pr. of Piedmont, sit. 7 m. W. of Turin, sub. to the King of Sardinia.

PRAGUE, E. lon. 14. 46. lat. 50. 6. the capital of Bohemia, sit. on the river Muldaw, 135 miles N. W. of Vienna, 100 m. N. E. of Ratisbon, and 70 m. S. of Dresden. It is the largest city of Europe, and the most populous, next to London, Paris, and Constantinople; encompassed with a wall, bastions, and other works, which render it as strong as a place of that extent can be; but it is commanded by several hills. It stands pleasantly, surrounded by fine fields and gardens, and is adorned with a great number of elegant houses, churches, and convents, but many of them have suffered in the late wars.

PRATOLINO, E. lon. 11. 26. lat. 43. 50. a city of Italy, in the duchy of Tuscany, sit. 8 m. N. of Florence, where the Great Duke had a palace and gardens, with some of the finest water-works in Italy.

PASCOG, E. lon. 37. 40. lat. 46. 40. an old decayed city of European Turkey, sit. at the entrance of the isthmus, which unites Little Tartary to the peninsula of Crim Tartary; of so little strength, that it made scarce any resistance against the Russian forces which invaded Crim Tartary, and plundered it, two years successively, in the late wars.

PREMISLAW, E. lon. 21. lat. 49. a city of Poland, in the pr. of Red Russia, sit. 110 m. S. E. of Cracow.

PRESBURG, E. lon. 17. 30. lat. 48. 20. the capital city of Hungary, sit. on the N. side of the Danube, 50 miles E. of Vienna, and 80 m. N. W. of Buda. It is a large well-built city, and stands in a pleasant fruitful country; but is not of any great strength: even the castle, which stands on a neighbouring hill, is fortified after the old way, with round towers, instead of bastions: but here are kept the crown, and other regalia of Hungary.

PRESCOT, a market town of Lancashire, sit. 8 m. E. of Liverpool.

PASSERIANO, E. lon. 15. lat. 41. 22. a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and pr. of Lavoro, sit. 28 m. N. of Naples.

PRESDII, E. lon. 12. lat. 42. 30. This is a small ter. in Italy, on the coast of Tuscany, called, the State del Presidii, or the Garrisons; consisting of several towns, garrisoned by the King of Sicily, who is sovereign of them; of which the chief are Orbitello, Porto Hertole, and Telamon.

PRESSOVIA, or Prossowice, E. lon. 20. lat. 50. a town of Little Poland, sit. on the Vistula, 20 m. E. of Cracow.

PRESTEGION, a market town of Radnorshire, in Wales, sit. 147 miles N. W. of London, and 6 m. N. E. of Radnor.

PRESTON, a borough town in Lancashire, sit. on the river Ribble, 22 miles S. of Lancaster, and 212 N. N. W. of London; sends two members to parl. Here the Malcontents, after a smart engagement, surrendered themselves prisoners, in 1719.

PRESTON-PANS, in Scotland, about 7 m. E. of Edinburgh, where the rebels defeated the King's forces commanded by General Cope, 21st Sept. 1745.

PREVEZA, E. lon. 21. 7. lat. 9. 16. a port town of Albania, or Epirus, sit. on the bay of Larta, at the entrance of the gulph of Venice, 25 m. N. of the island of Cephalonia; sub. to Venice. It stands on the ruins of the ancient Nicopolis, built by the Emperor Augustus, to preserve the memory of his victory over Mark Anthony.

PRIAMAN, E. lon. 98. S. lat. 1. a port town of the island of Sumatra, one of the Sunda islands in Asia, a Dutch factory, 120 miles W. of Jemby.

PRINCE GEORGE, and PRINCE CHARLES, two counties of Virginia, in North America, sit. N. of James river.

PRINCES ISLAND, E. lon. 9. lat. 2. a little island on the W. coast of Africa, 20 m. S. W. of Loango.

PRINCESS ANNE, a co. of Virginia, in America, S. of the mouth of James river.

PRINCIPAT, a pr. of the kingdom of Naples, in Italy, sit. on the sea-coast between the provinces of Lavoura and Calabria, and divided into the Hither and Further Principate. It is about 37 miles in length, and 30 in breadth. Benevento is the capital.

PRISTINA, E. lon. 21. lat. 42. a town of European Turkey, in the pr. of Servia, sit. on the river Ruskia, 70 m. N. E. of Ragusa.

PROCITA, E. lon. 13. 58. lat. 41. a small island on the W. coast of Naples, sit. between the island of Nchia and the continent.

PROIS, E. lon. 94. lat. 19. a town of the kingdom of Ava, in the Further India, in Asia, sit. on the river Monan, 200 m. N. W. of Pegu.

PROPONTIS, or Sea of Marmora, divides Europe from Asia, having the Bosphorus, or strait of Constantinople, on the N. E. by which it has a communication with the Euxine sea; and the Hellespont, or strait of the Dardanelles, on the S. W. by which it has a communication with the Archipelago, or Egean sea. The Propontis is 120 miles long, and, in some places, upwards of 40 broad, but grows narrower at the ends, near either strait. All ships must pass thro' this sea that sail to Constantinople from the Mediterranean. It obtained the name of Marmora, from 4 little islands in it, which contain rocks of marble.

PROVENCE, a pr. or government of France, sit. between 5 and 7 degrees of E. lon. and between 43 and 44 degrees 35 min. N. lat. being 138 miles long, and near 100 broad; bounded by the pr. of Dauphine on the N. by Piedmont and the Mediterranean sea on the E. by the same sea on the S. and by the river Rhone, which separates it from Languedoc on the W. It is mountainous on the N. and E. being separated from Piedmont in Italy by the Alps; but the rest of it, which lies upon the sea and the river Rhone, is a fine level country, producing plenty of wine, oil, and fruit. The manufactures of this pr. are chiefly silks, gold and silver-lace, and linen; and they have a prodigious foreign trade to Italy, Turkey, and Spain, carrying the produce of one country to another, and exporting the produce and manufactures of most of the other provinces of France from Marseilles; but this trade met with great interruption while the British fleet lay upon their coasts in the late war.

PROVIDENCE PLANTATION, W. lon. 70. 36. lat. 41. 30. a colony of New England, which, with Rhode island, constitute a charter government, independent of the Massachusetts, or any other colony of New-England; the chief town Newport. This is a small, but flourishing colony, and inhabited chiefly by Quakers; intermixed, however, with many of the established church; and a missionary is maintained here, to read divine service, and preach to them, by the society for propagation of the gospel.

PROVIDENCE, W. lon. 77. 35. lat. 24. one of the least of the Bahama islands, in the American ocean; but the best planted and fortified by the English; the crown having purchased it of the proprietors, to make it a station for cruisers, being sit. on the E. side of the gulph of Florida, 200 miles E. of the continent of Florida. There are other islands near this, planted by the English, but not fortified; the planters being obliged to retire to Providence, on the approach of an enemy.

PROVIDENCE, W. lon. 81. 30. lat. 18. 45. a small island, of difficult access, in the American sea, sit. 150 m. E. of Nicaragua, and the Mosquito country, which the English Buccaneers formerly fortified and defended against the Spanish guarda-costas, but afterwards abandoned it.

PROVINCES AUSTRIAN AND UNITED. See NETHERLANDS, and UNITED NETHERLANDS.

PROVINS, E. lon. 3. 22. lat. 48. 35. a town of France in the pr. of Champaign, sit. 47 miles S. E. of Paris.

PRUCK, or Brugg, E. lon. 17. 5. lat. 48. 5. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Austria, sit. on the river Leyta, 22 m. S. E. of Vienna.

PRUCK, or Bruch, E. lon. 16. 15. lat. 47. 28. a town of Germany, in the duchy of Stiria, and cir. of Austria, sit. on the river Muer, 60 miles S. W. of Vienna.

PRUSSA. See BURSA.

PRUSSIA, a very fertile country of Europe, bounded on the N. by the Baltic sea; on the E. by Lithuania and Samogitia; on the S. by Poland, and on the W. by Brandenburg, Pomerania, and Cassubia, being about 500 miles in length, and, where narrowest, only 100 in breadth; and is divided into Regal and Ducal Prussia; the Regal Prussia, which lies on the W. being still subject to the crown of Poland; and Ducal Prussia, which is the eastern part of it, subject to the King of Prussia; whose ancestors were first styled Kings about the year 1700, for as the Protestant religion had been introduced into this country by the Margrave Albert, and the Electors of Brandenburg were, at that time, of the same persuasion, the Protestant interest favoured them so much, that Frederic, the son of Frederic-William the Great, Grandfather to the present King, was raised to the dignity of King of Prussia, in a solemn assembly of the States of the Empire, and soon after acknowledged as such by all the powers of Christendom. The chief town of Ducal Prussia is Koningsburg, sit. on the Frischhaff, a bay of the Baltic sea. This country has been subject to the Marquises of Brandenburg upwards of 200 years, and here they are absolute sovereigns, the Poles having acknowledged their independency on that crown in the year 1663, upon condition, however, that upon failure of issue of the Marquis and Elector of Brandenburg, Ducal Prussia should revert to the crown of Poland, and be deemed a fief of that crown. Ducal Prussia is one of the coldest, and most barren countries in Poland; but is well situated for a foreign trade, having several good ports upon the Baltic sea. The King of Prussia's German dominions consisting of Brandenburg, Pomerania, Magdeburg, Halberstat, and Silesia, if he can keep the last, are much more considerable; but they are separated from his Polish dominions by Regal Prussia. Since the beginning of the present century, Prussia has become a most respectable power upon the continent of Europe. The present King, by the assistance of an excellent police, has brought

King of Sweden was defeated, and almost his whole army killed or taken prisoner, he himself, with some few Swedes, escaping over the Boristanes to Bender, in Bessarabia, a pr. of European Turkey, June 27, anno 1709.

PUNA 1812, W. lon. 100. 5. S. lat. 3. 15. an island of South America, sit. in the Pacific ocean, at the entrance of the bay of Guisquil, 120 miles N. of Payta, in Peru; subject to Spain.

PURBECK 1812, the S. E. division of the co. of Dorset, sit. on the English channel.

PURRYBURGH, W. lon. 81. lat. 33. 45. a town of Georgia, in North America, sit. on the river Savannah, 30 miles W. of the mouth of it, 20 W. of the town of Savannah, and 130 S. W. of Charles-Town, built and inhabited by a colony of Swift, carried over thither by Monsieur Purry, at the charge of the English trustees of Georgia; subject to England.

PUY LAURENS, E. lon. 2. 2. lat. 43. 35. a town of France, in the pr. of Languedoc, sit. 70 miles S. W. of Lyons.

PUEZZOLI, the ancient Puteoli, E. lon. 14. 40. lat. 41. 15. in the kingdom of Naples, sit. 9 miles W. of that city, once a town that made a considerable figure, but is now in ruins.

PYRAMIDS OF EGYPT, sit. on the W. side of the river Nile, almost opposite to Grand Cairo, in Africa; the grandest, as well as the most ancient, stone fabrics that remain entire on the face of the earth; the base of the largest pyramid covers more than 11 English acres of ground, and is, according to some, near 700 feet high, though others make it 600, and some a little more than 500 feet high; scarce any two people that have seen it, agree in the dimensions; nor is it certain with what design they were built, by whom, or at what time.

PYRENEAN MOUNTAINS divide France from Spain, and are not inferior to the Alps in height; they extend from the Mediterranean to the ocean, upwards of 200 miles in length, and the greatest breadth is about

about 120; they are well planted with trees, having abundance of good timber on them: there are but five passages over them, all of them extremely difficult; but there are several fine valleys in the middle of them.

PYRMONT, E. lon. 9. lat. 53. capital of the co. of Pyrmont, in Germany, sit. in the circle of Westphalia, on the confines of the duchy of Brunswic, 40 miles S. QUANZA, W. lon. 69. 48. lat. 46. 46. the capital of Canada, in North America, sit. on the W. side of the river of St. Laurence, 300 m. N. W. of Boston. It is built on a rock, partly of marble, and partly of slate. This city is fortified, and defended by a beautiful citadel, in which the Governor resides; and the number of the inhabitants is computed at about 24,000. The English have made two or three unsuccessful attempts to reduce it, and had probably effected it in 1722; but they entered on that expedition too late in the year, and wanted good pilots to carry them up the river of St. Laurence, which occasioned the loss of some transports, and several hundred soldiers. It was taken the 18th of September, 1759, by General Wolfe, who, receiving several wounds in the battle, expired just as troops had obtained a complete victory.

QUEDA, E. lon. 98. 33. lat. 7. a port town of Malacca, in the Further India, in Asia, sit. 300 miles N. of Malacca; subject to the Dutch.

QUEENBOROUGH, a borough town in the isle of Sheppey, in the co. of Kent, sit. 12 m. W. of Canterbury, and 39 m. E. of London; sends two members to parliament.

QUEEN'S COUNTY, in Ireland, bounded by King's County on the N. by the co. of Kildare on the E. by Kilkenny on the S. and by the pr. of Munster on the W. It is 30 miles long, and 29 broad, containing 39 parishes, 8 baronies, 3 boroughs, and sends 2 members to parliament.

QUEEN'S TERRY, W. lon. 3. 20. lat. 55. a town of Scotland, sit. on the S. side of the river Forth, 10 m. W. of Edinburgh.

QUERLINBURG, E. lon. 12. 31. lat. 51. 58. a town of Germany in the circle of Lower Saxony, sit. 8 m. S. E. of Halberstadt, where there is a Protestant monastery, whose abbess is a Princess of the Empire, and sends deputies to the Diet.

RATIBON, or Regensburg, E. lon.
11. 11. lat. 49. a city of Germany,
in the cir. of Bavaria, sit. at the confluence of the rivers Danube and Re-gen, 62 miles N. E. of Munich, and 62 N. W. of Passau. A free imperial city, or sovereign state, large, populous, well-built, pleasantly situated,
surrounded with a double wall, and other fortifications, but too large to be defended without an army, and therefore constantly submits to the power that is master of the field.
Here the Diet, or Assembly of the States of the Empire, usually met till the last reign, when they were prevented by the civil wars. The place where the Diet meets is a large upper room, hung with tapestry; the imperial throne and seats covered with

gold and silver tissue and velvet, suitable to the dignity of the members, who are most of them Princes of the Empire, or their representatives. This city is governed by its own magistrates,
and is not sub. to the Duke of Bavaria,
whose territories surround those of this city. The Lutheran persuasion is established here, only the Popish bishop, (whose see is immediately subject to the Pope, without any metropolitan) has the liberty of saying mass in the cathedral once a week. The city is plentifully supplied with provisions,
their territories furnishing them with corn, cattle, and excellent wine, and they have a brisk trade in time of peace, lying upon the finest navigable river in Europe, which runs thro' the heart of Germany.

RAVENNA, E. lon. 13. 15. lat. 44. 22. a city of Italy, in the Pope's ter. capital of the pr. of Romania, sit. in a flat country, 3 miles W. of the gulph of Venice, 53 E. of Bologna, and 60 N. E. of Florence, being encompassed by two small rivers. Its ancient situation resembled that of Venice, being built on several islands, and it was then esteemed one of the best harbours the Romans had; but the sea is now retired above 3 miles from it, and that which was formerly a lake, is now a fine fruitful field. This city was the residence of many Gothic Kings, and afterwards the capital of the eastern Emperors dominions in Italy, where their Exarchs, or Viceroy, resided, Pepin, King of France, who subdued this country, gave Ravenna, with most of the territories which belonged to the eastern Emperors in Italy, to the Pope, who still remains in possession of them. The soil about this city, which has been made by the sea, is so agreeable to vines, that they grow to an incredible size. This city is still the see of an archbishop, but is not considerable, at present, either for its building, traffic, or strength.

RHODES, E. lon. 28. 25. lat. between 36 and 37. an island of Asiatic Turkey, sit. in the Mediterranean, 20 miles S. W. of the continent of the Lesser Asia, 70 m. N. of the island of Candia, being about 40 m. long, and 15 broad. It produces plenty of good wine and fruit, and every thing else that can render life agreeable, except corn, which they are obliged to fetch from the neighbouring continent.

RHODES CITY, cap. of the island of Rhodes, sit. on the N. E. coast of the island, having a secure and commodious harbour. The town is about 3 m. in circumference, elegantly built by the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, who were in possession of it 200 years. It is defended by three walls, and as many moats, with other works, which render it one of the strongest fortresses in the Grand Seignior's dominions; and hither he usually sends prisoners of state. The inhabitants consist of Turks, Jews, and Christians; but the Christians are not suffered to remain within the walls, in the night time. At the mouth of the harbour of Rhodes, which is 50 fathoms wide; stood the colossus of brass, esteemed one of the wonders of the world, one foot being placed on one side of the harbour, and the other foot on the other side, so that ships passed between its legs. The face of the colossus represented the sun, to whom this image was dedicated. The height of it was 70 cubits (about 33 yards) and it held in one hand a light-house for the direction of mariners. The Rhodians were once the most considerable maritime power in the Mediterranean, and instituted laws for the regulation of navigation and commerce,

merce, called the Rhodian laws, by which maritime causes were decided in all the provinces of the Roman Empire. The Knights of St. John of Jerusalem being obliged to retire
from Palestine, invaded this island,
and took it from the Turks, in the year 1309, and defended it against all the power of that Empire, 'till the year 1522, when, being obliged to abandon it to a superior force,
the Emperor afterwards conferred the island of Malta on the Knights, of which they remain in possession, tho'
the Turks have made great efforts to dispose of it.

RHODNE, one of the largest rivers in France, rises in mount Fourche, one of the Alps in Switzerland, and running W. thro' the country called the Valais, divides it into two parts, then passing thro' the lake of Geneva, visits
that city, from whence it runs S. W.
to Lyons in France, where, joining the river Soane, it continues its course due S. passing by Orange, Avignon, and Arles, falls into the Mediterranean to the westward of Marseilles. There are several tataracts in the upper part of the river, so that it is not navigable till 4 or 5 leagues below Geneva, and it runs afterwards with that impetuous force, that it is very difficult getting vessels up the stream.

RIBBLE, a river which rises in the West-riding of Yorkshire, runs S. W.

ROCHESTER, E. lon. 34 min. lat.
51. 24. a city of Keat. sit. on the river Medway, 30 miles S. E. by E. of London, and 27 N. W. by W. of Canterbury. The bridge over the Medway makes a grand appearance,
there being an iron pallisade along the walls, the whole length of it. The tide seems to run with a much greater force thro' this bridge than thro' London bridge. This city sends two members to parl. and is the see of a bishop.
It formerly gave title of Earl to the family of Wilmot, and since to that of Hyde, now extinct.

ROCHOUET, W. lon. 1. lat. 46.
a port town of France, in the pr. of Guienne, and ter. of Aunis, sit. near the mouth of the river Charente, 23
m. S. of Rochelle. It is a fine large town, built by the late King Lewis XIV. and made one of the stations of the royal navy of France, having a commodious harbour, well secured by forts and batteries of guns. In Sept.
1758, a fleet consisting of 28 sail, 18
of which are of the line, were sent from England, with a design to destroy this harbour and the shipping, but by the great care of the General of the forces they returned safe, with the loss of only one man, without taking the cowardly advantage of attacking a defenceless enemy.

ROMANIA, or Romagna, a pr. of the Pope's ter. in Italy, including the Bolognese, and Ferrarese, is bounded by the ter. of Venice on the N. by the gulph of Venice on the E, by the duchy of Tuscany, and the pr. of Urbino on the S. and by Modena and Mantua on the W. being 80 miles in length, and almost as much in breadth, and is sub-divided into 1. Romania Proper; 2. The Bolognese; and 3. The Ferrarese; a temperate climate, and an exceeding pleasant fruitful country, but the Ferrarese is unhealthy.

ROMANIA, the ancient Thrace, a pr. of European Turkey, is bounded by mount Argemum, or Rhodope, anciently called Hamus, which separates it from Bulgaria, on the N. by the Euxine sea and the Bosphorus, or Strait of Constantinople, on the E. by the Propontis, or Sea of Marmora, and the Archipelago on the S. and by another branch of mount Rhodope, which separates it from Macedonia, on the W. being near 300 miles long, and 150 broad. It is a fruitful country, abounding in good arable and pasture ground, but produces scarce any wine, and the mountains, which divide it from Bulgaria and Macedonia, are exceeding cold and barren; but then they are of such difficult access that no country is better defended naturally than this, being encompassed by the sea on the S. E. as it is by these mountains on the N. W. so that should the Turks be driven out of Servia and Bulgaria by the Christians, it would be difficult to penetrate farther into the Turkish empire.

ROMANI, E. lon. 5. 7. lat. 45. 6. a town of France, in the pr. of Dauphine, sit. on the river Isere, 25 miles S. W. of Grenoble.

ROME, the capital of the Pope's territories, and of Italy, is sit. in 13 degrees E. lon. and 41 degrees 34 min. N. lat. 140 miles N. W. of Naples, and 140 S. of Florence, standing on the river Tiber, about 26 miles N. E. of the Tuscan sea, the walls about 12 miles in circumference, as they were in the time of the Romans, but not a third part of the ground within the walls is now built upon; the rest is taken up with vineyards and gardens; the inhabitants are computed to amount to 150,000 souls. There are five bridges over the river, 28 gates, and 300 antique towers, still remaining; the castle of St. Angelo is a modern fortification, but of no great strength, and serves rather to keep the inhabitants in awe, than to defend them against foreign enemies. Modern Rome stands 14 or 15 feet higher than the old city, being built on the ruins of the former, and is much more upon a level than the old city was, great part of the hills being washed down into the valleys, inasmuch that the Tarpeian rock, which was once a terrible precipice, from whence malefactors were thrown, is not now more than 20 feet high. The city is generally magnificently built, the streets are spacious, and adorned with 300 fine churches, and a vast number of palaces and convents, and the triumphal arches, pillars, obelisks, statues and fountains, are no small addition to its beauty; but then there are other streets as meanly built as in any town whatever. St. Peter's church is said to be the largest in all Christendom, and is incruited, within and without, with marble; but the greatest curiosities in Rome, are the ancient theatres and amphitheatres, Pagan temples, triumphal arches, baths, aqueducts, fountains, catacombs, obelisks, cirques, sepulchres, bridges, churches, palaces, statues, paintings, piazzas, colleges, and hospitals. The people of this city are said to be more obliging than in any town of Europe, and that an universal civility reigns here. The city is extremely well supplied with water, by their noble aqueducts and fountains, and there is great plenty of all manner of provisions, as corn, flesh, fish, fowl, and fruits, and the greatest variety of wines that are to be met with any where. There is nothing very particular in the Pope's temporal government at Rome. Like other Princes, he has his guards, or shirri, who take ROTHSAY, W. lon. 1. lat. 55. 50. a borough-town of Scotland, sit. in the isle of Bute, 70 m. W. of Edinburgh.

ROTHWELL, or ROWELL, a market-town in Northamptonshire, 14 miles N. of Northampton.

ROTING, E. lon. 9. 50. lat. 49. 30. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Franconia, sit. on the river Tauber, 20 m. S. of Wurtzburg.

ROTTERDAM, E. lon. 4. 20. lat. 52. a city of the United Provinces, in the pr. of Holland, sit. on the N. bank of the river Maes, 30 m. S. of Amsterdam, and 13 m. S. E. of the Hague. It is a large populous city, and much more conveniently sit. for trade than Amsterdam: the canals which run through the city bringing ships up to their doors; and the Maes is much sooner free from ice than the Wye at Amsterdam; on which account the British merchants resort to this port more than to the other. Here the English and Scotch have each of them a church of their respective persuasions, and there are four Dutch churches besides. Erasmus was born here.

ROTWEIL, E. lon. 8. 44. lat. 48. 5. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Suabia, sit. on the river Neckar, 40 m. S. W. of Stuttgart.

ROUEN, E. lon. 1. 10. lat. 49. 26. a city of France, capital of the pr. of Normandy, sit. on the N. side of the river Seine, 70 m. N. W. of Paris, and 45 S. E. of Havre de Grace and the British channel. The city is not large, but populous, containing 60,000 souls. It is advantageously situated for trade, and held to be the center of trade in N. France. It is the see of an archb. has a parliament, a mint, a college, an academy, two abbeys, and a castle. It is 7 m. in circumference, contains 35 parishes, and 24 convents. One of the greatest curiosities in this city is the bridge over the Seine, 270 paces in length, supported by boats, and hence is higher or lower according to the tide.

ROVEREDO, E. lon. 11. 1. lat. 46. 12. a town of the bish. of Trent, between Italy and Germany, sit. on the E. side of the river Adige, 10 m. S. of Trent.

ROVERONE, the S. E. division of the pr. of Guienne in France.

ROVIGO, E. lon. 12. lat. 45. 4. 2 town of Italy, in the ter. of Venice, capital of the Polesin de Rovigo, sit. 21 m. S. of Padua.

ROUSELART, E. lon. 3. 5. lat. 51. a town of the Netherlands, in the pr. of Flanders, sit. 10 m. N. E. of Ypres, and 20 m. S. E. of Ostend.

ROUSILLON, formerly a pr. of Spain, now united to France, is bounded by Languedoc on the N. by the Mediterranean sea on the E. by Catalonia on the S. and by the Pyrenean mountains on the W. being about 50 m. long and 30 m. broad, consisting of one large plain, surrounded by mountains on three sides, and on the fourth by the sea, and produces plenty of corn and wine, and some good pasture; but their olives are the r greatest riches; they have great plenty of oranges and lemons, but scarce any wood in the country. They have very little trade by sea, having no harbour, and a dangerous coast. The capital city is Perpignan, which with the whole pr. was relinquished to the French by the Spaniards, at the Pyrenean treaty, anno 1659.

ROXBURGH. See TIVIODALE, in Scotland.

ROXENT CAPE, or ROCK of Lisbon, W. lon. 9. 25. lat. 38. 50. a mountain and remarkable promontory in Portugal, sit. in the Atlantic ocean, at the N. entrance of the river Tagus, 22 miles W. of Lisbon.

from whom, it is conjectured by some, that the town receives its name. It is situated under the mar-sides of the chapel, or cave, and is of the form of a sugar-loaf, and entered at the top by a ladder.

RUSSIA, sometimes called Mus-covy, a great Empire, partly in Asia, and partly in Europe, comprehending great part of the continent of both, and extending from 24 to 130 degrees of E. lon. and between

45 and 72 deg. of N. lat. This Empire is bound'd on the N. by the Frozen Ocean. on the E. by the Pacific Ocean and China; on the S. by Great Tartary, the Caspian Sea, and Persia; and on the W. by Poland and Sweden. The whole together with the late conquests extending in length from E. to W. upwards of 3000 miles; and in breadth from N. to S. near 2000 miles. But, as the knowledge the public has of this Empire, is but lately acquired, and is still doubtful, it is very difficult to fix even the limits between the European and Asiatic Russia. Finland, Livonia, and Ingria, have been conquered from Sweden since the year 1700. The Zimnopus mountains, which lie in European Russia, are imagined to be the famous Montes Riphæi of the Ancients. The Russian seas are, the Baltic, the White-sea, the Frozen Ocean, the Black-sea near the frontiers of Turkey, and the Caspian sea. The principal rivers are, the Wolga, the Don, or Tanais, the Dnie, the Oby, and the Nieper, or Boristhenes. The Wolga, which is the most considerable of these, is reckoned the largest river of Europe. It rises at the lake of Urano, near the frontiers of Lithuania, and begins to be navigable about six miles below its spring, and after traversing the greatest part of Muscovy, and winding a course of upwards of 2000 miles, discharges itself into the Caspian sea; producing all kinds of fish, and fertilizing all the lands on each side with the richest trees, fruits, and vegetables. The Don, or Tanais, divides the most Eastern part of Russia from Asia, and discharges itself into the Palus Meotis, after a course of 400 miles. The Boristhenes runs through Lithuania, the country of the Zaporog Cossacks, and that of the Nagaisch Tartars, and falls into the Euxine sea, near Ocsakow, and has thirteen cataracts, all within a small distance of one another.

Russia, is in general, a flat, level

country. In the Southern parts, the longest day does not exceed 15 hours and a half; but in the Northern parts, the sun is seen, in summer, two months above the horizon. Hence there is a great diversity of soil, as well as climate, the extremes of both being seen and felt in this vast Empire. The snow is the natural manure of Russia, where grain grows in plenty, near Poland, and in the warmer provinces; but the inhabitants, till very lately, were but little acquainted with agriculture. Peter the Great, and his successors, down to the present Emperor, have been at great pains to introduce the arts of agriculture into their dominions; and though the soil is not every where proper for corn, the fertility of some of the provinces is sufficient to supply the rest with grain, to which the vast communications, by means of rivers, must contribute greatly.

Many of the Tartars, who inhabit large portions of the Russian dominions, now live in fixed houses and villages, cultivate the land, and pay tribute like other subjects; and of late have been admitted into the Russian armies, where they make excellent soldiers. The Cossacks, who now make a considerable figure in the Military History of Europe, were originally Polish peasants, and served in the Ukraine as a militia against the Tartars, but being oppressed by their unfeeling lords, some of them first removed to the uncultivated banks of the Don, and there established a colony. They were soon after joined, in 1637, by other detachments of their countrymen; and, after reducing Asoph, when they were compelled to abandon it to the Turks, they put themselves under the protection of the Russians, but they were little better than nominal subjects till the time of Peter the Great. In the year 1654, the rest of the Cossacks of the Ukraine, finding the Russian yoke easier than that of the Poles, joined the former emigrants, emigrants, and became under the protection of Russia.

The Russians, properly so called, were formerly barbarous and ignorant, mean, and addicted to indolence and drunkenness; but the severity of Peter the Great, and the prudence of succeeding governments, have rendered the court and cities of Russia, as to manners and customs, pretty much the same with those of other European countries. In their persons, the Russians of all denominations are hardy, vigorous, and patient of labour, especially in the field, to an incredible degree. Their officers and soldiers always possessed a large share of passive valour; but, in the late war with the King of Prussia, they proved as active as any troops in Europe. — Nothing can be more injudicious or remote from truth, than the accounts of divers authors, concerning the population of this great Empire; but those who have made a calculation of the inhabitants, on the most authentic grounds, compute them to exceed twenty-four millions; and there is the strongest reason to believe, that the Russian dominions must have been better peopled formerly than they are at present, twenty-four millions being but a thin population for the immense tracks of country the Russian Empire comprehends.

Nothing can be said with certainty concerning the revenues of this vast Empire; but they are more considerable of late than heretofore; owing to the vast exertions for promoting industry, even by the present Emperors. Few have computed the amount of the whole at more than four millions sterling annually. But when this sum is considered relatively, that is, according to the high value of money in that Empire, compared to its low value in Great Britain, it will be found to be a very considerable revenue. And that it is so, must be evident, by the vast armies and navy maintained by the present Emperors; the number and discipline of which, are, at least, equal to those of her greatest predecessors. Her court is also elegant and magnificent; her guards and attendants splendid; and the encouragement she gives to learning, the improvement of arts, and useful discoveries, costs her very considerable sums, exclusive of the ordinary expences of the state. The Clergy are taxed in Russia, but the pecuniary revenues of the crown arise principally from taxes upon estates, bagnior, bees, mills, fisheries, and numberless other particulars.

By the best and surest information, the annual exports of Russia, at present, amount to four millions of rubles, (4 s. 6 d. each) and her imports do not exceed three millions, so that the balance of trade is yearly two hundred and twenty-five thousand pounds sterling in her favour; but this calculation is subject to such uncertainties as time alone can remove, arising from Russia's commercial connections with Great Britain, from whom the very lately gained the greatest part of that balance. The principal productions and exports of Russia, are, furs, peltry of various kinds, red leather, linen and thread, iron, copper, sail-cloth, hemp and flax, pitch and tar, wax, honey, tallow, ising-glass, linseed-oil, pot-ash, soap, feathers, train-oil, hogs bristles, musk, rhubarb, and other drugs, timber, and also raw silk from China and Persia. Her foreign commerce, with the rest of Europe, is greatly encreased since her conquests from Sweden, especially of Livonia and Ingria; and since the establishing her new emporium of Petersburg, whereby her naval intercourse with the rest of Europe is made much more short and easy; the number of foreign ships trading to it in the Summer time being incredible. The city of Moscow was formerly the glory of this great Empire; but Petersburg now takes the lead.

The constitution and laws of Russia, like those of other arbitrary governments, rest in the breast of the sovereign. The Russian monarchy is hereditary, but after a particular mode;

for

for the Senate, and the great Lords, make themselves judges of the proximity of blood in their sovereigns, as may be seen in their history. The present Empress, who now reigns by the title of Catharine III. was raised to the throne, by being wife to the Emperor, and mother of his son. In the year 1768, she assembled deputies from all districts and provinces of her dominions, so as to form, in effect, a Russian Parliament, for the forming a new code of laws; for which purpose, when they were met, they were presented with infractions which contained her ideas of distributive justice, and which do honour to her political and personal virtues. The code which was drawn up, has not yet been published, at least to the rest of Europe; but there can be no doubt that it is highly worthy of its imperial patroness.—The distinctions of rank, form a considerable part of the constitution of Russia. A Senate, composed of the most respectable members of the Empire, still subsists in Russia; but though the Empress treats the institution with the highest regard and deference, and submits the greatest concerns of her Empire to their deliberation, yet they are no better than her Privy-council, and they seldom give her any advice, but such as is conformable to her pleasure.

The established religion of Russia is that of the Greek Church; the tenets of which are too numerous to be mentioned in a work of this sort. They deny the supremacy of the Pope, and disclaim image-worship, yet they retain many idolatrous and superstitious customs. They oblige their bishops, but not their Priests to celibacy. The conquered provinces retain the exercise of their own religion; but such is the extent of the Russian Empire, that many of its subjects are Mohammedans, and more of them no better than Pagans, in Siberia, and the uncultivated countries. The punishments of Russia are various and severe, and are not only inflicted, but endured with wonderful insensibility. The single and double knoute, were, 'till lately, inflicted upon ladies, as well as men of quality. Both of them are excruciating; but the double knoute has been so often fatal, that a surgeon generally attends the patient to pronounce the moment that it should cease. The boring and cutting out of the tongue, are likewise practised in Russia. The late Empress, Elizabeth, made a law (but it only bound herself) that she would suffer no capital punishments to be inflicted in her reign. Were not the fact undoubted, posterity could not believe, that one of the most extensive governments in the world could subsist in peace and tranquility within itself, under such an exception of justice. But the truth is, the dreadful punishments incurred by delinquents, though not capital, were sufficient to deter them; for even the humane Elizabeth, was forced to give way to the necessity of those tortures. However, since the time of Peter the Great, the virtues of the sovereigns of Russia, have supplied the deficiency of their laws. The history of the rise and progress of the Russian Empire, is well worthy the notice of the curious, but as it would far exceed the bounds prescribed to this work, we are constrained from entering upon it.

The internal tranquility of Poland, has long been a capital object with Russia, as appears from the great concern the present Empress took in raising that King to the throne, and in securing the rights which the treaty of Oliva had given to the Greek and Protestant subjects of the Polish Republic. The umbrage which her armies gave to the Roman Catholic Poles, by their residence in Poland, produced first a civil war, and then confederacies against all that had been done during the late election, which rendered the greatest part of the kingdom a scene of blood and confusion. availed itself of the occasion; they imprisoned, contrary to the laws of nations, the Russian minister at the Porte, declared war against Russia, and marched 500,000 troops to the confines of Poland and Russia; the event of which not being yet finally settled, cannot have a place here. The orders of knighthood in Russia are three, St. Andrew, St. Catharine, and St. Alexander Newski, which are all of late institution.

RUTHYN, a market town of Denbighshire, in N. Wales, sit. 183 miles N. W. of London.

RUTLAND, the least co. of England, being only 15 miles in length, and 11 in breadth, is bounded by Lincoln on the N. E. by Northampton on the S. E. and by Leicester on the W. and N. RYE, a borough and cinque port of Suffex, sit. on a bay of the E. channel, 64 m. S. E. by S. of London; sends two barons to parl. This town lies almost opposite to Boulogne in France, but the mouth of it is choaked up with sand, and tho' they have had acts of parliament to clear it, or make another entrance, they make but slow progress in the work, not having a sufficient fund. It is pity they are not better assisted by the government, this harbour lying more convenient than any we have upon the coast, for the security of our merchant-ships, and a station for our cruisers, whenever we are at war with France.

sit. on the bay of Biscay, 90 m. W.
of Bilbao.

SANTORINI, E. lon. 25. 58. lat.
39. 10. an island of the Archipelago,
sit. 40 miles S. E. of Molos, and 20
S. W. of Mergo, being 35 m. in circumference. The whole island seems to be a pumice-stone rock, covered over with a foot of vegetable earth, and was raised out of the sea by a vulcano, as were 2 or 3 other small islands near it. It produces corn, wine and cotton. They preserve the min-writer in cisterns, having but one spring in the island. The inhabitants are all Greeks, of whom it is computed there are about 10,000;
a Turkish officer visits them once a year, to collect the Gra. Isignor's tribute, and to see that justice is duly administered by the natives, who are allowed to chuse their own magistrates;

Pyrgos is the capital town.

SAONE, a river of France, which rises in Lorrain, runs S. thro' Burgundy, passing by Gray, Chalons, and Macon, falls into the Rhone at Lyons.

SAPIENZA, E. lon. 21. 25. lat.

SAQUEM, E. lon. 38. 30. lat. 19.
a port town, sit. on the Red Sea, in the pr. of Abex in Africa; subject to Turkey, 259 m. W. of Mecca.

SAR, a river of Germany, which rises in Alsace, and running N. enters Lorrain, passing by Saraben, Sarbrue,
and Sarburg, falling into the Moselle,
a little above Triers.

SARACENS, the inhabitants of Arabia, Sara signifying a desert; in their language, as the greatest part of Arabia is: and this being the country of Mahomet, his disciples were called Saracens, who made a conquest of a great part of Asia, Africa, and Europe, within 40 years
after his death, and were sovereigns
of Spain several hundred years.

SARAGOSSA, W. lon. 1. lat. 42.
a city of Spain, capital of the pr. of Aragon, sit. at the confluence of the rivers Ebro, Gallego, and Guerva, about 150 miles N. E. of Madrid, and 137 W. of Barcelona; a large well-built city, surrounded by an old wall,
and other antique fortifications. The greatest curiosity here, is an image of the Blessed Virgin on a pillar of jasper, in the church of Neustra Signora
del Pilar, which, according to tradition, is the same she left here when she appeared to St. James, the apostle of the Spaniards, to support him in the conversion of the natives: she has a little Christ in her arms, and her robes and crown are covered with precious stones; angels of silver are placed

placed round her, holding flambeaux in their hands; besides which, are fifty silver lamps, to illuminate the chapel where the image stands, all day-light being shut out: and hither multitudes of pilgrims annually come to perform their devotions to our Lady of the Pillar, as she is called from the pillar the image stands on. Saragossa submitted to King Charles, the late Emperor of Germany, anno 1706; but was obliged to surrender to Philip, the late King of Spain, after the battle of Almanza, anno 1707. King Charles obtaining a victory over King Philip near Saragossa, anno 1710, entered this city in triumph the same evening. But a body of the English forces being surprised soon after at Brihuega, and made prisoners, King Charles was again obliged to leave the unhappy citizens of Saragossa to the mercy of their enemies, and retire into Catalonia. Whereupon Philip took a full revenge on those who had appeared in the interest of his rival King Charles. This city is adorned with many magnificent buildings, besides 17 churches, 4 gates, and 14 monasteries. It is said to be built by the Phenicians, and the Romans sent a colony here in the reign of the Emperor Augustus, whence it had the name of Cæsar Augustus, which by corruption has been changed into Saragossa. It is the see of an archbishop, has an university, a court of inquisition, and a royal audience.

SARATOS, E. lon. 49. 25. lat. 52. 4. a town of Asiatic Russia, sit. on the river Wolga, 220 m. S. of Kasan, and 300 N.W. of Astracan.

SARBRUC, E. lon. 7. 9. lat. 49. a town of Germany, in the pal. of the Rhine, sit. on the river Sare, 15 m. W. of Deuxponts.

SARBURG, E. lon. 6. 40. lat. 49. 35. a town of Germany, in the circle of the Lower Rhine, and electorate of Trier, sit. 3 m. S. of Trier.

SARDAM, E. lon. 4. 50. lat. 52. 28. a port town of Holland, sit. on the N. side of the Wye, 7 m. N. W.

of Amsterdam, where are the greatest magazines of ship-timber and naval stores in the world, and a great number of shipwrights.

SARDINIA, an island of the Mediterranean, sit. between 8 and 10 degrees of E. lon. and between 39 and 41 degrees of N. lat. bounded by the strait which divides it from Corsica on the N. by the Tuscan sea, which flows between this island and Italy on the E. and by other parts of the Mediterranean sea on the S. and W. and is about 160 miles long from N. to S. and 80 broad from E. to W. a warm country, but not esteemed very healthful. There is a pleasing variety of hills and valleys in this island, and the soil is generally fruitful, producing corn, wine, and oil in abundance, where it is manured; but the natives are a slothful generation, and cultivate little of it; nor do they seem better disposed for trade than husbandry, though they are very well situated for foreign traffic; it was under the dominion of Spain 'till the year 1708, when Sir John Leake, the English admiral, reduced it to the obedience of the late Emperor Charles VI. It was afterwards allotted to the Duke of Savoy, anno 1719, with the title of King of Sardinia; but the Duke was obliged to make a cession to the house of Austria of the island of Sicily, to which throne he had been advanced by the parties to the treaty of Utrecht, anno 1713. The Duke reigned sovereign of Sardinia 'till the beginning of the year 1773, when he died, and was succeeded by Victor Amadeus Maria, Prince of Piedmont, and Duke of Savoy, his Majesty's eldest son by his second marriage. Sardinia lies about 150 miles W. of Leghorn. The revenues from this island do not amount to more than 5000 l. per ann.

SARDIS, or Sardo, E. lon. 28. lat. 37. 45. an ancient city, capital of Lydia, in the Lesser Asia, 40 miles E. of Smyrna, now in ruins. It was once the seat of the famous King Croesus.

SAVONA, E. lon. 8. 27. lat. 44. 20. a port town of the ter. of Genoa, sit. on the bay of Genoa, 25 m. S. W. of the city of Genoa. It was taken by the King of Sardinia in 1746, to whom it is still subject.

SAVOY DUCHY, is sit. between France and Italy, on the W. side of the Alps, bounded by the lake and ter. of Geneva on the N. by Switzerland and Piedmont on the E. by another part of Piedmont and Dauphine on the S. and by Franche Comte and Dauphine on the W. It is 83 m. in length, and 67 in breadth, though a barren country, generally being uncumbered with the high cold mountains of the Alps; however, there are some pleasant, fruitful valleys, producing corn, wine, and fruit; and they have large herds of cattle, and abundance of game, venison, and wild fowl, in their mountains, and plenty of fish in their lakes and rivers. Their greatest misfortune is, that they lie open to the incursions of the French; and whenever their prince is at war with that kingdom, Savoy is first made sensible of the ravages vages of the French troops, and used as a conquered country, though upon every treaty of peace it has hitherto been restored to the Duke of Savoy, at present King of Sardinia.

SCHWATZ, or Schwartz, E. lon. 11. 50. lat. 47. 20. a town of Germany, in the co. of Tirol, sit. on the river Inn, 10 m. N. E. of Inspruc; near it are silver mines: sub. to the house of Austria.

SCHWEIDNITZ, E. lon. 16. 48. lat. 50. 47. a town of the kingdom of Bohemia, in the duchy of Silesia, cap. of a duchy of the same name, sit. 26 m. S. of Breslaw, after which, it is the handsomest town of Silesia. It was ceded to the King of Prussia in 1742. In November 1757, it was taken by the Austrians; but was besieged by the Prussians in March 1758, to whom it was surrendered the 16th of April following. And on the 1st of October 1761, it was taken again by the Austrians; but retaken, after a very obstinate siege, by the King of Prussia, on the 9th of October 1762.

SCHWEINFURT, E. lon. 10. 25. lat. 50. 5. a city of Germany, in the cir. of Franconia, and bishopric of Wurtzburg, sit. on the river Maine, 35 m. N. of Wurtzburg, an imperial city, or sovereign state.

SCILLY, W. lon. 7. lat. 50. a cluster of islands and rocks, sit. in the Atlantic ocean, 30 miles W. of Cornwall, the most westerly co. of England, dangerous to be approached by strangers on account of the hidden rocks, which have been very fatal to many ships of our own nation on their return home, particularly Admiral Shovel, with four men of war, were cast away here on October 22, 1707, in the night-time, in their return from the Mediterranean, and the siege of Toulon, there being near 1000 people on board the Admiral's ship, several of them gentlemen of quality, both of Spain and England. There is, however, a safe passage to these islands, where ships are furnished with pilots from the place, and there are some secure harbours in them, large enough to receive the royal navy. St. Mary's is the largest and most cultivated. The light-house, which stands on high land, is 51 feet high, and the gallery four feet.

SCIO, E. lon. 27. 39. lat. 39. an island of Turkey, in the Archipelago. See CHIOS.

SCIRO, E. lon. 25. lat. 38. 15. an island of Turkey, in the Archipelago, sit. N. E. of Negropont, from which it is separated by a channel 20 m. broad. This island was called Skiros from the ruggedness of its surface, being full of rocks.

SLAVONIA, including Ratsia, is bounded by the rivers Drave and Danube, which separate it from Hungary, on the N. E. by the river Save, which divides it from the Turkish provinces of Servia and Bosnia, on the S. W. and by Croatia and the co. of Cilley on the W. being 300 m. long, and 75 broad, a fine level, fruitful country, where it is cultivated, but having been, for many years, a frontier province against Turkey, and subject to the ravages of the Christian as well as Turkish armies, it has produced but little corn or wine; the chief town is Pofega, which, with the whole country, is subject to the house of Austria; the people a mixture of Greek and Latin Christians. The Ratsians inhabit the eastern division of this country.

SCONZ, or Scoon, W. lon. 3. 15. lat. 56. 28. a town of Scotland, in the co. of Perth, sit. on the river Tay, 30 miles N. of Edinburgh. Here the Kings of Scotland were usually crowned.

SCOPIA, or Uscopia, E. lon. 22. 15. lat. 42. 20. a town of European Turkey, in the pr. of Servia, sit. near the foot of mount Rhodope, on the river Morava, 70 m. S. of Nissa.

SCOTLAND, exclusive of the islands, is sit. between 1 and 6 degrees of W. lon. and between 54. 30. and 59. 30. N. lat. bounded by the Northern or Caledonian ocean on the N. by the German ocean on the E. by England and Solway Frith on the S. and by the Irish sea and the Atlantic ocean on the W. being 380 miles in length, from N. to S. and from 50 to 190 in breadth, from E. to W. being indented, and almost cut thro' in many places, by bays of the sea, and consequently abounding in excellent harbours. It contains an area of 27,794 miles, and this is divided into 33 shires, which are subdivided into counties, sherifdoms, stewardies, and baliwicks, according to the ancient tenures and privileges of the landholders. Scotland is separated from England by the Tweed; but since the union, both kingdoms make but one nation. All religions are tolerated in Scotland, or, however, connived at, but the established religion of the country is the Presbyterian. The country is great part of it mountainous, and barren towards the N. but there are several rich valleys in the S. abounding in corn and cattle; but both their horses and neat cattle are small; many of the latter they drive to the S. of England, and sell them lean. And though their soil is not the most fruitful, yet are they, in some respects, better situated than England, particularly as to the herring-fishery, which they have greatly improved of late years, and bid fair to emulate, if not to excel, the Dutch themselves, in curing, as well as catching, their fish. Nor are the fisheries of Scotland confined to their own coast as heretofore; for they have a vast concern in the whale-fishery carried on upon the coast of Spitzbergen. In short, their improvements in their fisheries, and numerous manufactures, which are daily encreasing, will open inexhaustible funds of wealth, when time has brought them to maturity; and, though they endeavour to rival the English, they never should give umbrage, as the interests of the two people are, or ought to be, the same; but there seems to be an unlucky maxim prevailing, viz. That it is the interest of England to keep Scotland, and Ireland low; whereas, if they abounded in wealth, they would bear a share in the expences of the government, and contribute to enrich England by the constant resort of their great men to the metropolis. The trade carried on by the Scots with England, is chiefly from Leith, and the eastern ports of the nation; but Glasgow is the great emporium for the American commerce. The exports from Scotland to England, and the British plantations, exclusive of their home consumption, amounted, some time since, to near 500,000 l. annually; and there is reason to believe that their home consumption is considerably larger at present. The population of Scotland is generally fixed at about a million and a half of souls; but this calculation falls greatly short of an estimate formed the beginning of the late war, when the number of soldiers, furnished by Scotland, was about 80,000; so that it is more than probable the number of inhabitants amounts to more than two millions and a half. A general view of the laws and constitution of Scotland, would far exceed the bounds of this work, and therefore must be omitted. Edinburgh is the capital city.

SEVILLE, W. lon. 6. lat. 37. a rich and populous city of Spain, cap. of the pr. of Andalusia, sit. on the river Guadalquivir, 50 miles N. E. of the port town of St. Lucar, 70 N.E. of Cadiz, and upwards of 200 S. W. of Madrid; the city is of a circular form, about 8 miles in circumference, encompassed with an old wall and antique towers, the streets narrow, but well built, the inhabitants computed at three hundred thousand; it is the see of an archbishop, whose revenues amount to 30,000 l. sterl. per ann. no town abounded more in wealth than this, in the last age, when all the treasures of America were brought hither; but the city of Cadiz, where the galleons rendezvous at present, comes in now for a share of this traffic, which has greatly decreased its riches, and popularity. The situation of this town on a fine river, and in one of the most beautiful and extensive plains in Europe, renders it a very desirable abode, especially as their evenings are usually serene, and invite all people to take the fresh air in the neighbouring fields and gardens, which abound in a variety of fine flowers and fruits in almost every season of the year. It was the seat of the Gothic Kings, and afterwards the capital of the most considerable Moorish Kings; and the cathedral was originally a Moorish mosque and is still one of the most magnificent structures in Spain. Seville is the largest city in Spain, except Madrid.

SIAM, a kingdom comprehending the greatest part of the Further Peninsula of India in Asia, viz. 1. Siam Proper, 2. Cambodia, 3. Laos, and 4. Malacca; extends from the 1st to the 25th degree of N. lat. and lies between 98 and 104 degrees of E. lon. being bounded by the kingdoms of Ava and Tipra on the N. by Tonquin and Cochinchina, and the bay of Siam on the E. by the Indian ocean and the straits of Malacca on the S. and by the bay of Bengal on the W. being upwards of 2000 miles in length from N. to S. and from 100 to 200 broad. The inhabitants of Siam Proper, are more modest and better civilised than in any of the other divisions of this great kingdom; and this probably is owing to the great care taken in the education of their children. Notwithstanding the romantic accounts of different travellers respecting the great popularity of this country, it is but indifferently peopled. The government is excessive despotic, even servants must appear before their masters in a kneeling posture, and the Mandarines are prostrated before the King. Siam is the capital, which was once a very large city, but as scarcely a sixth part of it has been inhabited for some time, part of it is now in ruins. Bangkok is the only place towards the coast that is fortified, and is situated about 50 m. from Siam, and 12 from the sea. The Dutch have a factory at Ligor, which stands on the E. side of the peninsula of Malacca, but it belongs to Siam, Cambodia, is only inhabited on the banks of the spacious river that runs thro' it, on account of its sultry air, and the pestiferous gnats, serpents, and other animals which breed in the woods. Of Laos we know but few particulars that can be depended upon. It is said to be immensely populous, and to abound in all the rich commodities of the E. The peninsula of Malacca is an extensive country, and contains several provinces; the Dutch, however, are in possession of the capital, Malacca. The inhabitants of these parts are brutish, and yet the Malayan language is reckoned the purest of any spoken in all the Indies. The excellent situation of this country admits of a trade with India, which induced the Dutch to expel the Portuguese, who were once in possession of it for, in fact, it is the key of China, the Japan, the Moluccar and the Sunda trade; and the degeneracy of the Malays may probably be attributed to the tyranny of the Dutch, whose interest it is to keep them in ignorance and slavery. — These different divisions, were formerly distinct kingdoms, subject to their own Princes, and not included under the general head of Siam; nor do we yet know how far they are subject to the King of Siam, tho' they are thus ranked by some Geographers. But, according to the best accounts, he is not only sovereign, but sole proprietor of all the lands in the country, and receives a rent from every man that cultivates the ground; he is also the chief merchant, and suffers no man to traffic with foreigners, until his agents have had the refusal of the goods imported, which is such a discouragement to trade, that the people apply themselves very little to it. His revenues are but 600,000 crowns per annum, but then all his officers and servants maintain themselves out of the lands assigned them, as well as his soldiers; and his subjects are obliged to serve him, in what capacity he pleases, six months every year gratis. The religion of the country is Paganism; they have a multitude of convents and nunneries, and are very severe in their fasts and penances, and great numbers of them take vows of celibacy and poverty, as the catholic friars and nuns do; all of them believe the doctrine of transmigration and a pre-existent state, and that the soul is only refined matter.

This, like other flat countries, which lie between the equator and the tropic of Cancer, is annually overflowed by violent rains when the sun is in the northern signs, for which reason their houses are built on pillars, and they have no communication with each other but by boats for some months; rice is the principal grain the country yields, their watery situation being very proper for it, and this is the principal food of the inhabitants, besides which they eat the tropical fruits, roots, and herbs, but not much flesh or fish; the flesh of their hogs is much the best, and esteemed the wholesomest in all hot countries; this peninsula of Siam abounds in elephants more than any other part of the world, and these are the greatest strength of their armies, but are of little use against European forces, who soon terrify and disorder these animals with their great guns and fireworks.

SINA, a pr. of the Hither India in Asia, bounded by Naugacut on the N. Tibet on the E. Jamba on the S. and Lahor on the W. subject to the Mogul.

SIBERIA, or Asiatic Russia, formerly denominated Great Tartary, is sit. between 60 and 130 degrees of E. lon, and between 47 and 72 degrees of N. lat. being bounded by the Frozen ocean on the N. by the Pacific ocean, China, and Chinesian Tartary on the E. by the Moguls and Usbec-Tartars on the S. and by the rivers Oby and Irty, which separate Asiatic from European Russia on the W. being upwards of 3000 miles in length from E. to W. and 750 in breadth from N. to S. the N. of it a cold barren, uninhabited country, covered with snow 8 or 9 months in the year; the southern provinces, a more fruitful soil, but most of the natives live a vagrant life like the ancient Scythians and Tartars, depending chiefly on what they take by hunting and fishing, or the produce of their flocks and herds; there are very few towns, and very little of the land cultivated, except near Tobolski the capital, to which part of it, the Swedish prisoners were banished, and to which the Russians send most of their prisoners and some large colonies, but still there want hands to manure the ground; great part of Siberia remains a desert. They have scarce any trade or manufactures; the principal traffic of the Muscovites of Siberia is by sledges over the lakes and frozen country to China in the Winter, and they have been endeavouring to find a way into the sea of Japan and China by their rivers which fall into the Frozen ocean, but have not succeeded yet as we can learn; but they relate they have met with some rich mines of silver and copper

SIBIT, or Zibet, E. lon. 45. lat. 15. a town of Arabia Felix, sit. 370 miles S. of Mecca, and 150 N. of Mecca.

SICHEN, or Zichen, E. lon. 3. 50. lat. 51. 6, a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in the pr. of Brabant, sit. on the river Demer, 18 miles E. of Mechlin or Malines.

SICILY, the largest of the Italian Islands, anciently called Trinacria, from its triangular figure, is sit. between 12 and 16 degrees of E. lon. and between 37 and 39 degrees of N. lat. being about 180 miles long and 112 broad; it lies in a warm but pleasant healthful climate, being constantly refreshed by cool breezes from the sea or the mountains. It is separated from Calabria in Italy only by the strait or pharo of Messina, which is not 7 miles over in the narrowest part, but from Messina on the coast of Sicily to Reggio on the continent, which is the usual passage, it may be 12 or 15 m. over. The country is divided into mountains and valleys, in which there are abundance of springs and rivulets, that make both hills and valleys exceeding fruitful, and which occasioned its being called the granary of Rome; but its cultivation, and consequently fertility, is greatly diminished. The produce of the island is corn, wine, oil, silk, and excellent fruits, of which they export great quantities. Mount Etna in this island is a volcano, which, by its fiery eruptions and earthquakes, has overturned several of their cities, particularly those of Syracuse and Catania, on the eastern coast of the island. This mountain is so high that it is surrounded with a circle of snow towards the top, great part of the year, but advancing a little farther, we come to the grand volcano, from whence there issues flames and smoke. This is a basin or cavity, about 6 miles in circumference, the sides whereof are incrustated with sulphur, from whence there sometimes issues a pure flame, and the noise of this burning pit is inconceivably dreadful. This hill is much larger than mount Vesuvius, in Naples, viz. about 70 miles in circumference at the bottom, and the eruptions from it have been more frequent and more terrible than those of Vesuvius. The kingdom of Naples, as well as this island, was anciently called Sicily; whereupon the late King revived the former name, and styled himself King of the Two Sicilies. Palermo, its capital, is said to contain 120,000 inhabitants, and both that city and Messina carry on a considerable trade.

SIDEN, E. lon. 40. 25. lat. 22. a port town of Arabia, sit. on the E. shore of the Red sea, being the port town to Mecca; sub. to the Arabs.

SIDON, or Sayd, E. lon. 35. 15. lat. 33. 35. a port town of Palestine, in Asiatic Turkey, sit. on the shore of the Levant sea, 70 miles S. of Tripoli, and 22 many N. of Jerusalem, anciently a magnificent city, of great strength, and an extensive trade, and still a place of some consideration, being the residence of a Turkish Bassa. The Sidonians founded the city of Tyre.

SIDRA, E. lon. 24. lat. 37. an island in the Archipelago, sit. at the entrance of the gulph of Napoli de Romania; sub. to Turkey.

SIDRA, a spacious gulph or bay, on the coast of Barbary, in the kingdom of Tripoli, in Africa.

SIGEN, or Sigen, E. lon. 7. 45. lat. 50. 46. a town of Germany, in the lan. of Hesse, and ter. of Nassau, sit. 30 miles N. of Nassau; sub. to its own Prince.

SIGENBERG, E. lon. 7. lat. 50. 40. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Westphalia, and duchy of Burg, sit.

15 miles S. E. of Cologne ; subject to the Elector-Palatine.

SIENNA, E. lon. 12. lat. 43. 20. a city of Italy, in the duchy of Tuscany; capital of the Siacse, sit. 36 miles S. of Florence, on an eminence, in a pleasant fruitful country, being about 4 miles in circumference, encompassed with a ruinous antique wall, and defended by a citadel; the town is thinly peopled, but elegantly built; and the cathedral esteemed one of the finest pieces of Gothic architecture in Italy. Sienna is the see of an archbishop, and an university, and here is an academy of wits, as in other great cities of Italy. The magistracy of this city consists of a governor and senate; sub. however to the Grand Duke of Tuscany, who has been sovereign of it ever since the year 1555; till when they were a powerful republic, and often contended with the Florentines for empire. Sienna is now subject to the Emperor of Germany, as Grand Duke of Tuscany.

SIERRA-LEONE, W. lon. 15. lat. 3. a fort at the mouth of the river Sierra Leone; on the coast of Guinea, in Africa, in possession of the English.

SIKOKO ISLE. See BONGO.

SILESIA DUCAT; a pr. of the kingdom of Bohemia, bounded by Brandenburg on the N. by Poland on the E. by Hungary on the S. and by Moravia, Bohemia Proper, and Lusatia on the W. formerly claimed both by the Queen of Hungary and the King of Prussia; but has been ceded by treaty to the King of Prussia. Silesia is upwards of 260 m. in length, and 100 in breadth; the most fruitful pr. of the kingdom of Bohemia, and has a good linen manufacture, and some rich silver-mines. The mines were mortgaged to some English merchants during the late wars, by the Emperor Charles VI. and when the present King of Prussia invaded and took possession of Silesia, he promised to continue the payment of the interest money till the principal was discharged; part of which has since been paid.

SILISTRIA, or Dorestro, E. lon. 25. lat. 42. 40. a city of European Turkey, in the pr. of Bulgaria, sit. 90 m. E. of Nissa.

SILLEBAR, E. lon. 101. 3. lat. 4. a port town on the W. coast of the island of Sumatra, in the East Indies, a little S. of Bencoolen.

SIMMEREN, or Simmeren, E. lon. 7. 25. lat. 50. a city of Germany, in the palatinate of the Rhine, sit. 35 m. E. of Trier.

SINAI, E. lon. 35. lat. 29. a mountain of Arabia Petrea, in Asia, sit. 120 miles E. of Cairo, memorable on account of the law being given to the Jews on this mount. And here the Greek Christians have a church and monastery dedicated to St. Catharine, who, according to their tradition, was beheaded at Alexandria, and brought hither by angels; and all over the mount are little chapels and cells, in which, it is said, were no less than 14,000 hermits formerly, who were forced to remove by the Arabs that constantly harassed and plundered them.

SINCOPORA, lon. 102. 25. E. lat. 1. 0. a promontory of Malacca, in the East Indies, in Asia, opposite to the island

Island of Sumatra, which, with this cape, forms the Straits called the Straits of Sincopara.

SPA, or SPAW, E. lon. 5. 50. lat. 50. 32. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Westphalia, and bishopric of Liege, sit. 17 miles S. E. of Liege, in a bottom furrounded with hills, celebrated for its mineral waters ever since the times of the Romans; and there are still great quantities sent abroad to all parts of Europe. These waters weigh a grain in 3 ounces more than those of Tunbridge, and yet weigh less than common water by several grains.

SPAIN, a considerable kingdom of Europe, is bounded by the bay of Biscay on the N. by the Pyrenean mountains, which separate it from France, on the N. E. by the Mediterranean sea on the S. E. and by the Atlantic ocean on the W. lying between 10 degrees W. and 3 degrees E. lon. and between 36 and 44 degrees N. lat. being about 700 miles in length from E. to W. and 300 in breadth from N. to S. It is very much incumbered with mountains, of which the Pyrenees, that divide France from Spain, are the chief. The rest may be looked upon as branches of the Pyrenees under different names, which run through the country from E. to W. but they are generally well planted with trees, and between them, are a great many fruitful valleys; and there is their convenience in a variety of mountains and valleys, that the mountains are always cool, when the valleys are excessive hot: the air is esteemed healthful in both, the weather being usually settled, and the heavens serene, unless in the spring and autumn; nor is the sun often obscured by clouds: in the Winter is moderate in the valleys, that they have very little occasion for fires nine months of the year; but then in the months of June, July, and August, the heats are very troublesome in the valleys and sandy plains; and there is a great scarcity of water, most of their springs and rivulets being dried up. The soil of Spain produces excellent wheat and barley, and they have rich pasture grounds; Their wood is the best in Europe, and used by other nations in their finest cloths. They abound in wine, oil, and silk, and no country produces better oranges, lemons, raisins, citrons, prunes, figs, capers, chestnuts, almonds, and pomegranates. The soil also produces flax, cotton, sugar, and saffron; and they have rich mines of quicksilver, copper, lead, alum, sulphur, and the iron and steel of Biscay is esteemed the best in Europe; and formerly the Spanish mines yielded the Romans more silver than any country under their dominion, though now these mines are lost or exhausted, or the Spaniards have such plenty of silver in their American plantations, that the Spanish mines are not worth the working: they import more silver from them than all the world besides. But, with all these advantages, Spain is poor, and very thinly peopled; for which several reasons are assigned: 1. The celibacy of the clergy, and the locking up of so many of both sexes in monasteries. 2. The expelling so many hundred thousand Moors and Jews, as they did about 200 years ago. 3. The wars they carried on with most of the powers of Europe, as well as Africa and America, for 200 years.

4. The draining their country every year of so many men to supply their American plantations, where none but native Spaniards are admitted to the chief offices and commands. And, 5. Their poverty may in a great measure be ascribed to their pride and indolence; none of them scarce submitting to laborious employments, since the wealth of America flowed in upon them; but their neighbours, the French, attend them in the quality of servants, and even manage their husbandry and manufactures in several provinces. The Spaniards also export great part of the produce of their country unwrought, purchasing the silk, woollen, and linen manufactures of other nations, to supply their plantations; or rather, they act as factors for the French, Italians, English, and Dutch, in the disposal of their manufactures, and, at the return of the galleons, pay the proprietors with the treasure they import from the West Indies.

The King of Spain's dominions are the largest that are possessed by any one monarch. Besides his territories in Europe, he possesses the best part of America; a fine rich country, the provinces whereof lie contiguous, and extend 6000 miles and upwards in length from N. to S. He is sovereign also of those rich and numerous islands S. E. of the coast of China in Asia, called the Philippines, from whence he imports all the rich merchandise of the East; and in Africa, he is master of Ceuta, Oram, and several other places of consequence on that coast. The King of Spain is an absolute Prince; for though every province almost was governed by its peculiar laws about 300 years ago, which could not be repealed or suspended, but by the consent of the States; nor could the King raise taxes without their concurrence; they have now lost these privileges; or rather, their great men bartered them away, and sold themselves and their posterity to the crown, and now the Cortes or States, which consist of the nobility, clergy, and representatives of the commons, only meet to confirm and record the decrees of the court, which will compel their concurrence if they should refuse it. The crown descends to the eldest son of the King; and, if there be no sons, to the females according to their seniority; and the reigning Prince seems to have a power of devising it to what branch of the royal family he pleases, if he has no issue; at least, the title of the late King Philip, Duke of Anjou, depended on the will of his predecessor, and he enjoyed it accordingly, notwithstanding the royal family of France had relinquished their claim to that crown by solemn treaties. The King of Spain is never crowned, like other sovereigns, but the Cortes or States assemble, and recognise his title, on his accession; which is all the ceremony used on his advancement to the throne. Spain is naturally well defended, being surrounded by the sea and the Pyrenean mountains; however, the King has of late kept up a standing army of 40,000 men, when he was in full peace, and probably has three times that number in arms when he is at war. This Prince also has very much improved his navy, being able to fit out a considerable fleet of men of war, tho' he has so much occasion for them in distant parts of the world, that we have scarce ever seen more than 30 men of war in one fleet; but thus much we have seen to our cost, that they fight much better than we expected, and are not the contemptible enemy they were some few years ago. The royal revenue also has been much improved since they have had a French Prince upon the throne; for so much was disposed of formerly to unnecessary officers, that it is said not more than five millions per annum sterling came into the King's treasury; but how much the public revenues are advanced, is not easy to calculate. The honors of the Romish Religion, which is the only one tolerated in Spain, are now almost extinguished there, by moderating lands, in the pr. of Overijssel, sit. near the confines of Friesland; 18 miles N.

of Zwell.

STEGEBURG, E. lon. 16. lat. 58.
30. a port town of Sweden, in the
pr. of East Gothland, sit. on a bay of the Baltic sea, 82 miles S. W. of Stockholm.

STENAY, E. lon. 5. 15. lat. 50. 31.
a town of the French Netherlands,
in the duchy of Bar, on the frontiers of Luxemburg, sit. on the E. side of the river Maes, 12 miles W. of King of Prussia.

STETIN, or Stettin, E. lon. 14.
58. lat. 53. 27. a port town of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, capital of Hither Pomerania, sit. on the W. shore of the river Oder, 25 miles S. of the Baltic sea, and 66
N. of Berlin; subject to the King of Prussia. It is a large, populous trading city, though not so considerable as it was when one of the Hanse
towns, and a free sovereign state;
but its fortifications have been much improved, both by the Swedes and Brandenburghers, who long contended
for it.

STEVENAGE, a market town of

STRIA NUNY, in Germany, is part of the title of Austria, bounded by the duchy of Austria on the N. by Hungary on the E. and by Carinthia and Carniola on the S. W. It is 125 miles in length, and 17 in breadth, and is said to contain 22 cities, 95 towns, 338 castles, and 13 convents. The chief town Gratz.

STRUM, E. lon. 6. 18. lat. 51. 29. a town of Germany in the duchy of Berg, sit. 12 m. N. of Dusseldorf; sub. to the Elector Palatine.

STRIVE, the ancient Thebes, in the pr. of Achaia, now Livadia in European Turkey, sit. 40 m. N. W. of Setines, or Athens. It was the cap. of Boetia.

STRONEM, E. lon. 9. 36. lat. 51. 8. a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, and bishopric of Liege, sit. on the river Maas, 15 miles N. of Maestricht.

STOCKBACH, E. lon. 9. 5. lat. 47. 50. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Suabia, and lan. of Nellenburg, sit. 12 m. N. of Constanz.

STOCKBRIDGE, a borough town of Hampshire, sit. 69 m. S. W. of London, on one of the roads to Salisbury; sends two members to parl.

STOCKHOLM, E. lon. 19. 30. lat. 60. the capital city of Sweden, sit. on several small islands, in the Mellar lake, 100 miles N. E. of Copenhagen, 400 N. E. of London, and 400 W. of Petersburg. It is neither walled or fortified, being sufficiently secured by nature, by little rocks and islands which surround it, though it has a spacious harbour, sufficient for the largest fleets, when they have entered; it is very difficult for ships to get out, as well as to get in, for it is locked up with ice four months in the year, and, at other times, it requires several different winds to get clear of the islands; neither are there any tides here to help them, for which reason the grand fleet of Sweden is stationed at Carelskroon, where they can get out much easier to meet an enemy. That part of Stockholm, which is properly the city, stands upon a little island that is not more than a mile and an half in circumference, but the suburbs on the adjacent islands are much larger. It is computed there are about 30,000 inhabitants. The town is elegantly built, and a place of good trade: their exports consist chiefly in copper, iron, and naval stores, for which the English pay ready money for the most part, and sometimes beforehand, to enable the Swedes to perform their contracts with them. This city contains several superb palaces, and is the usual residence of the Kings of Sweden. Its arsenal is famous. In 1739, an academy of Sciences was established here; as also of painting and sculpture, founded by Count Tessin.

STOCKPORT, a market town of Cheshire, sit. 6 m. S. of Manchester.

STOCKTON, a market and port town of Durham, sit. near the mouth of the river Tees, 23 miles S. of Durham.

STRASBURG, E. lon. 7. 35. lat. 48. 38. a city of Germany, in the cir. of the Upper Rhine, capital of the lan. of Alsace, sit. near the W. bank of the river Rhine, 55 miles W. of Stuttgart, and 60 E. of Nancy, in Lorraine, a free imperial city, or sovereign state, till it was treacherously surprised by the French, anno 1681. It had then a great and flourishing trade, and the Lutheran religion was established there; but they have ever since been obliged to submit to French tyranny and bigotry. Their new masters have improved nothing but the fortifications, which are made as fine as possible; and as long as the French are possessed of this capital (which, in a manner, commands Alsace, and gives the French an easy passage into Suabia) the Germans will never be at rest long. It is a very large city, and elegantly built, and the cathedral is esteemed one of the greatest ornaments of Germany, the tower whereof is said to be near 500 feet high.

STRASBURG, lon. 18. 23. E. lat. 53. 5. a town of Regal Prussia in Poland, and in Culm, 30 miles from Thorn. Also the name of a town of Germany, in Lower Carinthia; and of another in Brandanburg, in the Ukraine Marche.

STRATFORD, commonly called Stratford-upon-Avon, a market town of

of Warwickshire, sit. on the river Avon, 9 miles S. of Warwick, and 94 N. W. of London. Here Shakspere, the prince of the English Dramatic Poets, was born in the year 1564.

STRATHNAVER, the most northern co. of Scotland, bounded by the Caledonian ocean on the N. by Cathness on the E. by Sundeland on the S. and by part of Ross and the Western ocean on the W.

STRATTON, a market town of Cornwall, sit. a little S. of Bristol channel, 13 miles N. W. of Launceston.

STRAUBING, E. lon. 12. 45. lat. 48. 43. a town of Germany, in the cir. of Bavaria, sit. on the river Danube, 22 m. S. E. of Ratibon.

STRENG, or Strengues, E. lon. 17. 40. lat. 59. 30. a town of Sweden, in the pr. of Sudermania, or Suder-land, sit. on the S. side of the Meller lake, 30 m. W. of Stockholm.

STRIMBOLI, E. lon. 15. 13. lat. 39. 14. one of the most northern of the Lipari islands, in the Neapolitan sea, sit. 50 m. N. of Messina. There is a volcano here, which renders it uninhabitable.

STRONCONE, E. lon. 17. 26. lat. 39. 30. a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and Hither Calabria, sit. near the gulph of Taranto, 7 m. E. of St. Severino; see of a bishop.

Naples. The see of a bishop. This was the birth-place of Ovid.

SULZBACH, E. lon. 12. lat. 49. 30. a town of Germany, in the pal. of Bavaria, sit. 32 m. N. of Ratibon; subject to the Duke of Neuburg, the present Elector Palatine.

SUMATRA, an island of the Indian ocean, and one of the three largest of the Sunda islands, sit. between 93 and 104 degrees of E. lon. and between 5. 30. N. lat. and 5. 30. S. lat. extending from the N. W. to the S. E. 750 miles long, and from 100 to 170 broad, separated from the Continent of the Further India by the straits of Malacca on the N. E. and from the island of Java by the straits of Sunda on the S. E. The island lying under the equator, and the low grounds near the sea coast being flooded one half of the year, is very unhealthy. The natives build most of their houses upon pillars, to secure them against the annual inundations. The English have several forts and factories on the W. coast of Sumatra, of which the chief was Benicoolen; this standing among the salt-marshes, they buried abundance of men every year, but having built another fort upon an eminence 4 or 5 miles up in the country, they find it as healthful there as in most other climates. To this last fort they have given the name of Marlboro'. The chief merchandise imported from Sumatra is pepper, canes, and gold-dust; rice is almost the only grain that grows in the country; besides which, the soil produces sugar, plantains, pine-apples, cocoa-nuts, and other tropical fruits; and they have plenty of limes, citrons, oranges, melons, and pomegranates. The kingdom of Achin, sit. at the N. W. end of the island, is the only considerable kingdom in it; and this seems to be a mixed monarchy, where the consent of the nobility and great men is necessary to the making of laws; and the rest of the little governments in the island much resemble that of Achin. All the coasts of the island of Sumatra are possessed by Mahometan Princes; but the mountains which run through the island from N. to S. are inhabited by Pagans.

SUMERIN, E. lon. 18. 37. lat. 48. 7. a town of Lower Hungary, in the island of Schut, sit. 10 miles S. of Presburg; subject to the house of Austria.

SUNDA ISLANDS, are so called from their being sit. near the straits of Sunda in the Indian ocean, in Asia. The chief of these are Borneo, Java, and Sumatra, which are described under their respective names. It is sufficient to take notice here, that the Dutch, by being masters of the straits of Sunda and Malacca, and having a fleet of men of war lying at Batavia and upon these straits, command the navigation of the Indian seas, and can put a stop to all European nations trading to China, or to any country beyond those straits, when they please.

SUNDERLAND, a port town of Durham, sit. on the German sea, at the mouth of the river Wear, or Wyer, 13 miles N. N. E. of Durham city, gives title of Earl to the family of Spencer, Dukes of Marlborough.

SUNDERLAND, or Sudermania, a pr. of Sweden, bounded by the Meller lake, which divides it from Uplandia, on the N. by the Baltic sea on the E. and by Gothland on the S. and W. It is about 62 miles in length, and 41 in breadth. Njokoping is the capital.

SUNNBERG, E. lon. 15. 10. lat. 51. 38. a town of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony and mar. of Brandenburg, sit. 50 miles E. of Berlin.

SUNTSEW, a ter. in the cir. of the Upper Rhine, in Germany, bounded on the N. by the river Rhine, which divides it from the Brisgov; on the E. by Switzerland; on the S. by Franche-Comte, and on the W. by Lorrain; sub. to France.

SUSAT, E. lon. 72. 25. lat. 21. 10. a city and port town of the Hither India, in Asia, in the pr. of Gugarat, of Cambaya, sit. on the river Tapte, 20 miles E. of the Indian sea, 160 N. of Bombay, and as many S. of Cambaya city, being defended only by a slight wall, and some antique forts, and is about 3 miles in circumference, but very populous and vastly rich. The English, French, and Dutch, have their factories here, and trade very largely; but the Moors, Armenians, Banians, Arabs, and Jews, are much greater merchants. The English president lives in the state of a Prince; has his coaches, palanquins, and led-horrie richly equipped; and, when he goes abroad, has his guards, and a numerous retinue, the Europeans finding it necessary for their officers and servants to make a grand appearance among the Eastern people. The President is usually Governor of Bombay, and of all the English settlements upon the W. coast of India, and has almost as much respect paid him as the Governor of Surate. The Mogul gives his trading subjects all imaginable encouragement, as well as foreign merchants which resort to his ports, tho' he be an absolute Prince, but the Dutch are best used, and pay the least customs, for if his officers demand more than they think fit to pay, they have a fleet of men of war in India, with which they block up his ports, and compel the government to submit to their terms. The city and castle were taken by the English in 1759; and the next year the great Mogul made a formal grant of the said castle, together with the revenues annexed to it, to the English E. India company.

SURINAM. W. long. 57. N. lat. 6. 30. capital of the Dutch colonies and settlements in Guiana, in South America. They have a very extensive territory, and numerous plantations about this city, which produces coffee, cotton, tobacco and sugar, part of which they took from the English, in the reign of K. Charles II. and by a subsequent peace these were confirmed to them, in consideration of the relinquishing their pretensions to New-York, and other places in the northern colonies, which the English had taken from them; and the Dutch have now no other settlements in America, but those of Surinam and some little islands on the coast of Terra-Firma, and among the Caribbees.

SURREY, an English co. bounded by the river Thames, which separates it from Middlesex, on the N. by Kent on the E. by Suffex on the S. and by Berkshire and Hampshire on the W. being 36 m. long, and 23 broad; it contains 140 parishes, 12 market towns, and sends 24 members to parliament.

SUS, a pr. of the Empire of Morocco, in Africa, bounded by the pr. of Motocco Proper on the N. by Bildulgerid on the E. and S. and by the Atlantic ocean on the W. The chief towns Taradant and Tafilet.

SUSA, E. lon. 7. lat. 45. a fortified town in Italy, in the pr. of Piedmont, sit. on the river Doris, on the confines of France, 30 m. N. W. of Turin; subject to the K. of Sardinia.

SUSAL, E. lon. 42. lat. 57. a town of Russia, in the pr. of Moscow, capital of the ter. of Susdal, sit. on the river Kozma, 20 m. N. E. of Moscow. See of an Archbishop.

SUSIANA, the prov. of Chusistan in Persia, anciently so called.

SUSSEX, an English co. bounded by Surrey and Kent on the N. by another part of Kent on the E. by the English channel on the S. and by Hampshire on the W. 30 miles long, and 24 broad. It contains 323 parishes, 27 market towns, and sends twenty members to parliament; and Chichester, which is an episcopal see, is its capital.

SWANSEY, a port town of Glamorganshire, in S. Wales, sit. on the Bristol channel, 30 m. W. of Cardiff.

SWEDEN, a kingdom of Europe, part of the ancient Scandinavia, is bounded by Norwegian Lapland on the N. by Russia and Russian Lapland on the E. by the Baltic sea, which separates it from Germany and Livonia, on the S. and by the sea called the Sound and the Scaggerack and the Dofrine mountains, which separate it from Denmark and Norway, on the W. lying between 10 and 30 degrees of E. lon. and between 56

and 69 degrees of N. lat. so that it must be 500 m. in length, and upwards, from N. to S. and 300 m. in breadth, from E. to W. The provinces of Kexholm, Carelia, Ingria, and Livonia, which formerly were possessed by Sweden, are now ceded to Russia, part of their German territories also have been ceded to other powers, particularly Bremen, Verden, and the eastern Pomerania; Sweden retains nothing in Germany at present, but that part of Pomerania which lies N. W. of the river Pene, the island of Rugen, and the town of Wismar. It is for the most part a wretched cold country, incumbered with barren rocks and mountains, and great part of the year covered with snow; few navigable rivers, but torrents in abundance, running precipitately from their rocks and mountains, and after a short course falling into the Baltic sea, which is frozen up four or five months in the year. The country also is full of great lakes and marshes: Lapland and the northern parts produce scarce any vegetables. The riches of Sweden are chiefly in the bowels of the earth, having mines of silver, copper, and iron, which exceed any in Europe; and they have some fruitful valleys between their mountains, but these do not produce corn enough for the subsistence of the inhabitants; their being driven out of that plentiful country of Livonia therefore was an irreparable loss to Sweden. They stipulated indeed with the Russians that they should be at liberty to import corn from Livonia, but the Russians frequently excuse themselves for not complying with this article, under the pretence of a scarcity. The manufactures of Sweden are chiefly those of copper and iron, and they have been endeavouring to establish linen and woollen manufactures of late years. The exports from Sweden, besides their hard ware, are pitch, tar, masts, deals, and woodenware; they import silks, stuffs, wine, brandy, brandy, sugar, spices, tobacco, paper, linen, and haberdashery ware, which balance their exportations, and sometimes exceed them. Their trade to England is the most gainful, the English taking off the produce and manufactures of Sweden, and giving them near two thirds of silver in return. By the laws of Sweden foreigners are prohibited to import any goods but what are the produce of their respective countries. The forces of Sweden consist of a well-disciplined militia, every considerable farmer is obliged to maintain one soldier in time of peace, and the officers of horse and foot have lands assigned them for their maintenance; the soldiery are subject to the civil magistrate while they remain in their quarters, but when they are in actual service they are subject to military discipline. The militia of Sweden, before the loss of Livonia and their German territories, amounted to 60,000 men. Charles XII. during his wars, augmented them to 120,000; but he beggared his country by it. At present the national army is thought only to amount to about 40,000 men. The naval forces of Sweden have always been reckoned inferior to those of the Danes, but the Swedes usually were an over-match for the Danes by land. The public revenues, which arise by the crownlands, customs, the silver and copper mines, tithes, poll-money, and other duties were computed to amount to 1,000,000*l.* sterling per annum; but they are not now so considerable. Charles XII. and some of his predecessors were absolute monarchs, and claimed the crown as their hereditary right; but upon his death the States of Sweden elected his youngest sister, the princess Ulrica Eleonora, wife to the then hereditary Prince of Hesse, in 1718, and put such limitations on the crown, that their sovereign enjoys little more than the name of a King. The States obliged that Princess to declare that she held the crown of the Swedes, and renounced her self and her posterity all arbitrary power; that she should profess the Lutheran religion, and no other should be tolerated; that the States should not submit to any taxes or laws that were not made by their own consent; and that she should not make peace or war but by the like consent: and the administration of the government was lodged in 24 senators, of whom the sovereign was no more than President. She was disabled from meddling with the public treasure, without their consent, or to dispose of any office, civil or military. And this they insisted was the original constitution of their government: which Frederick also was obliged to declare, and renounce Calvinism, in which he was educated, when queen Eleonora resigned her crown in his favour, in 1720, and procured him to be elected King in 1721; and the same articles the Duke of Holstein-Eutin, the late King, was obliged to subscribe, when they declared him successor to the crown, in 1743. The troubles of Sweden, in the latter part of the late, and beginning of the present reign, have been equally singular and distressful; however, they produced what had been long expected by all Europe, viz. a change in the constitution, and a new form of government, which was established in 1772, the particulars of which, cannot possibly have a place here. The present King, Gustavus III. who succeeded his father Adolphus Frederick, and was crowned at Stockholm May 22, 1772, entered into an Act of Bond, or Obligation, after his accession, and prior to his coronation, to preserve an uninterrupted reign, and not after the example of the late King, in 1768, lay down the government. This obligation consisted of 24 other articles, admirably planned to preserve order and good government, which were all confirmed with the oath and signature of his majesty.

SWITS, or Swisse, E. lon. 8. 30. lat. 47. capital of one of the cantons of Switzerland, to which it gives its name, sit. on the E. side of the lake Lucern, 16 m. S. E. of the city of Lucern. The canton or ter. belonging to this town is 20 miles long, and 16 broad. There are no walled towns in it. The inhabitants are generally Protestants, and are under the protection of the canton of Bern.

SWITZERLAND, or Switzerland, siled Helvetia by the Romans, is surrounded by the territories of France, Germany and Italy, being bounded by the Suntjow, the Black-forest, and other parts of Swabia, on the N. by the lake of Constance, Tirol, and Trent, on the E. by the Duchies of Savoy, Milan, and the provinces of Italy. on the S. and by the French provinces of Burgundy and Franche-Comte on the W. being about 260 m. long, and upwards of 100 broad, there being some parts of Italy and France comprehended in it, which were not included in the ancient Helvetia. Switzerland being between 45 and 48 degrees of N. lat. might be expected to be a warm country, but as it is situated on the Alps, the highest mountains of Europe and great part of the year covered with snow, the air is much sharper here than in countries that lie more northerly. And as Switzerland is separated from other countries by high mountains, so every canton, or province, almost, is divided from its neighbour by a ridge of hills, which are not barren, but in Summer afford good pasture to the sheep; and on some of them we meet with plowed fields: two thirds of the canton of Bern (much the largest and most considerable province) is a most fruitful country, abounding in corn. The largest rivers in Europe have their sources in these mountains, particularly the Rhine, the Rhone, the Danube, the Ruffi, and the Inn, and there are a great many extensive lakes, as those of Constancy and Geneva, which are either of them 60 miles long, and besides the lakes in the valleys there is one on the top of every mountain almost; here are also abundance of fine woods, particularly of pine and fir-trees. The soil produces some corn and wine, but not in great quantities, and the fruits of the earth are frequently destroyed by storms, or killed by cold rains, and sometimes they lose their harvest injurely. In plentiful years, therefore, they lay up their corn in magazines, to prevent the poor people perishing, when such calamities happen. The country abounds in sheep, black cattle and horses, with all which they drive a great trade in the neighbouring countries, and their lakes furnish them with plenty of fish. Their linnen and woollen manufactures, though not inconsiderable, are hardly sufficient to supply their own cloathing: so that to keep the balance of trade in their favour, the Swissers endeavour to retrench all superfluities, prohibit the wearing of gold, silver, silk, broad lace, or jewels, and whatever else is more chargeable than useful in dress. Switzerland is usually divided into 3 classes, 1. Switzerland Proper, or the 13 cantons. 2. The subjects of Switzerland, or the conquered countries. And, 3. The allies of Switzerland, such as the Grisons, the republic of Geneva, &c. The general diet represents the Helvetic body, or the 13 cantons, and is held at Baden on the feast of St. John the Baptist annually, but seldom lasts longer than one month. Here the affairs of their common subjects are debated and regulated, but all other matters are treated of at particular Diets of their respective religions, that of the Protestants being held at Aarau, and that of the Roman Catholics, at Lucern. And, indeed, the 13 cantons do not make one Commonwealth, but are so many independent states united together by strict alliances for their mutual defence. For every canton, or province, has its particular Diet, or Assembly, which makes laws for the government of the canton, and is not contradicted by the resolutions of the General Diet in any thing, but what relates to their common balliages, or to their mutual defence. The government in some cantons is aristocratical, and in others democratical. The seven aristocratical cantons are those of Zurich, Bern, Lucern, Basil, Friburg, Soleure, and Schaffhausen; the six democratical cantons are those of Uri, Switz, Unterwald, Zug, Glaris, and Appenzel. The Protestant cantons are those of Zurich, Bern, Basil, and Schaffhausen, two-thirds of the canton of Glaris, and more than half of Appenzel; the rest are Roman Catholics. The Protestants are much the strongest, and their territories more extensive and fruitful, but then the Popish cantons are supported by the Popish powers, which surround them. The legislative power in the canton of Bern is lodged in the Great Council, consisting of 299 persons, and the executive power in a Senate of 27, elected out of the Great Council. The government in the other aristocratical cantons is much the same as that of Bern, but in the democratical cantons, every town and every parish is a distinct state, and the supreme legislative power is lodged in the diffusive body of the people; every male of 16 years of age, and every servant, as well as his master, has an equal share in the government, and gives his assent to every law. There are no standing forces kept up in Switzerland, but there is no where a better regulated militia. Every male

from 16 to 60 is enrolled; and one third of them regimented; and out of the other two-thirds, these are recruited from time to time; and the neither horse or foot receive pay while they remain at home, yet as soon as they take the field, their pay is settled; and for the reader assembling their militia, there are signals in the most conspicuous places made by fire in the night-time, and a smoke in the day, upon which the whole body of their militia run to arms, and march to the appointed rendezvous. And what renders them much better disciplined than the militia of other nations, is the custom of the young fellows to serve 3 or 4 years in their troops abroad, after which, their officers are obliged to permit them to return home, so that great part of their militia have actually been in foreign service, and may, therefore, well be deemed as good as regular troops. In the late war between the Protestant and Popish cantons, the canton of Bern had 40,000 men in the field, and the canton of Zurich 20,000, but the rest of the cantons are not near so powerful as these. According to the best accounts, the cantons of Switzerland contain about two millions of inhabitants. The variety of cantons that constitute the Swiss confederacy, renders it difficult to give a precise account of their revenues. Those of Bern are said to amount to 300,000 crowns annually; those of Zurich to 150,000, and the other cantons in proportion to their produce and manufactures. Whatever is saved over and above the expences of government, is laid up as a common stock; and it is said the Swissses are possessed of 500,000 l. sterling in the English funds. Bern is the most considerable city in all Switzerland, for though Geneva is an associate with Switzerland, and under the protection of the Helvetic Body, it is within itself an independent state, and republic.—See the different cantons in their alphabetical order.

SYRACUSE, E. lon. 15. 25. lat. 37. 5. a city and port town of Sicily, in the pr. of Val de Noto, sit. on a fine bay of the Mediterranean, on the E. coast of the island, 65 m. S. of Messina. Once the capital of a flourishing state, and of the whole island, but has been so often destroyed by enemies and earthquakes, that there are but few remains of its ancient grandeur. It has however still a commodious harbour, that people resort to it again, and have rebuilt some part of the town; it is still the see of a bishop.

SYRIA, or Suristan, a part of Asiatic Turkey, is bounded by Natolia and Turcomania on the N, by Diarbec, or Mesopotamia, on the E, by Arabia, and Palestine on the S. and by the Levant sea on the W. The Turks divide Syria into 3 beglerbeglies, or viceroyalties, viz. Those of 1. Aleppo. 2. Tripoli. And 3. Damascus, or Scham, the seats of the respective viceroys. That of Aleppo takes in the N. part of Syria, Tripoli the middle, and Damascus the S. of Syria. This country produces corn, wine, oil, oranges, lemons, pomegranates, pease, beans, and all kinds of pulse and garden-stuff, and has a good trade in silks, camblets, and Turkey leather, and they export vast quantities of salt, with which the surface of the earth, as well as their lakes, is covered in some places. TANEREN, W. lon. 7. lat. 35. 40. a port town of Africa, in the empire of Morocco, and kingdom of Fez, sit. at the entrance of the straits of Gibraltar. It was the cap. of the ancient Mauritania Tingitana; taken from the Moors by the Portuguese, and by them transferred to Charles II. King of England, anno 1661, when he married the Princess Catharina, Infanta of Portugal; but the King being a great charge in keeping up the fortifications, and maintaining a numerous garrison against the continual attacks of the Moors, the works were blown up and demolished, and the garrison withdrawn from thence in the year 1687. Here were bred some of the best soldiers the English had in the wars with France, in the reign of King William.

celona. This was the capital of the largest division of Spain, in the time of the Romans, called from hence Tarracoenensis, and was then as large and populous a city as Carthage; but it is now reduced to 500 houses, and the harbour choked up; however, it is finely situated on an eminence, in a pleasant and fruitful country, and is still the see of an archbishop.

TARANTO, E. lon. 18. 15. lat. 40.

insect called the Tarantula, which some resemble to a Scorpion, but the true Tarantula is like a Spider, and neither bites nor stings, but drops its poison on the part it w. uads. The cure for one who is wounded by either

of them, according to some accounts,
is music; that is, the poison produces
a temporary stupefaction, which becomes fatal, unless the person bit, is not raised from it, which is only to be effected by the power of musical sounds.

TARTARY, a very large extent of country, which is the same as the ancient Scythia, comprehending all the North of Europe and Asia, of which the Russians possess much the greatest part at present, and have given it the name of Siberia, which extends from the rivers Oby and Irtis, that divide Asia from Europe, to the Pacific ocean.

Chinese Tartary, which lies N. of China, and is bounded by Siberia on the N. and W. is now the largest country that goes by the name of Tartary, being about 750 miles in extent, possessed by one sovereign, and for that reason is sometimes called Great Tartary; it is separated from China by a great wall. The Tartars which lie S. of Siberia and Muscovy, are the Tartars of Astracan, Circassia, and Dagistan, sit. N. W. of the Caspian sea; the Kalmucks, which lie between Siberia and the Caspian sea; the Usbec Tartars and Moguls, which lie N. of Persia and India, and those of Tibet, which lie N. W. of China. Of these, the Tartars of Astracan are subject to Muscovy; those of Circassia and Dagistan sometimes put themselves under the protection of the Russians, and sometimes acknowledge the Turks, or Persians, their sovereigns. The Kalmuck Tartars at present acknowledge themselves subjects of Russia. The Usbec Tartars were lately independent, but were subdued by Kouli Khan, the late sovereign of Persia, who took possession of their capital city Bochara. The Moguls seem to be still independent, as well as those of Tibet, which occasionally this country to be called Independent Tartary sometimes, and the Tartars of Tibet are so powerful, that they are frequently at war with the Chinese.

The Northern Tartary is a cold, barren country, almost always covered with snow, wherein are very few houses or inhabitants. The Southern Tartars, for the most part, enjoy a temperate climate and a fruitful soil; but as few of them have fixed habitations, or apply themselves to cultivate the soil, but are continually moving from place to place, to find pasture for their numerous flocks and herds, that fine country produces little.

It must be confessed, that it would be deceiving the reader to desire him to depend on any accounts given by Geographers, of the extent, limits and situation of the vast regions of Tartary in general. For even those powers who possess parts of it, are divided as to the exact boundaries of what they pretend to have a claim to.

There are some other countries in Europe which still bear the name of Tartary; but these are separated from the rest by the Palus Maëotis and the Black sea, viz. Little Tartary, Crim Tartary, and Budzisc Tartary, which are all subject to the Turk.

TASSO, or Thassus, E. lon. 27. lat. 40. 30. one of the smallest islands in the Archipelago, or Egean sea, sit. near the coast of Romania, or Thrace, 30 m. N. of Lemnos, and 40 S. E. of Contassa.

TATA, or Sinda, a pr. of the Hither India, in Asia, is sit. on the mouth of the river Indus, being bounded by the pr. of Butkor on the N. by Jesselmere and Soret on the E. by the gulph of Sindi, or Indus, on the S. and by Persia on the W. reduced by Kouli Khan, late sovereign of Persia, and at present subject to that crown.

TATA CITY, E. lon. 68. 25. lat. 25. 20. capital of the pr. of Tata, sit. near the river Indus, 220 miles N.W. of Guzurat. It is a large, rich place, about 3 miles in length, and half as much in breadth. The English have a factory here.

TAURIS, or Tebris, E. lon. 46. 50. lat. 38. 28. a city of Persia, in Asia, in the pr. of Aderbeitsan, supposed to be the ancient Ecbatana, capital of Media. It is sit. in a fine plain, surrounded with mountains, from whence there falls a rivulet, which runs thro' the city; lying 300 m. S. E. of Erzerum, and 320 N. W. of Isfahan.

The old city was 15 miles in circumference, and had walls 70 cubits high. The present town is about 5 m. in circuit, very populous, and a place of great trade. It standing near the frontiers of Turkey, has been often taken and retaken; the Turks surprised it during the late civil wars in Persia, and exercised their usual barbarities on the inhabitants, killing an incredible number of them; but Kouli Khan reduced it under the obedience of the Persians again, and pursued the Turks into their own territories.

TAURUS and ANTITAVRUS, are mountains which run thro' the Lesser Asia from W. to E. into Persia.

TAY, a river of Scotland, which divides it into North and South Scotland, rising from the loch or lake of Tay, in the shire of Broadalbin, and running E. thro' Athol, afterwards turns S. E. dividing the counties of Perth and Angus from Strathern and Fife, falling into the frith of Tay.

TENEDOS, E. lon. 27. lat. 39. 30. one of the smallest islands of the Archipelago, sit. near the coast of the Lesser Asia, a little W. of the ruins of Troy. This is conjectured to be the island behind which the Grecian fleet retired, when they pretended to raise the siege of Troy, and afterwards surprised that city.

TENERIF, W. lon. 16. 22. lat. 28. 30. one of the largest of the Canary islands, sit. in the Atlantic ocean, 350 miles W. of Morocco, in Africa, about 120 in circumference. It is a fruitful island, abounding in corn, wine, and oil, tho' pretty much incumbered with mountains, of which the most remarkable is that called the Pico of Tenerif, being one of the highest mountains in the world, of the form of a sugar-loaf, the white top whereof may be seen at sea upwards of one hundred miles. This mountain is a volcano, and occasions frequent earthquakes. In the year 1704, several volcanos burst out in this island, and did not only produce an earthquake, but whole towns were swallowed up, or overturned, with many thousand people in them, by torrents of burning sulphur and metallic ore that issued from those volcanos, and some of the richest land in the island was converted into a barren desert. Were it not for the dread of such calamities, these islands would well deserve the name of Fortunæ, which was once given them; for they produce every thing that is desirable in life; but their principal exports consist of those rich wines, which, from the country they come from, are denominated Canary.

river Velino, within a mile of this place, is one of the finest natural cas-

is a populous place, and has a great

TERRA-DEL-FOGO, or Fuego, is an island of South America, bounded by the straits of Magellan on the N.
by the Atlantic ocean on the E. and by the South sea on the S. and W.
It is of a triangular figure, the base
whereof is the strait of Magellan;
the length of the island being 300 m.
from E. to W. and about as much from N. to S. the point or summit
of the pyramid lying in 80 degrees
W. lon. and 57 degrees 30 min. S.
lat. This is the most southern cape or promontory of S. America, about which, all ships sail at present into the Pacific ocean, instead of going through the straits of Magellan, as the first discoverer did, who gave his name to that strait. Terra-del-Fogo is a mountainous, woody country, the tops of the mountains almost always covered with snow. There are some good harbours on the coast, where ships may lie secure from storms,
which these seas are very much
subject to; but our mariners chuse
to keep at a distance from the land, in their passage round Cape Horn, that they may have sea-room, rather than come near it. There are some few inhabitants on the island,

as there are upon the continent, on the N. side of the straits. They are represented as a brave hardy set,
naturally of dark olive complexion,
but paint both their faces and bodies,
and have no other cloathing but a mantle they make of the skins of animals, and a cap of feathers, and live in little huts they make with the boughs of trees, eating what they take in hunting or fishing. Their arms are bows and arrows, pointed with sharp flints or bones, and their nets made of the sinews of animals, or
the fibres of the bark of some trees.
Their country seems to have little in it to invite foreigners to settle amongst them; at least, the Europeans have thought fit, hitherto, to leave them to their natural liberty.

All which are subject to Spain, and were at first called by the name of Castillo del Oro, or Golden Castle,
on account of some gold mines they expected to find in this country,
which is bounded by the North sea,

N. by the river Oroonoco on the E. by Peru and the country of the Amsons

the pr. of Viragua in North America,

Caribbiana, in Terra Firma; but we chuse to omit these, because they are possessed by the French and Dutch,
and the native Indians, and the Spaniards, have now scarce any settlements
E. of the river Oroonoco.

These countries, which are here
included in Terra Firma, lie between 60 and 82 degrees of western longitude,

TERRA-FIRMA PROPER, more generally known by the name of Darien, is bounded by the North sea on the N. by the gulph or river of Darien, which separates it from Carthagena on the E. by Popayan and the Pacific ocean on the S. and by the same ocean and the pr. of Veragua in North America, on the W. lying between 8 and 10 deg. of N. lat. and between 78 and 83 degrees of W. lon. in the form of a cresent about that spacious bay of Panama, and is 300 miles in length, and 60 in breadth, from the North to the South sea; this being the isthmus which joins North and South America; the chief towns whereof are Panama on the South sea, and Porto-Bello on the North sea.

This country consists of exceeding high hills, and long deep valleys, and is so difficult to pass that travellers are usually six or seven days in going cross it from one sea to the other, though the isthmus be but 60 miles over; and the torrents, which fall from the mountains, are a great obstruction to the passage in the rainy season, which continues every year from April to November, and sometimes to December; so that they have scarce three months fair weather in the whole year.

THAMES, a large navigable river of England, composed chiefly of the rivers Isis and Thame, of which the Isis is much the largest, and runs the longest course, rising on the confines of Gloucestershire, a little S. W. of Cirencester, and at Lechdale b. comes navigable, from whence it continues its course N. E. to Oxford, where it receives the Charwell; from Oxford it runs S. E. to Abington, and so to Dorchester, where it receives the Thame, and continues its course S. E. by Wallingford to Reading; after which it visits Marlow and Windsor, and from thence runs E. by Brentford and Richmond to London, and continues the same course to the sea, receiving the river Medway near the mouth of it. The Thame is but a small river, which rising near Tring in Hertfordshire, crosses the county of Bucks, and falls into the Isis at Dorchester, before which it is a small unnavigable stream. This account is given by Leland and Camden; but it is certain, that this river had anciently, and has to this day, the name of Thames from Lechdale to Dorchester.

THAKET, a little island of East Kent, formed by the branches of the river Stour and the sea; from whence the family of Tufston take the title of Earl.

THORNEY ISLAND, sit. on a bay of the E. channel, between Chichester and Portsmouth.

THOUARS, W. lon. 17 min. lat. 47. a town of France, in the pr. of Orleansois, and ter. of Poitou, sit. 30 m. N. W. of Poitiers.

THOULON, or Toulon, E. lon. 6. 2. lat. 43. 7. a port town of Provence in France, sit. on a bay of the Mediterranean sea, 450 m. S. by E. of Paris, 30 S. E. of Marseilles, and 80 S. W. of Nice. It has the most secure and spacious harbour of a port in France; here the largest ships of the royal navy are built and stationed, and here vast magazines of all manner of naval stores and timber for shipping are deposited. Here also are the finest docks and yards for the fitting out and furnishing ships of war in the world, in the opinion of the French.—In Thoulon, also are schools for the marine guards, where they are taught navigation, and a foundry for cannon and mortars, with all manner of utensils for cannoniers and bombardiers. They had in the harbour of Thoulon, at one time, 16 first-rates, 8 second-rates, 24 third-rates, and 6 fourth-rates, viz. when the Confederates laid siege to Thoulon, in 1707; all which the English had very probably taken, if the Germans had not detached 15,000 men to Naples, which were intended to constitute part of the army to form that siege.

THOULOUSE, or Toulouse, E. lon. 1. 31. lat. 42. 36. a city of France, cap. of the pr. of Languedoc, sit. on the river Garonne, 90 m. W. of the Mediterranean, 60 N. of the Pyrenees, and 375 S. by E. of Paris. It is one of the largest cities in the kingdom, but neither rich nor populous, there not being more than 19,000 families in it. It is the see of an archbishop, has an university, a parliament, a mint, and an academy of Belles Lettres; a city of great antiquity, the Romans mentioning it as one of the most flourishing cities of the Gauls, it was afterwards capital of a Roman province, then of the kingdom of the Visigoths; and afterwards of the kingdom of Aquitain; and here are still the ruins of a Roman amphitheatre.

TIVERTON, a borough town of Devon, sit. on the river Ex, 14 miles N. N. E. of Exeter; sends two members to parl. a great clothing town, unfortunately burnt down some years since, but has been rebuilt, and is, at present, one of the most considerable towns in the county. It has two churches, many good buildings, and the water runs thro' all the streets, as it does in the city of Salisbury.

TIVIOU, or Chiviot Mountains, are high hills which lie on the borders of England and Scotland; on which there have been many sharp encounters between the two nations. The valley called Tiviotaule, gives name to one of the counties of Scotland on the borders, of which county, Jedburgh is the capital town.

TIVOLI, or Tibur, E. lon. 13. lat. 43. a celebrated town of Italy, in the Pope's ter. and Campania of Rome, sit. on the river Teverone, 20 miles E. of Rome, on the side of a hill covered with olive trees, for 5 or 6 miles, and adorned with beautiful villas or palaces of the nobility, from whence there is a delightful prospect of the Campania as far as Rome. This was the retreat of many of the most eminent of the ancient Romans, in the hot season. The river Teverone here forms a cascade, falling from a high rock, in a cave whereof is said to be the grotto of Leucothea, the Tiburtine Sibyl, from whence she delivered her oracles. The palace of the family of Este, Dukes of Modena, which stands here, is much admired for its architecture, sculpture, paintings, gardens, and water-works. Tivoli is now but a little town, but the see of a bishop, and sub. to the Duke of Modena, proprietor of the beautiful palace above-mentioned.

TIASCALA, W. lon. 705. 5. lat. 19. 40. a town of Mexico, cap. of the pr. of Tiascala; sit. 62 m. S. E. of the city of Mexico; sub. to Spain.

TONQUIN, a kingdom of the Further India, in Asia, bounded by the pr. of Yunam, in China, on the N. by the pr. of Canton, and the bay of Tonquin on the E. by Cochinchina on the S. and by the kingdom of Laos on the W. lying between 101 and 103 degrees of E. lon. and between 17 and 26 degrees of N. lat. being about 1200 miles long, and 500 broad, in the broadest part, but not half so much in some places; the capital city Keccio, or Cachao. It is a pleasant, healthful country, in the dry season; but their rains begin in May, and continue 'till November, when the flat country is overflowed; and there are terrible storms, called tuffoons, about the autumnal equinox, when no ships can live in their seas near the coast. Tonquin produces a great deal of silk; and their chief manufactures are those of silk, gauze, and japaned or lacquered wares, which are equal almost to those made in Japan. They have very little shipping; all their imports and exports almost are made in foreign bottoms. They are esteemed much fairer dealers than their neighbours of China. There is a very good fishery on the coast, which employs a great many hands; many of them live with their families on the water. The soil produces scarce any other grain than rice; but they have plenty of oranges, limes, cocoa-nuts, pine-apples, plantains, mangoes, and other tropical fruits, with a variety of melons, pulse, and garden-stuff; they have not many horses, oxen, or sheep; but no country has more elephants, which are the strength of their armies; and their great men ride out upon them, having galleries or rooms built on their backs, which will hold a family with all their equipage.

Tonquin is an absolute monarchy; but the person who has the title of King has no share in the government. The prime minister, who is considered as another King, is master of all the treasure and forces of the kingdom, and to him all men make their court. He is called Chouah, and the real King Bua. The King has been succeeded in title by one of his sons, and the prime minister has been succeeded in his office by one of his sons, for upwards of 100 years. The King is a kind of prisoner of state in his own palace, though at certain seasons the prime minister suffers him to receive the mock homage of his subjects, and he himself seems to pay him the profoundest reverence before the people, and declares he takes upon him the administration of the government only to ease his Prince of the trouble of it, and that he may enjoy his pleasures undisturbed; but, at the same time, the King has not one servant or officer of his own choosing; these are all put in by the minister, and suffer no one to approach him but the minister's creatures. The usurper also has usually an army of sixty or seventy thousand men on foot to support his usurpation; so that it is in vain for the subjects to attempt to rescue their sovereign out of his hands.

Their

Their religion resembles that of the Chinese; their devotion to their ancestors is a variety of immorality; the horses are the horses of the courts before in their temple; space of superstitious pretended counselors on every great fire of days, and on Tonquin are of China.

Their religion is Paganism, and resembles that of the Chinese in their devotion for Confucius and their ancestors. They have a great variety of images, of which the chief are the horse and the elephant, and as often perform their devotions in the courts before their own houses, as in their temples. They have abundance of superstition, consulting their pretended conjurers and fortune-tellers on every occasion, and laying a great stress upon lucky and unlucky days, and omens. The Kings of Tonquin are subject to the Emperor of China.

TORNEA RIVER, rises on the confines of Norwegian Lapland, and runs from the N. W. to the S. E. thro' the pr. of Torne, falling into the bottom of the Bothnic gulph at the town of Tornea. It is a very large rapid river, and there are a great many cataracts in it. There are several copper and iron-mines in the province, with mills and forges on the river; but the banks of the river are chiefly inhabited by fishermen for an hundred miles to the northward of the town, who traffic with their southern neighbours, exchanging salted and dried fish, furs, and skins, for cloathing and provisions; for the soil of Lapland produces scarce any corn or vegetables; the people, instead of bread, grinding the white inward bark of the fir-tree, which they mix into a paste, bake and eat with the flesh of their rein-deer, or fish dried upon the rocks;

reeks; yet even these miserable people were invaded by the Russians in the years 1719 and 1720, who destroyed most of their iron and copper-works.

TORTUGA, W. lon. 73. lat. 20. an island of the American ocean, sit. near the North east of the island of Hispaniola, 80 m. N. of Petitguaves. Here it was the French buccanniers and bandits first fortified themselves, and infested the neighbouring seas, making prizes of all they met with, and being countenanced and supported by the government of France, at length took possession of the N. W. part of the island of Hispaniola, where the French have now several considerable settlements, and look upon themselves as sovereigns of the best part of that large island. Tortuga is about 80 m. in circumference, and has in it a very secure harbour of difficult access. It obtained the name of Tortuga, from the plenty of tortoises found here.

TORTUGA, W. lon. 66. lat. 11. 30. an island in the American ocean, near the coast of Terra Firma, sit. 40 miles W. of the island of Margaritta, about 30 in circumference, a barren island, and only valuable for the great quantities of salt made here, from whence it has obtained the name of Salt Tortuga, it abounding in tortoises, as the other island of Tortuga does. It is subject to Spain; but the English have a right confirmed by treaty for taking in salt here.

who built the old citadel, but restored it to the French for a valuable consideration, anno 1518. It was taken from them by the Spaniards, anno 1551, who possessed it until the year 1667, when it was surprised by the French. The Confederates, commanded by the Duke of Marlborough, invested Tournay, June 27, 1709. On the 7th of July, the trenches were opened, and on the 31st the garrison retired into the citadel, which capitulated the last of August. The town and citadel being strongly fortified, and the ground undermined almost all round, the Allies were obliged to proceed with great caution; and lost, however, a great many thousand men before it, as well by blowing up the mines, as by the defence the garrison made. It is the see of a bishop, suffragan to the archbishop of Cambrai, and one of the towns of the Dutch barrier, taken by the French after the battle of Fontenoy, May 1745, who demolished the fortifications, but restored it to the Austrians by the peace of Aix-la-Chapelle, 1748.

TRANSILVANIA, a principality of Europe, annexed to Hungary, bounded by the Carpathian mountains, which divide it from Poland on the N. by Moldavia on the E. by Walachia and part of Hungary on the S. and by another part of Hungary on the W. being about 160 m. long, and almost as many broad. It lies between 22 and 25 degrees of E. lon. and between 43 and 48 degrees of N. lat. and as it is surrounded almost by woods and mountains, is a very warm country, and has a very fruitful soil, producing great plenty of corn, wine, large cattle, and rich pasture and meadow grounds. In their mountains are good mines of copper and iron, which they manufacture and export, and have cloth sufficient for their own use. But this having been long a frontier country against Turkey, the produce of it is frequently destroyed, and the husbandman discouraged from making the best of his lands. It is at present sub. to the house of Austria.

TRAPANI, or Trapani, E. lon. 12. 45. lat. 38. a port-town of Sicily, sit. on the most western point of the island, 45 m. S. W. of Palermo; a secure harbour, and one of the last places the Romans took from the Carthaginians in this island.

TRAPEZOND, or Trebizond, E. lon. 40. lat. 4. a city and port-town of Asiatic Turkey, in the province of Jenich, sit. on the Blacksea; a large town, and once a fine harbour, but can only receive small vessels at present. The suburbs are inhabited by Greek and Armenian Christians. The castle is strongly situated upon a rock, but the fortifications neglected, as in most towns of Turkey. This city was subject to the Emperor of Constantinople, and in the year 1209, David Comines, a French king, usurped the dominion of it, and his successor John Comines, assumed the title of Emperor, by which all his descendants were called, till the year 1460, when Mahomet II. took the city, and put to death David Comines, the last Emperor of that family, and the Turks have possessed this city ever since.

TRENT BISHOPRIC, a pr. of Germany, in the cir. of Austria, sit. upon the Alps, which divide Italy from Germany, and sometimes reckoned part of Italy, being bounded by Tirol on the N. by the ter. of Venice on the E. and S. and by the country of the Grisons on the W. being 70 miles long, and 50 broad; sub. to the house of Austria.

TRENT CITY, E. lon. 11. lat. 46. 5. capital of the bishopric of Trent, sit. 67 miles N. W. of Venice, in a pleasant valley, on the banks of the river Adige, but encompassed with high mountains, which make it excessive hot in summer, and cold in winter. It is a small city, built of a kind of red and white marble, dug out of the rock on which it stands, and surrounded by a single wall. The bishop is suffragan to the Venetian patriarch of Aquileia, but a prince of the Empire.—Here the council of Trent was held, which continued, with some intermissions, from the year 1545 to the year 1563, where the doctrines of the Pope's infallibility, transubstantiation, &c. were confirmed.

TRICHINOPOLY, E. lon. 78. 15. lat. 10. 30. a large inland city, 80 m. W. of Calicut in the East Indies. It is well fortified in the Indian manner. The English have a factory here.

TRIERS, or TRIEVES, E. lon. 6. 40. lat. 49. 45. a city of Germany, in the cir. of the Lower Rhine, cap. of the electorate of Triers, sit. on the river Moselle, 60 miles S. of Cologne, and as many W. of Mentz. The city is neither large or populous, and having been the seat of war of late years, the trade of the place is not in a flourishing condition. It is one of the most ancient cities in Germany, several of the Roman Emperors having resided here. It is not of any great strength, as appears by their submitting to any power that is master of the field, without waiting to be besieged.

TRIERS ELECTORATE, is a pr. of Germany, in the cir. of the Lower Rhine, bounded by the Electorate of Cologne; and the D. of Juliers on the N. by Mentz and Wateravia on the E. by Lorrain and the Palatinate on the S. and by the Netherlands on the W. being 100 m. long, and from 20 to 50 broad. Great part of the country is mountainous and barren, but near the rivers Rhine and Moselle the country is very pleasant and fruitful, abounding in corn and wine, and crowded with people. The archbishop, their sovereign, has no other suffragans than the bishops of Metz, Toul and Verdun, which are under the dominion of the French. He is, however, the second Elector of the Empire.

TRISTE, E. lon. 14. lat. 46. 5. a port town of Istria, sit. on the gulph of Venice, 72 m. N. E. of the city of Venice, sub. to the house of Austria. The late Emperor Charles VI. was at a great expence to enlarge the port, and make it a station for his men of war; proposing also to carry on a trade from hence with the countries lying on the Mediterranean; which the Venetians were greatly alarmed at, but on his losing Naples and Sicily, this project was dropt. Trieste is sometimes reckoned to belong to Germany, lying on the confines of Carniola, in the circle of Austria.

TRINIDAD, or Trinity Island, is sit. in the Atlantic or American ocean, between 60 and 63 degrees of W. lon. and between 9 and 11 of N. lat. separated from the pr. of New Andalusia in Terra Firma, by a narrow strait, Arat, called Bocca-de-Drage, about 3 miles over, lying 80 miles N. W. of the river Oroonoko, and is about 90 long, and 60 broad; an unhealthy air, but fruitful soil, producing sugar, cotton, Indian corn, fruits, and the best tobacco. It was discovered by Columbus in 1498; taken by Sir Walter Raleigh, anno 1595, but quitted again, and the French took it in the year 1676; and, besides their plunder, extorted 80,000 pieces of eight from the Spaniards, to save their horses; but the French also quitted the island, and the Spaniards remain sovereigns of it at this time.

TRINIDAD, W. lon. 94. lat. 13. a port town of Mexico, in North America, sit. in the pr. of Guatimala, 120 miles S. E. of the city of Guatimala; sub. to Spain.

TRINIDAD, W. lon. 29. lat. 30. an island in the southern ocean.

TRINQUEBAN, or Tranqueban, a port town on the coast of Coromandel, in the East Indies, in 12 degrees odd min. N. lat. about 80 m. S. of Fort St. George; sub. to Denmark.

TRINO, E. lon. 8. 16. lat. 45. 2. a town of Italy, in the duchy of Montferrat, sit. on the N. side of the Po, 35 miles N. E. of Turin; sub. to the King of Sardinia.

TRINQUIMALE, E. lon. 80. lat. 9. a port town of the island of Ceylon, in the East Indies in Asia, sit. on the N. E. part of the island, 100 miles N. E. of Candy.

TRIPOLI KINGDOM, including Barca, is bounded by the Mediterranean sea on the N. by Egypt on the E. by Nubia and Bildulgerid on the S. and by the kingdom of Tunis on the W. extending along the shore of the Mediterranean from the N. W. to the S. E. in length about 1100 miles, but is scarce 300 broad in any place. The country near the city of Tripoli is tolerably fruitful, but all the rest to the eastward, as far as Egypt, is a sandy desert, and usually called the desert of Barca. This is properly a republic, tho' it has the title of a kingdom.

TRIPOLI CITY, E. lon. 13. 10. lat. 33. capital of the kingdom of Tripoli, sit. on the Mediterranean sea, 275 miles S. by E. of Tunis, surrounded by a wall and fortification; but its greatest strength is in its inhabitants, who are a parcel of desperate fellows, banditti, that have fled from Turky, pirates and renegades, who live chiefly by plunder. It produces corn, wine, silk, and wool, where it is cultivated; and they breed a great many camels and fine horses; and the Europeans do trade with them for corn, oil, wool, soap, dates, ostrich feathers, and skins, but they make more by the slaves they take at sea, than by any of the other articles, setting high ransoms upon them, or forcing them to serve at sea or land in all manner of drudgeries.

The Dey or Sovereign of Tripoli, is not so absolute as the Dey of Algiers and Tunis are; for a Turkish Bassa resides here, who receives his authority from the Grand Seignior, and has a power of controlling the Dey, and levying a tribute on his subjects. The Dey is elected, however, by the soldiery of the place, and not appointed or deposed by the Grand Seignior, and the soldiers take the liberty of removing their sovereign, and electing another, when they see fit.

TRIPOLI, E. lon. 39. lat. 34. 16. a port town of Syria, sit. on the Levant sea, 100 miles S. of Scanderoon; the chief town of that part of Syria, anciently called Phœnicia, the people whereof excelled so much in navigation and other arts in the earliest ages, and settled colonies in the remotest parts of Europe and Africa. It is now the chief town of this division of Syria, and the seat of the Turkish Beglerbeg or Viceroy, and stands near the foot of Mount Libanus, from whence there falls a rivulet, which waters their fields and gardens, that are well replenished with mulberry-trees, as well as other fruits, and they have a considerable silk manufacture in the town.

TUNIS, E. lon. 10. 51. lat. 36. 40. cap. of the kingdom of Tunis, on the Barbary coast, in Africa, is sit. in a fine plain, near a spacious lake, 30 miles S. of Carthage ruins, 370 N. E. of Algiers, and 120 S. W. of Trapano in Sicily; a populous city, about 3 m. in circumference.

TUNIS KINGDOM, is sit. on the coast of Barbary in Africa, being bounded by the Mediterranean sea on the N. by the same sea and Tripoli on the E. by Mount Atlas on the S. and by the river Guadalbarbar, which separates it from the kingdom of Algiers, on the W. extending 300 miles in length from E. to W. along the shore of the Mediterranean; the breadth very unequal. This is the finest kingdom belonging to the states of Barbary, and contains the remains of many noble cities, some of them still in good condition. — The Dey of Tunis is an absolute Prince, elected by the Turkish soldiers, but as liable to be deposed and murdered by them as the Dey of Algiers; they seldom reign long; want of success, or a supposed mismanagement in the administration, is looked upon as a sufficient reason to remove them, and there can never want traitors among that abandoned race of men, composed of robbers and the refuse of Turkey, to conspire the destruction of the reigning Prince, and usurp his throne; for the soldiers, who are vested with this power of election, are either criminals who have been obliged to fly from Turkey, renegadoes, or pirates, who resort hither in hopes of spoil. The Europeans have some trade with Tunis, importing from thence corn, oil, wool, fruit, soap, dates, skins, and ostrich feathers. The Jews are generally the brokers, who are very numerous here, as they are in most towns on the coast of Barbary.

TURCOMANIA, the ancient Armenia, is now a pr. of Asiatic Turkey, bounded by Persia on the E. by Diarbeck and Curdestan (that is, the ancient Mesopotamia and Assyria) on the S. and by Naxolia, on the W. and N. the cap. city Erzerum.

TURIN, E. lon. 7. 16. lat. 44. 50. a city of Italy, capital of Piedmont, and of the King of Sardinia's dominions, sit. at the confluence of the rivers Po and Doria, 70 miles S. W. of Milan, 62 S. E. of Lyons, and 200 N. W. of Genoa. The town is of a square figure, 3 miles in circumference, and much admired for its spacious squares and streets, lofty and magnificent buildings, and a beautiful royal palace; and the fortifications about it are as fine as the nature of the ground will admit. This city endured a most furious siege of three months, in the year 1706, when it was very seasonably relieved by the army of the Allies, commanded by the late Duke of Savoy and Prince Eugene, who attacked

it, gained a complete victory, and the city was taken, and the Allies, 50 mortars, all the enemy's baggage, and his capital (7th) which this city is and has an

The Duke of Orleans and Marshal Marlin, who commanded the French, were both wounded, the Marshal mortally, and the Allies took 150 pieces of cannon, 50 mortars, and 7000 prisoners, with all the enemy's ammunition and baggage, and the Duke of Savoy entered his capital the same evening (Sept. 7th) which he found almost in ruins. This city is the see of an archbishop, and has an university.

TURK ISLAND, a small island sit. on the great bank of that name, off Hispaniola, about 90 miles N. of Isabella bay. It is about 18 m. in circumference, the land low, sandy and barren, without a drop of fresh water. It abounds in salt, which the English have long been accustomed to gather, and take in here for the use of the Newfoundland Fishery. It lies about 87 miles N. of Cape Francois, and is sometimes reckoned a part of the Bahama islands. There are several other small islands which go under the general name of the Turks islands but all of them uninhabited.

TURK, a very extensive empire, comprehending some of the richest countries in Europe, Asia, and Africa. Turkey in Europe, is sit. between 17 and 40 degrees E. lon. and between 34 and 49 degrees of N. lat. being about 1000 miles in length, and 900 in breadth. It is bounded by Russia, Poland, and Sclavonia on the N. by Circassia, the Black sea, the Propontis, Hellespont, and Archipelago, on the E. by the Mediterranean on the S. by the same sea, and the Venetian and Austrian territories on the W. and includes Romania, Bulgaria, Servia, Bosnia, Ragusa, Wallachia, Moldavia, Belarabia, Budziac, and Oczakow Tartary, Crim and Little Tartary, with Albania, Epirus, Macedonia, Thessaly, and all the ancient Greece, with its numerous islands in the Archipelago. Turkey in Asia, is sit. between 27 and 45 degrees of E. lon. and between 23 and 45 degrees of N. lat. being about 1000 miles in length, and 870 in breadth, bounded by the Black sea and Circassia on the N. Persia on the E. Arabia and the Levant sea on the S. and by the Archipelago, the Hellespont, and Propontis, which separate it from Europe, on the W. containing Chaldea, now Eyraca, Arabic, Mesopotamia, now Diarbec, part of Assyria, now Kurdistan; Armenia, now Turcomania; part of Georgia, Mingrelia, and Circassia; part of Arabia, Syria, Palestine, Nubia, or Asa Minor. Turkey in Africa, comprehends Egypt, which lies between 30 and 36 degrees of E. lon. and between 20 and 32 degrees of N. lat. being about 600 miles in length, and 250 in breadth, bounded by the Mediterranean sea on the N. the Red sea on the E. Abyssinia, or the Upper Ethiopia on the S. by the desert of Barca, and the unknown parts of Africa, on the W.

Thus happily situated in the center of our continent, and the most fruitful countries, they could not fail of acquiring the trade as well as the empire of the whole world, if these glorious advantages were not lost by the indolence and inactivity of the Turks, and the destructive maxims they are governed by. They seldom fail to distant countries, or visit nations of a different faith, but the merchandise of the rest of the world is carried to them in foreign bottoms, and in the same manner the produce and manufactures of Turkey are exported. They reap little advantages by their commerce with Christendom, but what they get by the duties of import and export; and their home trade is carried on chiefly by their Christian or Jewish subjects. The Turks are above applying themselves to any thing of this kind; traffic and mechanical employments are left to be managed by the despised Christians, who contribute much more, by their labour and industry, to the support of that empire, than the Turks themselves, which may be one reason that their government indulges them in the free exercise of their religion. And, indeed, there seems to be more Christians in the Turkish empire than Mahometans, especially in their European territories, who have this happiness also, that they are never pressed or forced into their armies, but left to follow their several occupations, while the Turkish gentlemen take the honour of defending their country, and making foreign conquests, entirely on themselves.

The goods imported from Turkey, are raw silks, carpets, goats hair, mohair yarn, goats wool, cotton wool and yarn, dimities, burdets, shagreen skins, cordovans, blue, red and yellow coffee, rhubarb, turpentine, opium, gum senega, terra lemnia, china root, and abundance of other drugs, wine, oil, figs, raisins, dates, almonds, pistachio nuts, allum, vitriol, box-wood, bees wax, saffron, &c.

The Grand Seignior, or Emperor of the Turks, is absolute, and his throne hereditary, at least it is confined to one family; for tho' the Janizaries, who are his guards, frequently depose their sovereign when he happens to be unsuccessful, or his administration does not please them, they usually advance his nearest relation to the throne. And though the Grand Seignior exercises an unlimited authority over the inhabitants of the Seraglio, and his basias and officers, as well as over his Christian subjects, yet the Turkish gentlemen, who have no places or dependence on the court, enjoy their liberties and properties as much as if they lived under a limited monarchy, if not more; for they pay no taxes to the government; and should the Grand Seignior attempt to tax them, or change their customs, he would run the hazard of being deposed.

His basias, governors, and officers of state, and even the Janizaries and other inhabitants of the Seraglio, are all the children of Christian parents, taken in war, or purchased, and who have probably been baptized, tho' educated by the Turks in the Mahometan religion; so that in reality the Turkish empire is governed (under the Grand Seignior) by the children of Christians.

The Turks have always very numerous armies on foot; but their chief dependance is on their Janizaries, who have been bred in the Seraglio, and exercised in military discipline from their infancy, of whom there are 25,000 in actual pay. There may be in the empire 100,000 that bear the name of Janizaries, but these are not enrolled with the others; the Serdar in every province, who has the command of the Janizaries in it, frequently abuses his office, and will take any man into that body, who desires to purchase the privilege of committing outrages with impunity, and screen himself from justice; for a Janizary is accountable to none but his own officers, whatever violence he commits.

The Spahis, or best Turkish horsemen, are bred up in martial exercises, as the Janizaries are, and are a very formidable body; besides which, there are great bodies of forces in every province, which constitute their numerous armies. But their multitudes are frequently the occasion of their defeat, charging in too much confusion; tho' the Bassa Bonneval, it is said, has prevailed on some of their troops to submit to the French discipline, of which they made great advantage in their last German war, recovering a great extent of country, which they had lost S. of the Danube.

Their naval forces are not so considerable as might be expected in such extensive dominions, situate on several seas, and abounding in commodious harbours: but their neglecting navigation and foreign commerce, is the true reason they can never find sailors to man a great fleet, if they should build one.

The Grand Seignior's revenues arise by customs and other duties on merchandise; by a capitation tax on the Christians in his dominions; by the sums paid by the tributary princes, and the presents made by all his officers and ministers on their advancement, and in their administration. ification of the estates of all his bassas, governors, officers, and great men, when they die or displease him; when they have plundered provinces, and amassed vast heaps of treasure, the Grand Seignior is heir to it all, and only allows the family a moderate maintenance out of it, if their ancestor has deserved never so well; the sons or relations are very seldom advanced, or continued in any post under the government. The establishment of religion of the Turks, is that of the Mahometan. The Turkish government is commonly exhibited as a picture of all that is shocking and unnatural in arbitrary power. But of late, the rigours of despotism are considerably moderated by the great power of religion. For though in this great empire there is no hereditary succession to property, the rights of individuals may be rendered fixed, and secure, by being annexed to the church, which is done at an inconsiderable expence.

A particular account of the laws, customs, and manners of Turkey would be too extensive for this work, though it is worthy the notice of the curious; and, therefore, we shall dismiss this article with observing, that, nothing but the present political state of Europe, and the jealousies that subsist among its Princes, could possibly secure the basis of the Turkish Empire, or suffer the noblest provinces in the world to remain in the possession of such haughty and barbarous infidels.

TURNHOUT, E. lon. 4. 50. lat. 51. 24. a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in the pr. of Brabant, sit. 24 m. N. E. of Antwerp.

TUSCANY, a sovereign state of Italy, with the title of a duchy, encompassed by the Pope's territories on the N. E. and S. and bounded by the Tuscan sea on the S. W. and by the territories of Lucca and Modena on the N. W. being 150 miles long, and about 100 broad. The most barren part of the Appenines almost surround this country, or rather are a part of it, where the air is exceeding cold, and there are very few towns or inhabitants; but then they have several very rich extensive valleys, where the air is more agreeable, and the fruits of the earth ripen sooner, and come to a greater perfection than they do on the N. side of the Appenines. There is a valley particularly that runs quite cross the country, viz. from Arezzo, to the Tuscan sea, which abounds in corn, wine, oil, oranges, citrons, figs, and other excellent fruits; and no country is better planted with mulberry-trees, that yield food for their silk-worms, and enable the natives to make the richest silks.

The Great Duke of Tuscany is an absolute Prince, and his revenues are computed to amount to 500,000 l. per ann. arising by the tenths of the yearly value of every house; the tenth of all estates that are sold; the ground rents of the houses in Leghorn, and other cities; 8 per cent. out of the portions of all women when they marry; 5s. a head on cattle when they are sold; and almost a general excise on all provisions.

As to his forces, he has only his guards and some armed galleys at sea, besides the ordinary militia; and in case of a war, he usually hires mercenaries, and chiefly Swiss.

There are some places in Tuscany under the dominion of other sovereigns, as the city of Lucca, and the territories about it, the State del Presidi, or the Garrisons, on the sea coast, which is possessed by the Spaniards; the principality of Piombino, the domain of the house of Cibo, and the Mar. de Fos de Nuovo. Tuscany was allotted to the Duke of Lorraine, the Emperor, when he was obliged to resign Lorraine to France, and his second son, archduke Leopold, is now sovereign of the duchy.

good order; and it is computed that the French did more mind than the Allies. It is a country of Switzerland, being a long valley of 100 myriameters, lying between the head of the river Rhone, and the lake of Geneva; the Rhone running the whole length of the valley, encompassed on every side with very high mountains, in which are about 50 parishes that form a republic, and are all Roman Catholics, and all of the Swiss Cantons. Their mountains afford them good pasture for their cattle in the summer, but are covered with snow in the winter, and the valley produces corn and wine, and fruit. There is a variety of lakes in one day, in fact in winter on one side of a mountain, where in summer on the other, and the spring appears in all its beauty in a third place, in which this town has its source. From May to October, thousands of ladies according to the fashion of the place.

Valencia, a city of W. Ind. 35 min. lat. 39. an capital of the pr. of Valencia, 200 miles S. E. of Madrid, and 200 N. of Cartagena, in a fine plain on the river Guadalquivir, and is a most beautiful city, within the walls, elegantly built, in a most agreeable situation, and the suburbs again, particularly more; it is watered with numerous fountains, and is the sight and accompanied with beautiful fields, meadows and gardens; the inhabitants are very agreeable in their conversation, and seem to have banished that stiffness and gravity which the rest of Spain is so remarkable for. Trade and manufactures flourish here, and there are a great many rich merchants in the city; their principal manufactures is that of silk, and they export a great deal of wine, oil and such. The whole country for 20 miles round looks like a garden, and they are scarce sensible of winter. The towns and villages stand thick, and are so crowded with women and children spinning silk before their houses, which is the most remarkable, is most of the natives of Spain have abandoned their wives to a more useful life.

The city of Valencia surrendered to the King of Portugal in the year 1705, and the whole province declared for King Charles, the late Emperor Charles VI. took offer; but was lost again, June 1707, after the defeat of the Allies at Almansa, and the citizens paid very dear for adhering to King Charles. It is the see of an archbishop, and has an university.

Italy in the fifth century, several considerable families of Padua and Aquileia retired hither, to secure themselves from an enemy they could not resist, and laid the foundation of this great city upon 72 of these little islands, it is said, at first; but Venice stands now upon a much greater number, and is so happily situated, that no army can approach it by land, nor any hostile fleet by sea; the avenues to these islands being so exceedingly difficult, that they have not thought it necessary to inclose the city with a wall; nor has any power attempted to besiege it since it was founded, which it now 1200 years and upwards. Nothing can appear more beautiful than this town does, in the approach, either from the continent of the sea, for we behold this fine city, with its numerous palaces and lofty towers rising out of the waters as it were, washed by the flood on every side, nothing intervening to obstruct the sight. The circumference of the city is about 5 miles, and the inhabitants computed to be near 100,000; the channel so numerous, that you may go to any part of the town by water, and there are 250 bridges over them; the principal bridge called the Rialto, lying over the grand canal, composed of one arch (which makes one third of a circle) 60 feet wide. None of the bridges but this have any rails.

There are not quays on the sides of all the canals where people can walk; but sometimes the canal fills the whole street from one side to the other.

The piazza of St. Mark, it is said, is not to be paralleled for the magnificence of its buildings, and the houses upon the grand canal are most of them elegant palaces, with marble fronts, adorned with pillars of the several orders of architecture. Their rooms are usually hung with gilt leather or tapestry, and their bedsteads of iron, which secures them against the vermin so troublesome in London. But these advantages are attended with some great inconveniences; they have no good cellar for their wine; all their water is bad, but what is brought from the continent; and their canals, in the heat of summer, create very offensive smells.

The sovereign power is lodged in the nobility. There are about 1500 noblemen at present, who constitute their grand council, or assembly of the state, and are styled Noble Venetians, whose honours descend to their posterity, and they have a right of being members of the council at the age of 25.

The Doge, or Duke of Venice is clothed in royal robes, and has the honours of a sovereign Prince paid him, but has very little share in the government; as the legislative power is lodged in the great council; there are several other councils to whom the administration of the government is committed; and there is one council or state-inquisition, which has a power of imprisoning and putting to death the greatest noblemen, even the Doge himself, if they apprehend him to be dangerous to the state, and that without bringing him to an open trial, or giving him an opportunity of making his defence. And tho' the noblemen of the city of Venice are vested with very great powers and privileges, the ancient nobility on the continent have scarce any; nor are they at all respected at Venice, for the titles they bear of marquises, counts, &c. These the Venetians endeavour to depress, and even to extirpate, as the Dutch do those of Holland.

The annual revenues of the republic are computed to be 1,200,000 l. sterling, and their forces may amount to 24,000 by land. They can equip a fleet of 30 men of war, 100 galleys, and 10 galasses, it is said; but they seldom engage the Turks at sea, without foreign assistance. A noble Venetian is always generalissimo at sea, but they make choice of some foreign general for the land service, who is attended by several senators, without whose concurrence he can transact nothing; and they chuse to employ Swiss, Germans, and other foreign troops in their wars, rather than their own subjects; but they desire to be at peace with all their neighbours, if possible; not only because they apprehend themselves weaker, but war hurts their traffic, which is their chief support, though it was much greater formerly, when they brought the merchandise of Asia from Alexandria, and distributed it to all the countries of Europe. Still the manufactures and produce of their country furnish them with merchandise to traffic with. They make wrought silks of various kinds, brocades, gold and silver stuffs, and damasks, as well as velvets. They export wine, oil, fruit, Venetian steel, copper, glass, essences, turpentine, &c. and the goods they purchase in Turkey are taken off by the Germans.

As to their religion, it is that of the Roman Catholic, but it can scarce be called Popery, the Pope has a little authority at Venice; their church has two patriarchs, the one of Aquileia, and the other of Venice; and these are subject entirely to the temporal power. The republic of Venice is as arbitrary in ecclesiastical causes as the states of Holland. The Pope is looked upon as a temporal Prince at Venice, and their patriarchs little more than cyphers. And tho' they have a kind of Inquisition, that court can put none of their decrees in execution, without the leave of the state. The Venetians are neither governed by priests or monks; men of such professions indeed may enjoy the diversion of masquerading, during the carnival; they may keep concubines, sing upon the stage, and take what liberties they please, so as they do not meddle with the government; and the nuns of Venice have not a much better reputation than their clergy. Their patriarch was about to restrain the liberties taken in those houses, and he began with the nuns of St. Lawrence; but they told him they were noble Venetians, who had made choice of that way of life as most convenient, and would not be subject to his regulations; and the senate interposed, and required the patriarch to desist.

in circumference, about which there is a wall of no great strength on the land side. The air is as unwholesome here as at Porto Bello, and it is inhabited chiefly by Mulattoes and Blacks. Very few Spaniards reside here, unless when the flotilla arrives, and then it is crowded with people from all parts of Spanish America, who are content to live in little huts or tents, while the fair lasts; but, on the departure of the fleet, all men of any substance retire. The ordinary garrison the Spaniards keep here consists only of a troop of 60 horse, and two regiments of foot. It was near this place, viz. Ulva, that Cortes landed when he invaded Mexico.

VERAGUA, a province of Mexico, in America, bounded by the North sea on the N. by the pr. of Darien, or Terra Firma, and the gulph of Panama on the E. by the Pacific ocean on the S. and by the pr. of Costa-Rica on the W. It is a mountainous, barren country, but has rich gold finds and silver mines in it. It is about 125 miles in length, and 40 in breadth; and was first discovered by Columbus in 1502; the chief town is that of Conception.

VERNON, E. lon. 1. 30. lat. 49. 6. a town of France, in the pr. of Normandy, sit. on the river Seine, 27 m. S. E. of Rouen.

VEROLI, E. lon. 14. lat. 41. 40. a town of Italy, in the Pope's ter. and Campana of Rome, sit. near the confines of Naples, 55 miles E. of Rome.

VERONA, E. lon. 11. lat. 45. 24. a city of Italy, in the ter. of Venice, capital of the Veronese, sit. on the river Adige, 24 miles N. of Mantua; the see of a bishop and an university. It is 6 miles in circumference, and well fortified, and has several noble families and public buildings in it; and among their antiquities there is a Roman amphitheatre, which has all the seats remaining, and would hold 25,000 spectators; the longest diameter of the area 233 feet, and the shortest diameter 136 feet. There is also in Verona the remains of a triumphal arch, and of a magnificent temple dedicated to Jupiter. Pliny, the historian, and Pliny, the naturalist, and Vitruvius, the celebrated architect, were born here.

VERVILLE, E. lon. 2. 15. lat. 48. 46. a town of France, in the pr. of the ile of France, sit. 11 m. W. of Paris, where stands one of the most elegant and magnificent palaces in the world, built by Lewis XIV. King of France.

France, upon an eminence, in the middle of a plain, surrounded with hills at an agreeable distance. The usual residence of the Kings of France.

VIZOU, E. lon. 8. lat. 45. a town of Italy, in the pr. of Piedmont, sit. on a hill on the lide of the river Po, 20 miles N. E. of Turin. It is a very strong place, and held out a siege of six months against all the efforts the French could make in the year 1795; but, expecting no relief, the governor was at length compelled to surrender. This, and the rest of the towns of Piedmont were recovered by the Allies, and restored to their old master, the Duke of Savoy, anno 1796.

VIZOU, E. lon. 5. 15. lat. 47. 27. a town of France, in the pr. of Franche Compté, sit. 23 miles N. of Besançon.

VEVUJANA MOUNT, E. lon. 15. lat. 41. sit. 6 miles E. of the city of Naples, in Italy. Within a mile and an half of the top, it is covered so thick with the ashes of the burnt earth, and grows so steep that it is very difficult ascending it. From this mount, there have been several terrible eruptions in the present age. In April 1694, the mountain was on fire great part of the month, and threw out burning matter with that force, that some of it fell at 30 miles distance, and a vast quantity of melted minerals, mixed with other matter, ran down like a river, for 3 miles, carrying every thing before it which lay in its way. In the year 1707, when they were rejoicing for the success of the Imperialists, they were interrupted by a dreadful eruption from mount Vevujana, such quantities of cinders and ashes being thrown out, that it was dark at Naples at noon-day; there have been some eruptions of a much later date, and they are frequently alarmed with earthquakes before the fire issues from this mount.

VAXIN FRANÇOIS, a ter. of the pr. of France, lying E. of the pr. of Normandy.

in the pr. of Servia, sit. on the river Danube, 138 miles S. E. of Belgrade; see of an archbishop.

VIENNA, E. lon. 16. 30. lat. 48. 20. the capital city of the circle of Austria, and of the German empire, is sit. on the river Danube, where the Wien falls into that river, 130 miles S. E. of Prague, 200 E. of Munich, 750 S. E. of London, 625 S. E. of Paris, 300 N. W. of Belgrade, and 700 N. W. of Constantinople. The city, within the walls, is not more than 3 miles in circumference, but the suburbs are much larger than the city. It is so well fortified, that it has sustained several sieges; the last by the Turks, in 1683, lasted two months, and was a very terrible one; but it was relieved in a critical hour by John Sobieski, King of Poland, and the Duke of Lorraine.

Vicana is built of stone, the houses five or six stories high, with flat roofs. The Imperial family have two large palaces here, in which there are several grand apartments; but the buildings are neither uniform or elegant, nor the furniture so rich as might be expected in the palaces of the first prince in Europe; but the houses of the nobility and great officers of state are magnificent structures; the palace of the late Prince Eugene particularly, is the admiration of all who view it, as well for the grandeur of the building, and convenience of the apartments, as for the richness of the furniture.

The Prat in Vicana is frequented by people of quality, as the Mall is in London. It is a wood in an island, formed by the branches of the Danube, which renders it exceeding pleasant.

Vicana is an archbishopric, and the cathedral of St. Stephen, a magnificent old building; but dark. It has 6 gates, 20 streets, 29 churches, 8 chapels, and 38 market places. The university is equal to any in Europe, in point of antiquity, the number of students, or their accommodations and privileges. The Austrian library is in great esteem, containing upwards of 80,000 volumes, printed books and manuscripts.

There is no place where people eat and drink more plentifully, and are better served with wine, as well as eatables, than they are at Vienna. People of distinction will have 50 or 20 different sorts of wine at their tables, and a note is laid on every plate, enumerating the several sorts of wine that may be called for; and it is a very difficult thing for a stranger to get off without being made sensible of the strength of them.

This city, tho' it be so far within land; has, in some parts of it, the air of a sea port; for here are magazines of naval stores, and ships of war built and fitted out, which serve upon the Danube against the Turks; and there have been many smart engagements between the fleets of the Turks and Germans upon that river, especially about Belgrade. After all that has been said of this magnificent city, the most faithful accounts handed to us by those who have visited it, are far from being lavish in its praise. It is the usual residence of the Emperor.

VIENNE, E. lon. 4. 34. lat. 45. 35. a town of France, in the pr. of Dauphine, cap. of the ter. of Viennois, sit. on the Rhone, 15 miles S. of Lyons, and 40 N. W. of Grenoble; see of an archbishop.

VIGITE, or VIGÈ, E. lon. 17. lat. 41. 58. a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and pr. of the Capitanate, sit. on the gulph of Venice, 19 m. N. of Manfredonia; see of a bishop.

VIGO, W. lon. 8. 21. lat. 42. 15. a port town of Spain, in the pr. of Galicia, sit. on a fine bay of the Atlantic ocean, which forms a capaclose harbour, 70 miles S. E. of Cape Finisterre, 30 S. of Compostella, and 205 N. W. of Madrid. Here the confederate fleet commanded by Sir George Rooke, attacked a squadron of French men of war, commanded by Monsieur Chateau Renard, with 13 Spanish galleons under his convoy, while the Duke of Ormond, with a body of land-forces, drove the Spaniards from the castles which defended the harbour; and Admiral Hopson having broke thro' the boom laid cross the mouth of the harbour with infinite hazard, the English took four galleons and five large men of war, and the Dutch five galleons, and one large man of war; four other galleons, with 14 men of war, were destroyed with abundance of plate, and other rich effects; and a considerable quantity of plate was taken; but the greatest part of it had been carried on shore before the engagement, which happened October 12, 1702.

VIRGIN ISLANDS, very small Islands of the Caribbees, sit. in the Atlantic or American ocean, a little to the eastward of Porto Rico; sub. to Spain.

VIRGINIA, one of the British American colonies, is sit. between 74 and 80 degrees of W. lon. and between 36 and 39 degrees of N. lat. being bounded by the river Patowmack, which separates it from Maryland, on the N. E. by the Atlantic ocean on the E. by Carolina on the S. and by the Apalachian mountains on the W. being about 240 miles long from N. to S. and not more than 150 broad from E. to W. if we comprehend only the lands which are planted, but may be extended as far westward as we think fit.

The country near the sea is flat, low land, but begins to rise into hills within less than 100 miles, terminating, at length, in the Apalachian mountains, which are covered with snow great part of the year, and when the wind sits from the W. or N. W. it is excessive cold, though a little before, perhaps, when the wind sat from the opposite points, it was so warm that people could scarce bear their cloaths on. This sudden alteration of the weather occasions the air to be a little unwholesome, at least it is so to such as expose themselves too much to the weather, especially in the night time.

The country is well replenished with timber, which grows to an unusual height and bulk, the trees standing at such a distance, that a coach and six may drive thro' them; and among their fruits they have grapes which grow wild, and would make wine, if the planters were not altogether taken up with cultivating tobacco. Silk Grass also grows here spontaneously, and the soil is extremely proper for hemp and flax, and yet they have neither silk or linen manufactures, for the reason already assigned; for it is the excellence of the Virginian tobacco which distinguishes it from all other countries; and of this they have enough to supply great part of Europe, which they do at a very moderate price, the prime cost not being more than 1 d. lb. though the duties imposed upon it make it dear enough before it arrives in England; and none of our colonies yield the crown of England so large a revenue as this. There are very few towns in Virginia; James Town and Williamsburg, which are the chief, have neither of them 100 houses. Every planter chuses to reside upon his estate or farm in the country, and most of them lie near some of their great rivers; so that ships can come almost up to their doors, and take in their tobacco.

The Virginians have a regular clergy of the church of England, under the superintendency of the Bishop of London; and they have provided houses, glebes, and tithes of tobacco in every parish, for the subsistence of their several ministers, which is a very plentiful maintenance: the society for the propagation of the gospel, therefore, do not send any missionaries to this colony; and, besides a church in every parish, there is a chapel of ease built in those that are very extensive. Such is the hospitality of the Virginians, that a traveller needs no recommendation to their houses; he will be entertained at any gentleman's, or planter's house where he calls, which speaks much upon the roads altogether useful. — Fortifications they had none in Virginia till very lately, that they have begun to build some forts, but depended altogether upon a well-regulated militia to defend them by land, and upon the cruizers sent from England for their defence at sea; neither do they at all apply themselves to building of ships, though they have plenty of good timber, as well as all manner of naval stores of their own growth, and a multitude of commodious harbours, or rather their whole country is but one grand harbour, after you have entered the bay of Chesapeake, between the two capes of Cape Charles and Cape Henry.

Virginia is usually divided in four parts, viz. The North, the Middle, the South, and the Eastern divisions; and these contain 24 counties, with 23 parishes. This is the first country which the English planted in America. We derived our sight, not only to this, but to all our other settlements, from the discovery of Sebastian Cabot, who, in 1497, first made the northern coast of America, in the service of Henry VII. of England. No attempts, however, were made to settle in north the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The government of this country now, tho' not heretofore, bears a striking resemblance to our own. It consists of an upper and lower house of assembly, with a governor, representing the king. The members of the upper house, who are styled honourable, are appointed by the crown during pleasure. But the lower house is the guardian of the people's liberties. However, no bill passing these houses, acquires the force of law, without the governor's consent, nor then, until it is transmitted to England for the consent of his Majesty. The upper house, acts not only as a part of the legislature, but also as a privy council to the governor, without whose concurrence he can do nothing of moment. The commercial advantages Great Britain derives from this province, are very considerable; the particulars of which are too numerous to have a place here.

UNOWAR, B. lon. 22. 30. lat. 48. 30. a town of Upper Hungary, six near the foot of the Carpathian mountains; 40 m. N. E. of Tockay; seen to the house of Austria.

UNITED NETHERLANDS, consist of the provinces of Holland, Zealand, Frickland, Groningen, Overijssel, Gelderland, with Zutphen and Utrecht, and are bounded by the German sea on the N. and W. by the circle of Westphalia in Germany on the E. and by Flanders, Brabant, and the duchy of Cleves on the S. lying between 50 degrees 30 min. and 7 degrees 30 min. N. lat. and between 5 degrees 30 min. and 15 degrees 30 min. E. lon. and is about 30 miles long, and as many broad, including the Zuyder sea which takes up a considerable space within these limits. Gelderland and Zutphen form only one sovereignty, so that there are properly but seven provinces, on which account, they are generally called the Seven United Provinces.

This is a flat, level country, lying on the mouth of several great rivers, and cut through with numerous canals, which form a multitude of little islands, liable to be overflowed by inundations of the sea, as well as by fresh floods. The sea and rivers appearing higher than the land in many places, and only kept out by dikes, prodigious banks of earth, which have been broken down in some parts, and towns laid under water, the tops of steeples and towers where they stood being visible at low water. But as part of the country has been lost by inundations, a great deal more has been gained by draining and reclaiming out the sea.

The air of this watery country is very bad, and the lives of the natives here so long as those who dwell in other more temperate situations.

As to the soil of the provinces which lie next the sea, particularly on the West coast of Holland, there lies a ridge of sand-hills of 18 miles extent, which break the fury of the ocean, but produce scarce any herbage; but, beyond these sands, are rich pasture and arable lands, or a spongy, boggy soil, out of which they dig the turf, which is almost their only rising. Their meadow and pasture is most of it under water in Winter, which, on the return of Summer, is either dried up, or taken out with wind-mills, and the water lowered a few fathoms higher behind it, which makes the soil exceeding fruitful, on which they fat the lean cattle they purchase in the North, and make prodigious quantities of butter and cheese; but the country does not produce corn enough for their subsistence; notwithstanding which, they have as great plenty of it as any nation in Europe; as they have indeed of the produce of every country; for, in these provinces, are manufactures of every thing the earth produces that is valuable, purchased when cheap, and often sold when they are dear to the very countries from whence they fetched them; and great part of the merchandise they import, is manufactured in the country, and exported again to great advantage. They have very considerable manufactures of silk, velvet, linen, and woollen; and they build more ships than any nation of Europe, having always prodigious magazines of ship-timber and naval stores; inasmuch, that, it is said, they can build and fit out a fleet of war every day in the year.

One great source of their wealth is their fishery; that of whales they have almost monopolized, and that of herring is more valuable to them than to all the world besides; and their cod-fishery is equal to that of any other nation.

The wine-spices they have monopolized, having drove the Spaniards, Portuguese, English, and every other nation, nation, from the islands where they grow, and setting what price they please upon them; with these, they purchase the produce of every other country almost, and very seldom have occasion to find their specie away.

The United Provinces are a confederacy of several independent states; every province, and every city almost is a separate state, and not bound by the determination of the States General, until their consent is had. As the States General cannot make war, peace, or alliance, or levy taxes, without the consent of every province; neither can the states of any province determine any thing of this kind, without the consent of every city and petty republic in it.

The State of Holland consist of the deputies or representatives of the nobility, and of 25 cities, making in all 29 votes, of which the nobility have only one.

In the city of Amsterdam, the sovereign power is lodged in 25 senators, who continue members of the senate for life; and when one dies, the surviving senators elect another in his room; the people have nothing to do in this choice; and the senators elect the deputies to be sent to the States of Holland, and appoint the Burgo-masters and Aldermen, who may be re-elected to the same and aftermen. The pensioner may be re-elected to the senate, who is always a person well versed in the civil law and customs of the country; and tho' he be inferior to the senators, he has a very great influence on the state, and is usually assisted by several ministers.

The constitution of the government in other cities does not differ much from that of Amsterdam; the power is lodged in the principal magistrates, and the people have no share in it, or in the election of their governors.

The States General consist of the representatives of the Seven United Provinces; who sit constantly at the Hague; and no particular government, or military officer, can sit and vote in the assembly of the States General. Each province appoints a president of this assembly in its turn, who is changed every year. He sits in the middle of a large hall, which will hold about 200 persons; the usual number of which the States General are composed; every province deputing what number of representatives they please; though all that are deputed by a single province have but one voice; and when the States General have resolved upon any thing relating to peace or war, alliance or treaty, it must be sent to every province and city, which being sovereign states, to be approved and ratified.

The Dutch usually raise annually between two and three millions sterl. in time of peace, out of which are paid their land forces, consisting of 25,000 men, furnished at with any national troops, particularly Switzers and Scots; and they have soldiers less than 50 men of war in commission. Besides the troops already mentioned, the Dutch used to keep 25 or 30,000 more in the border towns, for maintaining of which, they received the sum of 500,000 crowns per annum out of the revenues of the Austrian Netherlands. These taxes are raised by an alcohol, ground-stuffs and salt; in time of war there is usually a poll-tax, a land-tax, and chimney, or hearth money, levied. The several provinces and city vary their taxes as they see fit, tho' they provide the equal demand of them, the States General give no assistance in the method of raising it; but, though the Dutch can every thing that is consumed at home, by eating, drinking, clothing, &c. they take care that the Dutch on merchandise shall be extremely dear, both on importation and exportation, which makes their country a free port in a manner, and draws out of the trade of Europe children.

Their provision is very scarce, the best people of any spot in the whole extent in the world. They would according

according to the most authentic accounts, 113 cities, and towns, 1400 villages, and about two millions of inhabitants; besides the 23 towns, and the people in what is called, the Lands of the Generality, or Conquer'd Countries and Towns of other parts of the Netherlands. — The principal seat of government for the United Provinces is at the Hague, which, tho' but a village, is celebrated for the magnificence and beauty of its buildings; its being the residence of all foreign ambassadors, and strangers of distinction; the abundance and cheapness of its provisions, and the politeness of its inhabitants, who are computed to be about 40,000; and it has been for many years noted as an expository of pleasure and politics.

Utarch, one of the United Provinces of the Netherlands, is bounded by the Zuider sea, and part of Holland on the N. by Gelderland on the E. and by the Rhine on the S. and by another part of Holland on the W. being about 25 miles long, and 21 many broad. This is one of the most pleasant and healthful provinces in the United Netherlands, being firm ground, and very little bog and morass, as most of the other provinces are.

Utarch city, E. lon. 3. lat. 52. 7. capital of the province of Utrecht, in the United Netherlands, sit. on the ancient channel of the Rhine, 23 miles S. E. of Amsterdam, and 27 N. E. of Rotterdam. A large, populous, well-built city, the residence of a great many people of distinction, who resort hither on account of the goodness of the air, and the pleasantness of the situation, and have have built several handsome seats in it. It is fortified, but not esteemed a place of strength, at least the inhabitants did not think fit to give the French King, Lewis XIV. the trouble of besieging them, but opened their gates to him when he invaded the United Provinces, anno 1672; and he kept his court in this city more than a year. Here the peace was made between the A'lies and France, anno 1713, in the reign of Queen Anne. It has a very flourishing university; but the students wear no distinguishing habits, or reside in colleges, as in England, but every one lodges where he sees fit.

UZZHIDOR, a market town of Middlesex, sit. on the river Colne, 28 miles W. of London.

USBECK, or USBECK Tartary, the present Bochara, is bounded by Calmuck Tartary on the N. by Tibet on the E. by India and Persia on the S. and by a great desert, which separates it from the Caspian sea on the W. What the exact limits of this country are, at present, is not easy to determine; but as it was the kingdom of the Great Tamerlane, it was once very extensive; and the kingdoms of India, Persia, and Turky, if not China, were then dependent on it, and from him the sovereigns of India and Persia derive their pedigree; but what remains of Usbeck Tartary or Bochara at present, was made tributary to the late Kouli Khan, who stormed and plundered their capital city Bochara. Usbeck Tartary is a fruitful country, and temperate climate, and well situated for traffic, lying between Persia, India, China, and Russia; and accordingly it appears that Kouli Khan, their conqueror, found very great riches in the town of Bochara when he took it, which is large and populous, and is 70 miles E. of the river Amoo, and 13 W. by S. of Samarcand, E. lon. 65. 30. lat. 39. 15.

E. and by the same river, which separates it from the pr. of Servia, on the S. W. being 225 m. long, and 125 broad, blessed with a temperate air, and fruitful soil, producing excellent corn, wine, oil, pasture, and all manner of European fruits; abundance of oxen, and sheep, and an excellent breed of horses, but, with all these advantages, very unhappy under the Turkish tyranny; for they are heavily taxed, and obliged to bring as many forces into the field as the Grand Seigneur requires, at their own charges; and tho' he suffers them to be governed by a native of the country, he appoints whom he pleases to be their governor or prince, as he is called, without any regard to one family more than another, and deposes him as often as he sees fit. The only thing they are indulged in, is a free exercise of their religion, which is the Christian, of the Greek communion, which they apprehend they should not be, if they submitted to the Germans; and this makes them the more faithful to the Turks, and less inclined to submit to princes of the Roman Catholic communion.

WALCHERIN, the chief of the islands of Zeland, in the United Provinces, separated from the islands of N. and S. Beveland, by a narrow channel, and from Dutch Flanders by the mouth of the Scheld, and surrounded on every other part of the German sea. The chief town of the island, and of the whole pr. of Zeland, is Middleburg. This island is about 9 miles long, and 3 broad, lies very low, and is subject to inundations, and not healthful; but it is generally fruitful, having good arable and pasture lands. Among other towns are those of Flushing and Tervet, which belong to the Prince of Orange.

WALES, a principality in the W. of England, comprehending 12 counties, bounded by Cheshire, Shropshire, Herefordshire, and Monmouthshire, on the E. and surrounded by the sea, called the Irish channel, on the N. W. and S. This is the country to which the ancient Britons fled for refuge, when this island was invaded by the Saxons. The inhabitants are now called Welch, and the ancient language is still preserved amongst them. It contains 751 parishes, and 58 market towns. Edward I. annexed Wales to the crown of England, by usurpation; and his son Edward II. being born in Carnarvon castle, during the time he was prosecuting his tyranny and cruelties, he concluded the Welch would more readily recognize his authority, which was the case. From this time the title of Prince of Wales has always descended to the eldest sons of the Kings of England.

WALES NEW, the S. W. coast of Hudson's Bay, in North America, is called; now possessed by the English Hudson's Bay Company.

WESTMINSTER CITY, forms
the W. part of the town, which goes
under the general name of London;
but it is under a distinct government.

W E

The dean and chapter of Westminster appoint the high steward and high bailiff, and other officers, who have the government of this city; whereas the lord-mayor and aldermen have the government of that part of the town properly called London. In Westminster are the King's palace, and the houses of most of the nobility and persons of distinction in the kingdom; and here are held the high court of parliament, and the supreme courts of justice; but there is no bishop of this city. It elects two members to parl. and has a fine bridge over the Thames into Surry, a most complete and elegant structure, 1223 feet broad, and 44 feet wide, has 14 piers, and 35 arches, and cost about 380,500 l. building, which was accomplished in less than 12 years. The collegiate church of Westminster, called the abbey, is a very venerable pile of building in the Gothic taste.

WESTMORELAND, an English co. bounded by Cumberland on the N. by Yorkshire on the E. by Lancashire on the S. and by the Irish channel on the W. the chief town Appleby. It is 40 miles in length, and 21 in breadth, containing 26 parishes, 8 market towns, and sends 4 members to parl.

WIGHT ISLAND, an island lying on the S. coast of Hampshire, of which it is a part, and is only separated from it by a narrow channel. It is upwards of 20 miles in length, and more than 14 in breadth; consisting of good arable and pasture ground, hills, and valleys, woods, and champaign, and is equal to any part of England, of the same dimensions, either in the fruitfulness of the soil, or pleasantness of the situation. There are no fortifications on the island, capable of sustaining a siege, and therefore, it would lie pretty much exposed to the invasions of an enemy, if great part of the royal navy were not stationed at Portsmouth in the same county, a little distance from it, and the general rendezvous of the men of war were not at Spithead, at the E. end of this island. The narrowest part of the channel, at the W. end of the island, which separates it from the rest of Hampshire, is called the Needles, through which large ships may pass, but with some hazard, unless properly piloted. It is exceeding populous, has 26 parish churches, and several good towns, the chief of which is Newport. Some general of the army has usually been governor of this island, and it is a very profitable post, but it is now possessed by the Right Hon. Hans Stanley, Esq; Con- ferred to his Majesty's household, and member for the town of Southampton.

The present race of inhabitants, are, in general, a handsome people, and most of the females are remarkable for their beauty. Some curious historical anecdotes of this island may be seen in Camden's Britannia.

it. It is the see of a bishop, and elects two members of parl. There is a fine college and school here, endowed with a large revenue, founded by the venerable William of Wickham, who also founded New College in Oxford, whither the scholars of this school are sent, when they are qualified for the university, and are entitled to fellowships there. The palace, during the late war, was used for lodging of French prisoners. The cathedral church is a very beautiful structure, and contains many curious monuments, of great antiquity; and the whole city is now rendered more beautiful, as well as commodious, than heretofore, the streets being lately new paved.

WINDISMAR, a division of the duchy of Carniola, in the circle of Austria, in Germany. Metling is the capital town.

WINDSOR, a borough town of Berkshire, 21 miles W. of London, most remarkable for its magnificent castle, which is a royal palace, finely situated on an eminence, which commands the adjacent country for many miles, the river Thames running at the foot of the hill. The Knights of the Garter are installed in the royal chapel. The town elects two members of parl.

YONNE, a river of France, which rises in Burgundy, and runs N. thro' Nivernois and Champaign, passing by Auxerre and Sens, and falling into the river Seine, near Montereau sat Yonne.

YORK CITY, W. lon. 1. 3. lat. 54. the capital of Yorkshire, sit. on the river Ouse, 198 miles N. by W. of London. It is a large city, and has some good buildings in it, and during the Winter, a great many people of quality reside here, for whose entertainment they have lately built a magnificent assembly-house. The cathedral is a noble Gothic pile, equal to any thing of the kind in England. It is the see of an archbishop, and gives the title of Duke to the King's brother, and elects two members of parl. The chief magistrate has the title of Lord Mayor. It is not a place of great trade. It contains 30 parish churches and chapels, besides the cathedral, and is surrounded by a strong wall, has four gates, and five posterns. It is a city and county of itself, which contains 36 villages and hamlets.

YORKSHIRE, the largest county in England, being 90 miles in length from E. to W. and 75 in breadth from N. to S. bounded on the N. by the county of Durham, on the E. by the German sea, on the S. by Derbyshire, Nottinghamshire, and Lincolnshire, and on the W. by Westmoreland, and Lancashire. It contains 363 parishes.

37 market towns, and sends 30 members to parl. It is divided into three ridings, the North, West, and East; besides which, there is a fourth division, called Richmondshire, as also Cleveland, Craven and Holderness, which are all included in the three ridings. The principal rivers are, the Tees, the Swale, the Youre, the Ouse, the Warf, the Calder, the Derwent, the Dun, the Hull, and the great river Humber, which is made up of many rivers.

YORK NEW, one of the British colonies in North America, which, if we comprehend the Jerseys, that frequently have the same governor, is sit. between 72 and 76 degrees of W. lon. and between 41 and 44 degrees of N. lat. bounded by Canada on the N. New England on the E. the American sea on the S. and Pensilvan a and the country of the Iroquois on the W. being upwards of 200 miles in length from N. to S. but scarce 60 broad in any part. This country produces corn, and abounds in cattle, and a good breed of horses; but they are chiefly employed in the fishery for whales, as well as cod-fish. They supply the sugar-islands with flour, salt beef and pork, and salt fish, with horses and timber. They export a great deal of dried and salted fish to Europe, and bring logwood, whale-oil and bone to England, and from thence are supplied with most of their cloathing and furniture, and tools. This is a royal government, the King appointing the governor and council, but they elect their own representatives or parliament-men. The established religion here is that of the church of England, though other persuasions are tolerated, and have their respective places of worship allowed them. The pr. lies a little exposed to the French and Canada Indians on the N. for which reason some forts have been built on that side; and on the S. it is not a small force that can hurt them, having the sea for their defence, and a garrison of 400 men in the city of New York, and usually some cruisers on the coast. New York was called so, because it was at first granted to the Duke of that name. New Jersey was granted to Sir Geo. Carteret, and others; and received its present name, because Sir George had, as the family still have, estates in the island of Jersey. It was divided into two provinces, viz. East and West Jerseys, and possessed by different proprietors; but in the year 1702, these proprietors made an assignment of their rights to the crown. Soon after this, the Jerseys were united to New York, and at present form one government with it. The commerce of these countries does not materially differ from that of New England. They take almost the same sort of commodities from England, with the inhabitants of Boston. At an average of three years, their exports are said to amount to 526,000 l. and their imports from Great Britain to 531,000 l. The pr. of New York is supposed to contain between 80 and 100,000 inhabitants, and the Jerseys about 60,000. The Swedes and Dutch were the first Europeans who formed settlements towards these provinces. The tract claimed by the two nations, called the New Netherlands, continued in their hands to the time of Charles II. when it was confirmed to the English by the treaty of Breda, 1667.

YORK NEW, CITY, W. lon. 74. 30. lat. 41. capital of the pr. of New York, is sit. on an island in the mouth of Hudson's river, about 14 miles long, and 3. broad. It contains about 2000 houses, well built with brick and stone, and standing on an eminence, surrounded with a wall, and other modern fortifications, makes a fine appearance. It has also a spacious harbour, with commodious quays and warehouses on them, and employs several hundred ships and vessels in their foreign trade and fisheries. The inhabitants

ZAARA, or Sahara, one of the divisions of Africa, is sit. under the tropic of Capricorn, bounded by Bildulgerid on the N. by the unknown parts of Africa on the E. by Nigritia or Negroland on the S. and by the Atlantic ocean on the W. a barren desert, as the name signifies, and so destitute of water, that the caravans of camels, which pass over it from Morocco, to traffic with Negroland, are half loaded with water and provisions. As it produces scarce any thing to sustain life, there are no towns in it, but a sort of people like the Arabs, who live in tents, and being acquainted with the few springs there are, wander from one part of the country to the other, as they expect to meet with water and feed for their cattle. They are not black, but of an olive complexion; their language Arabic, and their religion Mahometanism, supposed to be the descendants of those Arabs who subdued Africa soon after the death of their prophet Mahomet.

ZANQUEBAR, or Zinjibar, is a country on the E. coast of Africa, sit. in southern lat. between the equator and the tropic of Capricorn, being bounded by the country of Anian on the N. by the Indian ocean on the E. by Caffraria, or the country of the Hottentots on the S. and by the unknown parts of Africa on the W. comprehending the provinces of Magadora, Melinda, Quilloa, Mozambique, and Sofala. Here the Portuguese have a great many colonies and Attilements, and pretend that they have made a great many profelytes to christianity among the Negroes, and claim a kind of dominion over the petty princes on this coast.—The Portuguese trade with them for gold, slaves, ivory, ostrich feathers, wax, and drugs; besides which, the country produces rice, sugar, and such fruits as are usually found between the tropics. The natives, who have not embraced christianity, are either Mahometans or Pagans.

ZANTE, E. lon. 21. 30. lat. 37. 57. an island of the Mediterranean, sit. 12 miles W. of the Morea, and 14 S. of the island of Cephalonia, being 24 long, and 12 broad, very considerable on account of the little grapes it produces, called currants, or corinths, from their being cultivated formerly about Corinth, where there are now scarce any; most of the countries in Europe being supplied with them from this island. The natives are most of them Greeks, but the Venetians, to whom the island is subject, have introduced the Roman Catholic religion here. The chief town is Zante, sit. on the E. side of the island, well fortified and defended by a castle, the residence of the governor, who is always a noble Venetian of the first rank. This island lies very much exposed to the attacks of the Turks, since the Venetians lost the Morea, anno 1715.

ZARA, E. lon. 15. 29. lat. 44. 32. a city of Dalmatia, sit. on the gulph of Venice, 60 m. N. W. of Spoletto, surrounded by the sea, and strongly fortified; the see of an archbishop, and sub. to Venice.

ZARNAW, E. lon. 20. lat. 51. 30. a town of Poland, in the pr. of Little Poland, and pal. of Sandomir, sit. 63 m. N. of Cracow.

ZATMAR, E. lon. 22. 24. lat. 48. a town of Hungary, sit. 45 miles E. of Tockay; sub. to the house of Austria.

ZATOR, E. lon. 19. 20. lat. 50. a town of Poland, sit. on the river Vistula, 14 m. W. of Cracow.

ZEALAND, the chief of the Danish islands, is sit. at the entrance of the Baltic sea, bounded by the sea called the Schaggerack on the N. by the strait called the Sound, which separates it from Schonen in Sweden, on the E. by the Baltic sea on the S. and by the strait, called the Great Belt, which separates it from the island of Funen, on the W. being of a round figure near 200 m. in circumference; the chief town Copenhagen, the cap. of the kingdom of Denmark, sit. on the eastern coast. The island of Zealand produces no bread-corn but rye, of which there is not enough to subsist the inhabitants; and there is but little meadow or pasture ground; a fourth part of the island is forest, and reserved for the King's game, and a great deal more taken up in lakes and marshes, which, with the neighbourhood of the sea, occasions a thick foggy air.

ZEALAND, one of the Seven Provinces of the United Netherlands, consists of 8 islands, which lie in the mouth of the river Scheld, bounded by the pr. of Holland, from which they are separated by a narrow channel on the N. by Brabant on the E. by Flanders, from which they are separated by one of the branches of the Scheld on the S. and by the German sea on the W. the chief of which islands is that of Walcheren, whereon the city of Middleburg, the cap. of the pr. is sit. The land lies very low in all these islands, which renders them liable to inundations, and puts them to great expences in maintaining their dikes or banks, and occasions an unwholesome air; but the islands are generally fruitful, and produce good corn and pasture; and by their fisheries and foreign trade, the people become exceeding rich, tho' there are not many manufactures in their province.

This was the residence of the late Duke of Zell and Lauenburg, till these duchies devolved on the late Elector of Hanover, George I. King of England, by his marrying the heiress of the late Duke, mother to his late majesty George II. This city was taken by the French, under Marshal Richlieu, in 1757, but was evacuated in Feb. 1758. They set fire to the suburbs, after plundering the houses, and burnt the greatest part of the children in the orphan-hospital, with other buildings and farm-houses.

ZOLNOCZ, E. lon. 20. 10. lat. 47. 10. a town of Upper Hungary, sit. on the river Teyssle, 53 miles S. E. of Buda.

ZONNEN, a small village near Curtin in Brandenburg, where the King of Prussia defeated the Russian army, Aug. 25. 1758.

ZUG, one of the cantons of Switzerland, is surrounded by the cantons of Lucern, Zurich, and Swits, and is 18 miles long, and 7 broad, more fruitful than some of its neighbours; for the country produces corn and wine enough to subsist the inhabitants, who are of the Romish communion. The principal town in the canton is Zug, pleasantly situated on a lake of the same name. In this, and the rest of the smaller cantons, the legislative power is lodged in the diffusive body of the people; every man, whether master or servant, above 16 years of age, gives his vote to the making or altering their laws, raising forces, levying taxes, &c.

ZUGEN, a canton of Switzerland, and one of the 13, is bounded by the canton of Schaffhausen on the N. by Thurgaw, and the co. of Tockenburg on the E. by Zug and Swits on the S. and by Bern and Lucern on the W. being 50 miles long, and 40 broad, and is esteemed the richest of the cantons, in proportion to its territory, tho' it be not half so large as Bern; for here the people apply themselves to trade, and have several profitable manufactures, particularly that of crape.

ZURICH CITY, E. lon. 8. 45. lat. 47. 28. cap. of the canton of Zurich, is pleasantly sit. on the N. end of the lake of Zurich, 37 m. S. W. of Constance, and is one of the best built towns in Switzerland. The government of this canton is aristocratical, being lodged in the principal inhabitants and their representatives; the common people have no share in it, and their religion is the Presbyterian or Calvinism.

Z U

ZURICH LAKE, is 20 miles long, and near 4 broad, and by it, the people of Zurich have an opportunity of importing and exporting their merchandise, it having a communication with the river Rhine.

ZUTPHEN, a county of the United Netherlands, and the E. division of the pr. of Gelderland, is bounded by the pr. of Overysel, on the N. by Munster in Westphalia on the E. by the duchy of Cleves on the S. and by the Velue, another division of Gelderland, on the W. being 30 m. long, and 24 broad.

ZUTPHEN, E. lon. 6. 19. lat. 52. 23. a city of Zutphen, in Gelderland, sit. on the river Yssel, 16 miles N. E. of Arnhem, and 3 S. of Deventer, supposed to have taken its name from its situation in the fens; tho' now the country is drained; it is much resorted to on account of the healthfulness of the situation. It has a magnificent church, and is surrounded by a strong wall.

ZUYDER ZEE, or Zee, is a great bay of the German ocean, which lies in the middle of the United Provinces, having the Islands of Texel, Flie, and Schelling, at the entrance of it, on the N. the provinces of Friesland, Overysel, and Gelderland, on the E. Utrecht and part of Holland on the S. and another part of

Z Y

Holland on the W. in which there are a great many port towns; but the chief is Amsterdam, whose foreign trade is equal, if not superior, to that of any town in the world; and yet the Zuyder sea is so shallow, that it is with great difficulty the Dutch flat-bottomed vessels pass over it. The usual entrance of this sea is between the Texel and the continent of North Holland.

ZWISINWEGEN, a county of the palatinate of the Rhine, in Germany; subject to the duchy of Deuxponts. See DEUXPONTS.

ZWICKOW, E. lon. 12. 55. lat. 50. 43. a town of the cir. of Upper Saxony, in Germany, and territory of Voightland, sit. on the river Muldew, 46 miles S. W. of Dresden; sit. bet to the Elector of Saxony.

The Grand Duke of Tuscany, her consort, was elected King of the Romans, 13 Sept. 1745.

See the EMPEROR and TYRANT.

The Pedigree of the Austrian Family the last hundred Years.

LEOPOLD, late Emperor of Germany, the only surviving son of the Emperor Ferdinand III. was born 9 June 1640. He was appointed King of Hungary, by his father, the Emperor Ferdinand III. 27 June 1655, and King of Bohemia 1 Aug. 1656. He was elected Emperor on the 8th of July 1658, after an interregnum of 2 months, and crowned at Frankfurt on the 22d of the same month. He married three times, 1. Margaret, daughter of Philip IV. King of Spain, on 12 April 1666, and she died on 20 May 1673, leaving him one daughter, named Mary Antonietta, who married Maximilian, late Elector of Bavaria, see BAVARIA.

He married his second wife Claudia, daughter of Ferdinand Archduke of Innsbruck, on the 15th of October 1673, who died with issue, the 8th April 1676.

He married his third wife Mary, the eldest daughter of the Duke of Neuburg, afterwards Elector Palatine, 6 Jan. 1677, by whom he had issue, 1. Joseph, born 1678, and 2. Charles, born 1 October 1683; and 3 daughters, viz. Mary Elisabeth, born 1680; 2. Mary Anne, born 1683; and Mary Magdalen, born 1689. Leopold dying on the 9th of May 1740, was succeeded by his eldest son.

JOSEPH, who had been crowned King of Hungary, anno 1738, and elected King of the Romans, anno 1690, and was of course declared Emperor on the death of his father Leopold, anno 1705. Joseph married Wilhelmina Amelia, daughter of John Frederic, late Duke of Hanover, anno 1699, by whom he had two daughters, viz. Maria Josepha, born the same year 1699, and Maria Amelia, born anno 1701.

The Emperor Joseph dying of the small-pox the 20th of April 1711, his brother Charles King of Spain was elected Emperor the 26th of Oct. the same year. He married the Princess Elisabeth Christina of Wolfenbuttel, anno 1708, by whom he had issue the Archduchess Maria Theresia, the present Queen of Hungary and Bohemia, and her sister the Archduchess Mary Anne, married to Prince Charles of Lorraine.

The Emperor Charles dying the 20th of October 1740, his daughter, the eldest Archduchess Maria Theresia, succeeded to his hereditary dominions, as related already.

The Archduchess Mary Ann, consort to Prince Charles of Lorraine, died in the year 1744, without issue.

2. Maria Josepha, born 7 August 1734, married to the late Margrave of Baden-Baden.

3. Josephina, Antonietta, born 30 March 1739.

The late Elector for 30 Years past.

MAXIMILIAN EMANUEL, Elec-

tor of Bavaria, son to the Elector Ferdinand, and grandson of Maximilian, the first Elector of Bavaria, was born anno 1662, and succeeded his father anno 1679. He married Maria Antonietta, the only daughter of the Emperor Leopold, by his first wife Margaret, the youngest daughter of Philip IV. King of Spain, anno 1685, by whom he had issue Ferdinand Joseph, who would have been heir to the crown of Spain, his grandmother being the daughter of Philip IV. King of Spain, (upon the death of Charles II. the last King of Spain without issue) the French King Lewis XIV. who married the other daughter of Philip IV. having renounced all claim to the crown of Spain at the time of his marriage; but a treaty for the partition of the Spanish monarchy was made, anno 1698, between Great Britain, France, and the United Provinces; whereby Spain and Spanish America only were allotted to Ferdinand Joseph, the electoral Prince of Bavaria; Naples and Sicily to the Dauphin of France, and the duchy of Milan to Charles, the Emperor's second son; but Ferdinand dying of the small-pox, anno 1699, another partition was made of the Spanish monarchy by the same powers, during the life of the late King Charles II. However, the French King prevailed on Charles to make a will, and give the whole Spanish monarchy to Philip Duke of Anjou, his grandson, second son of the Dauphin of France, and actually placed Philip on the throne of Spain, on the death of Charles II. anno 1700. See AUSTRIA, FRANCE, and SPAIN.

Maximilian having buried his first wife Mary, daughter of the Emperor Leopold, anno 1693, married the Princess Theresa Cunigunda, daughter of John Sobieski King of Poland, anno 1694, by whom he had issue, 1. Charles Albert Cæsarant, anno 1697, 2. Ferdinand Mary, born 1699, 3. Clement Augustus, born anno 1702, and, 4. Theodore, born anno 1703.

Maxi-

The present Royal Family of Great Britain.

GEORGE WILLIAM FREDERIC III. King of Great Britain,

&c. Elector of Hanover, &c. was born 4 June 1738; created Prince of Wales soon after his father's death, 1752; succeeded to the throne on the demise of his grandfather George II. 25 Oct. 1760; was proclaimed next day, at London; married on Sept. 8, 1761, the Princess Sophia Charlotte of Mecklenbourg Strelitz, born 16 May 1744, and crowned with her on 22 Sept. 1761; and by her hath issue, George Prince of Wales, born August 12, 1762; Frederic, bishop of Osnabrug, born 16 Aug. 1763; William Henry, born 21 Aug. 1765; Charlotte Augusta Matilda, born 29 Sept. 1766; Edward, born 2 Nov. 1767; Augusta Sophia, born 2 Nov. 1768; Elizabeth, born 23 May 1772; Ernest Augustus, born 5 June 1771; and Augustus Frederic, born 27 Jan. 1773.

The Ancestors of the present Royal Family for about 150 Years past.

James I. of England, and VI. of Scotland, was the only son of Henry

Stuart Lord Darnley, by Mary Queen of Scots, the only daughter and heiress of James V. King of Scots, who was the eldest son of James IV. King of Scots, and Margaret his wife, eldest daughter of Henry VII. King of England, whose issue, on failure of children of Henry VIII. were entitled to the crown of England. Queen Elizabeth, the youngest daughter of Henry VIII. died without issue, and unmarried, on 24 March 1603.

King James I. married Anne, the daughter of Frederick II. King of Denmark, anno 1589, by whom he had issue,

1. Henry, his eldest son, who died at 18 years of age, unmarried.

2. Robert, who died in his infancy.

3. Charles, who succeeded him.

He had also four daughters, viz.

1. Elizabeth, who married Fred. V. Count Palatine of the Rhine, elected to the throne of Bohemia, which he never possessed.

2. Margaret, who died in her infancy.

3. Mary, who died in infancy.

4. Sophia, who died in infancy.

Upon the death of King James I. 7 April 1625, he was succeeded by his only surviving son,

Charles I. born 30 Nov. 1600, at Dumferling in Scotland. He married Henrietta Maria, youngest daughter of Henry IV. King of France, 26 May 1625; by whom he had issue,

1. Charles, who died the same day he was born, viz. 29 March 1628.

2. Charles, who succeeded his father in the throne, born 9 June 1630.

3. Mary, born 15 Nov. 1631, who married William of Nassau Prince of Orange, and Stadtholder of the United Provinces, 13 May 1641, who died of the small-pox at London, 4 Jan. 1661.

INDIA or INDOSTAN.

TAMBRANE or Shah, Prince of Uday Puri, founded this empire about the year 1200, from whence the historical Aurasiebs descended, who made an entire conquest of all the Hindostan, and died in the year 1707.

The late Mogul, his great grandson,
succeeded to the throne anno 1740,
who suffered himself to be made prisoner by Kooli Khan, the late King of Persia, and his country to be protected, and, at length, gave up the western provinces to the conqueror, to obtain his liberty. After the death of Kooli Khan, the Mogul re-possessed himself of those provinces again.

Shah Zadeh, who claims the succession of this vast empire, has been under the protection of the East India Company, at Benaul, since Jan. 1768,
when he surrendered himself, and was honourably entertained, according to the accounts that have been at different times received from thence.

But as every Indian ship brings fresh accounts of the insurrections of the Indian Princes, it is impossible to declare the certain situation of affairs
there, or who actually possess the government.

PALATINE Electro.

CHARLES THEODORE, Duke of Neuburg, and Prince of Sulzbach, son of John Christian, late Prince of Sulzbach, was born 21 Dec. 1724, and succeeded the late Elector Charles Philip in the Electorate, on Dec. 1742. He succeeded also to the duchies of Berg and Juliers, to which the Electors of Saxony and Brandenburg had claim, but suffered the Elector Palatine to take possible possession of them. His consort is Mary Elizabeth of Sulzbach, born 17 Jan. 1723. He is the fifth secular Elector, tho' formerly the first, and has hitherto enjoyed the office of Arch-treasurer of the Empire, in which Count Zinzendorf is his deputy. He also claims to be first of the two vicars of the Empire, during an interregnum, absence or incapacity of the Emperor: but the Elector of Brandenburg likewise claims that dignity, tho' they have both lately agreed to exercise it conjunctly.

Prince Christian V, Grand Duke of Oldenburg, born 6 Sept. 1904, married to her

Prince Frederic his brother, born 17th Feb. 1724. General of the Army of the Empire; married to Princess Dorothea Sophia of Saxe-Coburg, born 15th Jan.

EDWARD FARNESSE, Duke of Parma; married Dorothy, Sophia
of Newburg, sister to the late Russian Emperor.

Palatinate, and the Empress Dowager, widow of the late Emperor Leopold, and died since 1693, having had issue by her a Prince named Alexander, who died young when his birth, and a Princess, named Elisabeth, married to Philip King of Spain, anno 1714.

Prince Francis Farnese succeeded his brother Edward in the duchy of Parma, anno 1693, and in 1695, married his brother's widow, the Princess Sophia, mother to the Queen Dowager of Spain, for which the Pope granted him a dispensation, notwithstanding his brother had issue by Josephine living. Duke Francis died the 2nd of Feb. 1727, aged 49, whereby his brother's daughter, Elisabeth, Queen Dowager of Spain, became entitled to the duchy of Parma, and the rest of the hereditary dominions of that house, which she ceded to the house of Austria, in consideration of the kingdoms of Naples and Sicily, which were confirmed to her eldest son Don Carlos, by a treaty made between the late Emperor Charles IV. on the one part, and France and Spain on the other, anno 1756. See AUGUSTUS and TUSCANY.

Don Philip, second son of the said Dowager Queen, was acknowledged Duke of Parma, Piacenza, and Guastalla, at the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, 1748.

He was born 13 March 1726, and married Louise Elisabeth, eldest Madame of France, who died 6th Dec. 1759, leaving issue,

1. Elisabeth Mary Louise, born 31 Dec. 1741. See AUSTRIA.

2. Ferdinand, born 23d of Jan. 1753.

3. Josephine Maria Theresia, born 19 Dec. 1755.

P E R S I A.

A CIVIL war has long distracted this country. The royal family has been a ruined above 30 years, and a multitude of Gracians have since usurped the dominion of that kingdom (among whom were Merwiz and Kouli Khan) most of them destroyed after very short reigns. But late accounts say, that a regular government is now settled there, and that the Porte and Russia were thereupon going to send ambassadors to Ispahan.

The present Royal Family.

STANISLAUS AUGUSTUS, the present King of Poland (late Count Poniatowski) was born 17 Jan. 1732, elected 7 Sept. and crowned 25 Nov. 1764, on the death of Augustus, who died in 1763.

Augustus III. the late King, was Elector of Saxony, born 7 Oct. 1696, succeeded his father Augustus II. in the Electorate of Saxony, 1st of Feb. 1733, and was elected King of Poland, 5th of October 1733. The Elector of Saxony has the 6th rank of precedence in the Electoral College, being the 3d secular Elector. During an inter-regnum, the absence or incapacity of the Emperor, he performs the office of second vicar of the Empire, the Elector of Bavaria and Palatine claiming that of the first, and exercising it together. He is the Great Marshal of the Empire, and as such carries the imperial scepter and shatters before the Emperor at solemn processions.

Augustus married the Archduchess Maria Josepha, the eldest daughter of Joseph, late Emperor of Germany, anno 1712, and by her, who died 17 Nov. 1757, he had issue,

1. Frederic Charles, born 6th Sept. 1722; married in the year 1742, to the Princess Maria Antonetta, daughter of the late Emperor Charles VII. Elector of Bavaria, born 19th of July 1724. They have issue five sons and two daughters, viz. Frederic Augustus, born 23th Dec. 1750; Charles Maximilian, born 24 Sept. 1751; Joseph Mary Louis, born 26th of Jan. 1754;

Genealogy of the Kings of Poland for above 170 Years past.

Sigismund III. son of John, King of Sweden, was elected on condition of his renouncing the Protestant religion, anno 1587.

On the death of Sigismund, Vladislav VI. his son, was elected anno 1632.

Vladislav leaving no issue, John Casimir his brother, who had been made a Cardinal, was elected King, anno 1643. He endeavoured to render himself absolute, but was driven from the throne by the Poles, and retiring into France, was made Abbot of the abbey of St. Germain; whereupon

Michael Wisniowski, defended from the Great Dukes of Lithuania, was elected King, anno 1670. Upon whose death

John Sobieski, a younger son of James Sobieski Castellan of Cracow, was chosen King, anno 1688; who dying 17 June 1696, there appeared several competitors for the throne; the chief whereof were the Prince of Conti, and the Elector of Saxony, and the French faction proclaimed the Prince of Conti King, the 26th June 1697; but the Elector's party being more numerous, insisted that no election was valid without the unanimous consent of the diet. They protested against that election, and proclaimed Augustus II. Elector of Saxony, King. However, the Prince of Conti's party proceeded to act in his name, and the Prince being conveyed to Dantz by five French men of war, the Cardinal Primate summoned a diet to meet at Warsaw, which confirmed the election of the Prince. The Elector's party, on the other hand, proceeded to crown him at Warsaw, on the 15th of September 1697. Whereupon the Prince of Conti, finding the party of the Elector much the strongest, returned to France, after he had waited some months at Dantz, to attend the event, and Augustus was unanimously recognised King of Poland.

Augustus being deposed by the malcontents, assisted by Charles XII. King of Sweden, anno 1704, Stanislaus Lesinski, Palatine of Pozen, was elected King, and Augustus renounced all claim to the kingdom of Poland. But the King of Sweden being defeated by the Russians at Polowa, 27 June 1709, King Augustus re-attended the throne. He died on 1 Feb. 1733, leaving no other issue than Augustus, the Electoral Prince, who succeeded him in the Electorate, and became a candidate for the crown of Poland, in which he was opposed by the late King Stanislaus and his party, supported by France and the primate; and Stanislaus was actually proclaimed King on the 12th Sept. 1733. But the Russians sending a powerful army

Saxo Poland, and joining the Baron for ev, the Elector of Saxony, Augustus III. was elected on the 5th, and proclaimed King, 6th Oct. and Stanislaus retiring to Dantzic, was there besieged, and driven out of the kingdom. Whereupon Augustus was universally recognised, and he was crowned with his Queen at Cracow, 4 Jan. 1734.

POPES of Rome for upwards of 90 Years past.

POPE Innocent XI. elected Pope anno 1676, assigned a pension of 22,000 crowns per ann. to Christina, Queen of Sweden, who was reconciled to the see of Rome, abdicated her kingdom, and retired to a convent in that city, where she died. The same Pope entered into a confederacy with England, Holland, and other Protestant powers against France.

He was succeeded by Alexander VIII. anno 1690, who reigning but one year, was succeeded by Innocent XII. anno 1691, who was of the noble family of Pignatelli, in Naples.

Clement XI. succeeded Innocent anno 1700, but was with difficulty prevailed on to accept it.

He was succeeded by Innocent XIII. anno 1721. He protested against the Emperor's granting the investiture of the duchies of Parma and Placentia to Don Carlos, Prince of Spain, claiming them as fees of the church.

Pope Benedict XIII. succeeded Innocent XIII. anno 1724. He had been a Dominican friar, and practised the mortifications of a cloyster, while he sat in the papal chair.

Pope Clement XII. succeeded Benedict 1730.

Cardinal Lambertini, was elected Pope 27 Aug. 1740, who took upon him the name of Benedict XIV. and died 3 May 1758.

Cardinal Rencanico, Bishop of Padua, was elected Pope 6 July 1758, and took the name of Clement XIII. He was a Venetian, and was born 7 March 1695.

Upon the demise of his before-mentioned aunt, the Carina Elizabeth, 3 Jan. 1762, he was recognised Emperor of Russia; but pursuing measures inconsistent (in the opinion of many of his subjects) with the interests of his dominions, and tending to subvert the ecclesiastical establishment, he was dethroned, and

Catherine Alexiowna, his wife, proclaimed sole Empress and sovereign of the Russian Empire, 9th July 1762, by the title of Catherine II. This Princess, who is daughter of Christian Augustus, late Prince of Anhalt-Zerbst, was born 5 May 1729; and was married 1st of Sept. 1745, when she relinquished the name of Sophia Augusta, by which she had been christened, for that of Catherine Alexiowna, and embraced the religion of the Greek church. She has two children by her deposed husband, viz. Paul Petrowitz, declared heir apparent to the Russian throne, born 1 Oct. 1754; and Anna Petrowna, born 21 Dec. 1757. The said Peter Fedorowitz III. died (as said of a colic) 17 July 1762, eight days after being dethroned.

Cousins of his, 1. Adolphus Frederic, King of Sweden. 2. Frederic Augustus of Holstein, bishop of Lubeck. George Lewis of Holstein, lieutenant-general of horse in the Prussian service, born 1711.

Genealogy of the Royal Family for above 100 Years past.

Alexis Michaelowitz, Grand Duke of Russia, who began his reign anno 1645, had three sons, viz. Theodore, John, and Peter. Theodore, the eldest, succeeded his father Alexis, anno 1675; and, at his death, which happened anno 1682, appointed his two brothers, John and Peter, to succeed him.

John and Peter reigned jointly until the year 1696, when John died, leaving issue Catherine, who married Charles Leopold, Duke of Mecklenburg, anno 1716; and Anne married to Frederic William, Duke of Cour- land, anno 1710; and the Princess Prefcovia, who died unmarried.

Peter the Great, reigning sole monarch of Russia from the year 1696, married Ottokelsa Fedorowna, daughter of the Boyar V. Abramowitz, by whom he had issue Alexis Petrowitz, born anno 1690.

Peter procured a divorce from the Princess Ottokelsa Fedorowna, anno 1692, and took to his bed Catherine Alexiowna, an obscure person, whom he formally married, anno 1711, and had issue by her the Princess Anne, married to Frederic Duke of Holstein, and the Princess Elizabeth (late Carina) and several other children, who died without issue, and unmarried.

Alexis Petrowitz, son of Peter the Great, born anno 1690, was married to Charlotte Christina Sophia, daughter of Lewis Rudolphus, Duke of Brunswick Wolfenbuttel, anno 1711. This Prince died in prison, anno 1718, being then under sentence of death for a conspiracy against Peter the Great, his father. He left issue the Princess Natalia, since dead, and one son; named Peter Alexowitz, born anno 1715, and afterwards Emperor.

Peter the Great assumed the title of Emperor anno 1721, which has been given to all the Russian Sovereigns by all the powers of Europe ever since, and appointed his second wife Catherine to succeed him.

Catherine accordingly ascended the throne on the death of Peter the Great, which happened on the 8th of Feb. 1724-5, and dying 17th May 1727, was succeeded by

Peter II. son of the late Czarowitz, and grandson of Peter the Great, by his first wife, being then in the ninth year of his age. Peter II. died of the small-pox, 29 Jan. 1729, 30, and was succeeded by

Anne, Duchess Dowager of Cearland, second daughter of the late Czar John, and the dying 28th Oct. 1740, was succeeded by John II. an infant six months old, son of Anthony Ulrich, Duke of Brunswick-Wolfenbuttel, and Anne, his wife, daughter of Charles Duke of Mecklenburg, and Catherine, his wife, who was the eldest daughter of the late Czar John. John II. being deposed the 5th of Dec. 1741,

The late Czarina Elizabeth, second daughter of Peter the Great, by Catherine his second wife, born the 29th of Dec. 1710, ascended the throne of Russia, which she kept possession of until her death, the 5th Jan. 1762. See MECKLENBURG SCHWERIN.

VICTOR AMADEUS MARIA, Prince of Piedmont, and Duke of Savoy, the present King of Sardinia, and son to the late King, succeeded to the throne this year 1773, on the death of his father. He was born 26 June 1726, and married 12 April 1750 to the Infanta Maria Antonietta of Spain, born 17th of Nov. 1729; by whom he hath issue,

1. Charles Emanuel, Prince of Piedmont, born 24 May 1751.
2. Maria Josepha Louisa, born 2d Sept. 1753.
3. Maria Theresa, born 31 Jan. 1756.
4. Maria Anna Charlotta, born 17 Dec. 1757.
5. Maria Josepha Ferdinanda, born 21 Nov. 1761.

Charles Emanuel Victor, late King of Sardinia, and Duke of Savoy, was born 27 April 1701, succeeded both to the kingdom and duchy, 3d Sept. 1730, on the resignation of his father

Victor Amadeus, who chose to abdicate the throne, and live a private life with Madam St. Sebastian, whom he married immediately after his abdication. But the putting him upon resuming the government, the late King thought fit to separate them, and confine both his father and the lady a distance from each other; and Victor Amadeus, the abdicated King, died in confinement 6th Oct. 1732, being then 66 years of age.

Charles Emanuel had three wives. His first was Anne Christian Louisa, Princess of Sultzbach, whom he married 15 March 1722, and she died 22 March 1723, leaving a son, who died in 1725.

His 2d wife was Polixena Christina Joanna, Princess of Hesse Rhinefeld, married 23 Aug. 1724, by whom he had issue,

1. Victor Amadeus Maria, the present King.
2. Eleanora Maria Theresa, born 28 Feb. 1728.
3. Maria Louisa Gaciela, born 15 March 1729.
4. Maria Felicitas, born 19 March 1730.

His second Queen dying 13 Jan. 1734, he married a third wife, viz. Elizabeth, Princess of Lorrain, and sister to the present Emperor, by whom he had a son, Benedict Mary Maurice, Duke of Chablais, 21st of June 1741, of whom his mother died in child-bed, 22 July 1741.

Lewis Victor, Prince of Carignan, the next branch of the royal family, was born 25 Sept. 1721, and married Christina Hensietta, daughter of Ernest Leopold, Landgrave of Hesse Rhinefeld, born 21 Nov. 1717, by whom he had issue Victor Amadeus Lewis, born 21st of October 1743, Eugene Mary Louis, born 21st of Oct. 1752, and five daughters.

of Francis Hyacinthus, succeeded his brother Hyacinth, anno 1638.

Victor Amadeus, second son of Charles Emanuel, born the 14th of May 1666, succeeded his father the 12th of June 1675. While he was Prince of Piedmont, he married the Princess Anne Mary of Valois, daughter of Philip Duke of Orleans, and of Henrietta daughter of Charles I. King of England, anno 1684, by whom he had issue, Mary Adelaide, or Athelred, born anno 1685, and married, anno 1698, to Lewis Duke of Burgundy, eldest son of the then Dauphin of France, and grandson of Lewis XIV. King of France, by whom the Duke of Burgundy had issue his present Most Christian Majesty Lewis XV.

Victor Amadeus had issue also by Anne Mary, daughter of the Duke of Orleans, Mary Louisa Gabriella, born 1688, and married to Philip V. King of Spain, anno 1698, by whom Philip had issue, Don Lewis, and Don Ferdinand, late Kings of Spain.

Victor Amadeus had issue also, by Mary of Orleans, Victor Amadeus, late Prince of Piedmont, born anno 1699, who died 22d of March 1715, and Charles Emanuel, his late Sardinian Majesty, born 27th April 1701, who succeeded on his father's resignation, 3d Sept. 1730. By the treaty of Utrecht, concluded 1713, the island of Sicily was allotted to Victor Amadeus, late Duke of Savoy, with the title of King of Sicily; but the Spaniards invading Sicily, anno 1718, and reducing great part of that island, Sicily was, by a subsequent treaty, made anno 1720, assigned to the late Emperor Charles VI. and Sardinia allotted to the Duke of Savoy, in lieu of Sicily, with the title of King of Sardinia; and his late Sardinian Majesty, Charles Emanuel, remained King of Sardinia, and Duke of Savoy, whose family has been described already.

The Princess Mary Adelaide, eldest daughter of Victor Amadeus, the late Duke of Savoy, and mother of Lewis XV. King of France, died 12 Feb. 1712.

The Princess Mary Louisa, second daughter of Victor Amadeus, late Duke of Savoy, who married Philip V. King of Spain, by whom she had issue Don Ferdinand, Prince of the Asturias, late King of Spain, died 14 Feb. 1714.

The Princes of Carignan and Saisons, are branches of the family of Savoy. That celebrated General, Prince Eugene, of Savoy, of the family of Soissons, was born 18 Oct. 1663, and died in March 1735.

S I C I L Y.

FERDINAND IV. King of Sicily and Naples, third son of his Catholic Majesty Charles III. was born 22th Jan. 1751; and succeeded to the throne by the appointment of his father, soon after his accession to the Spanish monarchy, 10 August 1759, on the express condition, that the dominions of Spain, and those of Sicily and Naples, should never be united in one person. He married 7 April 1768, to the Archduchess Mary Caroline Louisa.

The Kings of Spain were constantly Kings of the Two Sicilies, or of Naples and Sicily, for upwards of 200 years; but in the year 1707, in the reign of the Emperor Joseph, the Imperialists invaded Naples, and made themselves masters of that kingdom, and expelled the Spaniards.

By the treaty of Utrecht, anno 1713, Naples was confirmed to the Imperialists, and the island of Sicily was allotted to the Duke of Savoy, with the title of King of that island.

In the year 1713, the Spaniards invaded Sicily, and reduced the greatest part of that island; but in a subsequent treaty of peace, anno 1720, they yielded Sicily to the Emperor Charles VI and Sardinia was allotted to the Duke of Savoy in lieu of it, with the title of King of that island.

The Spaniards invaded Naples and Sicily again, in the year 1735, and making an entire conquest of both, Don Carlos, the King of Spain's eldest son by his second Queen, was crowned King of Naples and Sicily in July 1735, and took upon him the title of King of the Two Sicilies, which were confirmed to him by the Emperor Charles VI. by a subsequent treaty. According to the peace of Aix-la-chapelle, 1748, it was provided, that in case Don Carlos, the King of Sicily, should succeed to the Spanish dominions, his brother Don Philip should enjoy the sovereignty of Sicily and Naples, and the duchies of Parma, Placentia, and Guastalla, should revert to the Queen of Hungary, and her heirs; but Don Carlos, having never acceded to this article, paid no regard to it, and made the settlement in favour of his third son, as above related.

S P A I N.

CHARLES III. King of Spain, was born the 20th Jan. 1716, became King of the Two Sicilies anno 1735; but resigned that crown, upon succeeding to the throne of Spain, on the death of his half brother Ferdinand VI. 10 Aug. 1759. He married

19 June 1738, Maria Amelia, eldest daughter of Augustus III. King of Poland; and by her (who was born 24th Nov. 1734, and died 27th Sept. 1760) he has issue now living,

1. Don Philip Anthony, born 13 June 1747, excluded from the succession, as an incurable idiot.

2. Don Charles Anthony, Prince of Asturias, born 11 Nov. 1748.

3. Don Ferdinand, King of Sicily and Naples, born 12 Jan. 1751.

Genealogy of the Royal Family for upwards of 200 Years.

Charles V. (the only surviving son of the Princess Joanna, daughter and heiress of Ferdinand King of Arragon, and of Isabella, Queen of Castile, by her husband Philip, Duke of Burgundy, Archduke of Austria) was born 24th Feb. 1500, and upon the death of his grandfather King Ferdinand, anno 1515, took upon himself the title of King of Spain, though his mother Joanna was then living (her brain being turned) and thus Castile and Arragon, and the whole kingdom of Spain, were first united under one monarch.

Charles V. was elected Emperor of Germany, upon the death of his grandfather Maximilian, anno 1719, but was not crowned till the 21st of Aug. 1520, being opposed by Francis King of France, his competitor for the empire.

Charles V. resigned the empire and kingdom of Spain, anno 1556, and retired into a convent, having first procured his brother Ferdinand to be elected Emperor of Germany, and settled his son Philip II. on the throne of Spain; and two years after, 1558, Charles died in the convent of St. Just, near Placentia, in Spain.

Philip II. dying in the year 1598, was succeeded by his son Philip III. who died anno 1621, and was succeeded by his son Philip IV. who had issue,

1. The Infant Don Carlos, or Charles, born 1661.

2. The Infanta Maria Theresa, married to Lewis XIV. King of France, anno 1660, who renounced all pretensions he might have to the crown of Spain by this marriage.

3. The Infanta Margaret, married to Leopold, Emperor of Germany, anno 1663.

Philip IV. dying 7 Sept. 1665, was succeeded by his only son Charles II. born anno 1661, who died without issue, anno 1700, having first made his will, and appointed Philip, Duke of Anjou, to succeed him, who was second son of Lewis the then Dauphin, and grandson of Lewis XIV. King of France, and was accordingly proclaimed King of Spain, and settled on that throne.

Philip V. married Mary Louisa, second daughter of Victor Amadeus, late Duke of Savoy, 11 Sept. 1701, by whom he had issue,

1. Don Lewis, who died in his father's life-time.

2. Don Ferdinand, late King of Spain, born 23 Sept. 1713.

3. Don Philip, who died also during the life of his father.

Philip V. burying his first wife in 1713, he married 26 Sept. 1714, the Princess Elizabeth Farnese, heiress to the Duke of Parma, born 25th Oct. 1692, now Queen Dowager, by whom he had issue,

1. Don Carlos, now King of Spain.

2. Don Philip, now Duke of Parma.

The Genealogy of their Kings ~~for~~ upwards of 200 Years.

Gustavus Erickson, a Swedish nobleman, having rendered himself exceeding popular, by rescuing his country from the usurped dominion and tyranny of the Danes, was elected King of Sweden, and vested almost with an unlimited power by the States, anno 1523. This being about the time of Luther's reformation, he influenced the people so far, as to reject the Pope's authority, and the doctrines of the church of Rome, and embrace those of Luther; and being opposed by the clergy, seized all their lands and revenues, and annexed them to the crown. He also prevailed on the States to part with their right of electing their Kings, and entail the crown on his eldest son Eric, and his heirs successively, according to their seniority; and on his death, anno 1560, was succeeded in the greatest part of his dominions by his son Eric.

Eric reigned about 9 years, but his younger brothers, to whom part of the Swedish dominions had been allotted, not being contented with their several shares, entered into a conspiracy, and dethroned him on pretence of mal-administration, and he was at length poisoned by his 2d brother.

John, who succeeded Eric, anno 1568, was succeeded 1592, by Sigismund, his eldest son, who had been elected King of Poland, and residing pretty much in that kingdom, was deposed by the Swedes, 1600; and his uncle Charles, the youngest son of Gustavus Erickson, was advanced to the throne; and the States entailed the kingdom on his son Gustavus Adolphus, and his heirs male, confirming the King's absolute authority.

Gustavus Adolphus succeeded on the death of his father Charles, anno 1611, who having great success against the Muscovites, Poles, and Germans, prevailed on the States to entail the crown on his daughter Christina, and her heirs; and being afterwards killed at the battle of Lutzen in Germany, November 1632, was succeeded by his daughter,

Christina, then near 6 years of age, being born 8 Dec. 1626.

Christina reigned until the year 1654, when she thought fit to resign her crown to her cousin Charles Gustavus, the 4th son of Casimir, Count Palatine of Zweybruck in Cleeburg, and of Catherine the sister of the late King Gustavus Adolphus, and then went to Rome, embracing the Roman Catholic religion, and living the remainder of her days in a convent, died anno 1689, being 68 years of age.

Charles Gustavus, who succeeded his cousin Christina, was a very successful Prince, and recovered the Swedish provinces of Schonon, Bleking, and Halland, from the Danes, leaving the crown to his son Charles, anno 1660.

Charles being then five years of age, the administration of the government was committed to the Queen his mother, and five great officers of the crown, 'till the year 1672, when the King was declared major; and the States further declared, that the King, who received the crown from God, was accountable only to God for his actions, and resigned all their authority into his Majesty's hands, making him as absolute a Prince as any in Europe.

Charles XI. married the Princess Ulrica Eleonora Sabina, sister of Christian V. King of Denmark, by whom he had issue one son, named Charles, born 17 June 1682, that succeeded him. 2. A daughter named Hedwige Sophia, born anno 1681. 3. Ulrica Eleonora, born anno 1688, and married to Frederic, hereditary Prince of Hesse, who died without issue in Dec. 1751.

Charles XII. son of Charles XI. succeeded his father anno 1697, and being killed before Frederickshall in Norway, 21 Dec. 1718, the States of Sweden made choice of the Princess Ulrica Eleonora, his younger sister, for their Queen, on condition of restoring them their ancient rights and liberties; and she resigning the crown, anno 1720, they made choice of her consort Frederic, hereditary Prince of Hesse, who succeeded to the crown of Sweden on the like conditions the Queen had accepted of it, i. e. of lodging both the legislative and executive power in the States, and leaving the Prince little more than the name of King.

The Princess Hedwige Sophia, eldest sister of Charles XII. married Frederic IV. Duke of Holstein Gottorp, by whom she had issue Charles Frederic born 20th April 1700. Charles Frederic married Anne Petrowina, eldest daughter of the Czar Peter the Great, by his 2d wife Catharine, and by her had issue Charles Peter Ulric, the late Czar of Muscovy, born 21 Feb. 1728, and consequently was heir to the crown of Sweden, and so declared by the States on his father's death. The Czarina Elizabeth, late Empress of Russia, having declared him her successor to that throne, he renounced his claim to Sweden; and the States of Sweden declared his uncle, the Duke of Holstein Eutin, Bishop of Lubec, successor to the throne of Sweden.

Frederic, late King of Sweden, and Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel, eldest son of Charles, Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel, and Mary Amelia, sister of Casimir, Duke of Courland, was born anno 1676, and in the year 1699, married Louisa Dorothea Sophia, daughter of Frederic I. King of Prussia, who dying without issue in Dec. 1705, he married the Princess Eleonora, youngest daughter of Charles XI. late King of Sweden, who was elected Queen of Sweden anno 1718, on the death of her brother Charles XII.

Queen Eleonora resigning the crown in favour of her consort, anno 1720, Frederic was elected King of Sweden, and crowned 3 May 1721. He succeeded his father Charles in the Landgraviate of Hesse-Cassel, anno 1730, and his consort Queen Eleonora died without issue, anno 1741.
